LOCAL TREATMENT FOR WOMEN'S DISORDERS

The health we enjoy depends very largely upon how the blood circulates in our bodies; in other words, if we have perfect circulation we will have perfect health. There is constant wearing out of the tissues in every part of the body. The blood flowing through the veins carries off this waste or dead matter, while the blood coming from the heart through the arteries brings the fresh new living tissue, the essence of the food we have digested, to replace what has been carried off. The constant wearing out and expelling of the dead matter and the replacing of it with new matter, atom by atom, goes on day and night, until in about 7 years a complete change has been effected. Thus every man and woman has an entirely different body in every particle of it from what he or she had 7 years before.

It sometimes happens, however, from a variety of causes, that the blood becomes congested in certain portions of the body. This means that the blood vessels in these parts become weakened, and the circulation in that section of the body becomes sluggish and stagnant. The consequence is that the dead matter in that part of the body is only partially carried away and that but little of the new, vital matter is introduced there to build up and strengthen the tissues and nerves.

This condition invariably exists in all cases of female disorders. The dead matter retained in the circulation, which should have been expelled, causes irritation and inflammation of the delicate membranes, and oppresses the nerve centres. This condition is the cause of the grievous physical and mental suffering which accompanies female troubles.

To obtain relief it is evident that the first thing to be done is to get rid of the dead matter which is being held in the circulation. If this dead matter is introduced there to build up and strengthen the tissues and nerves.

allow to remain there a species of blood poisoning will result and nature will endeavor to get rid of it by forming ulcers, tumors, etc.

The above explanation will also show why ORANGE LILY is so successful in curing this condition. It is a local treatment, and is applied direct to the affected organs. Its curative elements are absorbed into the congested tissue, and from the very start the dead matter begins to be discharged. It brings about relief, both mental and physical, accompanies it, and the improvement is constant and positive. This feature of the expelling of the dead matter is always present to a greater or less extent, and in some cases it is so marked as to be amazing. The case described in the following letter is not exceptional:

Dr. Cooney—I am thankful to Mrs. F. E. Currah, your Canadian representative, for my health restored by your wonderful remedy. I have suffered for 17 years, but not so bad until 3 years ago. Then I had a doctor, who told me I had a tumor, and could live no more than a year. If he went through an operation I would not live through it. A year later I sent for him again, and he gave me up to die. My husband then sent for another doctor, who performed an operation, and it did me much good. I doctored with him 3 or 4 months, but became so bad again that I thought I could live no longer, and I began to long to die. One day my husband came home and threw a slip of paper to me with Mrs. Currah's address and told me a lady had advised him to write to her for a treatment. I could not lift a scrap without hurting me. Then the first doctor told me I was worse than ever. However, my husband sent for ORANGE LILY, and the third treatment brought away one tumor. Others followed, until 7 tumors had been expelled, 3 large ones and 4 small ones. I know if it had not been for ORANGE LILY I would have died, for I could not live much longer. I have taken it cheap at one hundred dollars for a month's treatment, instead of one dollar. It is worth its weight in gold.—MRS. GEO. LEWIS, Huntsville, Ont.

The above letter is published confidentially, but occasionally some patients feel grateful for being cured that she is willing to make the matter known for the benefit and encouragement of her suffering sisters.

ORANGE LILY is a positive, scientific remedy for all disorders of the female functions. As explained above, these troubles are of local origin, and require local treatment. It is just as sensible to take medicine internally for female troubles as it would be to take medicine internally for a bruise, a boil or an ulcerated tooth. In all these cases some dead matter is being retained, and the cure is effected by employing local methods of expelling the dead matter. ORANGE LILY has antiseptic, soothing and healing properties, and also tones up and invigorates blood vessels and nerves. I am so anxious that every suffering woman may satisfy herself without cost to her, that ORANGE LILY will cure her, that I hereby make the following

KING OLAF'S CHURCH
A NORSE LEGEND.

By AMELIA WOFFORD.

"I will make my people Christians," King Olaf said when he took his throne. It was no idle saying. In time he ruled a Christian kingdom, and thence since its conversion had come to him the vision of a noble church, rich in sculptured pillars and windows of wondrous stain. And with each appearance had the luminous angel that stood within its massive arched portal cried, "So shalt thou build, O saintly king."

Full of zeal King Olaf obeyed this celestial behest, but obeying meant the impoverishment of his people, and this he would not cause. But some means there should be to the fulfillment of so holy a desire and command, he would impatiently argue to himself, and to its discovery he set himself unceasingly. And one day, while out upon his daily walk, he saw an intent upon a scheme that gave faint promise of fruition, he wandered further than he knew, and into a region where he had never set foot before. On and on he went, plucking absent at the sea of flame-red beard that swept his chest from chin to girdle, his blue eyes downward, his brow deeply furrowed. By and by he plunged into a dense forest, and when far within its depths, a sudden turn of the thread-like path he followed brought him before a startling object, a man so tall that his head was hidden among the boughs of the birch under which he stood.

"Why dost thou carry thy chin so low, king?" he asked in a voice that rolled like distant thunder, and at the same time advancing his head from out its lofty covert.

There was no pleasant look in his eyes though his lips essayed a smile as he gazed down upon the king. He was a troll, one of the giant savage race that dwelt in the old pagany days, and of all the Christians, the most odious of them was King Olaf. First, because of his religion; then because since his reign the ringing of church bells, which annoys them, had become so plentiful that many had been forced to leave their old homes and seek the wildest parts of the country to escape the hated sound.

The King Olaf knew this, but he was not afraid, and he gave the troll a sportive answer.

"I mistook thee for a pine of strange and mighty shape," he said. "And had I been in quest of such a one and had my axe with me, I should have hewn thee away right lustily at thy feet unless thou hadst cried to protest."

The troll smiled genuinely now, well-pleased at this allusion to his big nose.

"But why art thou so dark and sunless this morning?" he persisted. "Methinks never was the sky so blue, the sunshine clear and golden, and the birds' songs so sweet and blithe. It seems strange that in so fair a day, so great a king should be downcast."

"Yes, all that I wished I have done," Olaf answered proudly. "But to-day I can enjoy neither sky, nor sunshine, nor songs of birds, nor heart is heavy within me—but sit thee down beside me that thou mayst hear better—and I will tell thee the secret of my gloom."

The troll laughed till the birch top shook.

"They call thee Olaf the Big," he said, his huge sides heaving, "but for all that thy head does not reach to my girdle, and to my ears thy voice comes as a cricket's chirp to mine. How many are the mightiest of you. To hear thee well I will lie at thy side, Olaf the Big," he continued tauntingly, and so saying he stretched himself beside the king.

"And that is thy trouble," he said, thoughtfully, when Olaf had told his story. "I will build thee a church of whatsoever kind thou warest if thou wilt give the wage I ask."

This put the king in waggish humor. He would play a joke upon the troll; and he looked down upon him with twinkling eyes.

"If thou canst do what I ask I shall give whatsoever thou napest," he replied, "be it sun, moon and stars, or mine own royal self. But listen to my plan. The church must be of whitest stone, polished till it shines like the snowy mountain top when kissed by the morning light, and every block must be of the bigness of thy huge body, and free of flaw or stain."

"So large must it be that seven priests may preach therein at once, and the voice of none reach the others. It must be splendid in pillars and ornaments wrought of the hardest flint, and the spire whose tip shall cleave cloud and sky must sparkle with jewels of every hue. Do this, O mighty troll," he laughed, "and the sun and moon and stars, or King Olaf himself shall be thy wage."

"And more thou can I do, Christian king," said the troll gravely. "And I shall not forget my wage. Now on thy good sword swear to fill thy promise, if I build as thou desirest."

"That I will," said the king, still laughing, "but I will swear on something nobler than my good sword. I will swear on this," and lifting the heavy cross that hung from a chain about his throat, he pressed it fervently to his lips. "But, in three days' time all must be done, or thou gettest not sun, moon or stars, or King Olaf," he added, with a burst of hearty laughter.

Queen Anstrid shared the king's sentiment when she heard of his adventure. "We shall not lose our race," she said confidently, "nor the sky, its sun and moon or smallest star, O poor troll, wicked though he is, I pity him for his labors will be in vain."

The next morning their jollity changed to grave anxiety. Peasants came flocking to the palace with pale faces and a marvelous story. "Odin himself has left Valhalla, and is in the forest tearing up great pines and hurling them from him as he would a slender reed," they said. "What does it mean?" they asked, with trembling lips. "He must be wroth with us. Hast thou done well for him, to have us forsake the faith of our fathers and accept of his?"

"It is Thor in truth," said old men, that came in later. "He has taken the form of a troll, and is building himself a temple of shining blocks of snow, now it must be, for nothing else could be so white and dazzling. He is piling them high in shape of a mighty cross, in a space he has swept clear of trees."

Amazed the royal pair went forth to see for themselves. True indeed, Olaf's acquaintance of the forest was hard at work, and already higher than his shaggy head gleamed walls of purest white, that stretched away for leagues.

Barely though he was, King Olaf bravely followed. Sun, moon and stars were beyond his kingly reach, and falling these, he must fall into his enemy's hands, unless in some way he could escape. Escape meant, they made a remarkable change in me. I was able to get out of bed and crawl along the floor on my hands and knees. Gradually my limbs became stronger. Soon I could walk with the aid of a cane and inside of nine months after I had begun the use of the Pills I was totally cured, and once more able to do light work. Now I am as strong as ever I was and can do my work about the farm without the least trouble. I think Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are without an equal, for besides my own case, I know of two other cases of paralysis cured by them. Two young girls who had been crippled and whom I advised to try the Pills.

In corroboration of what Mr. McDonald says, the Rev. D. MacLean, of Charlottetown, P.E.I., writes: "I visited Mr. McDonald many times during his illness. He was attended by three or more doctors and put in plaster Paris, and everything imaginable which might be of benefit was done for him without success. He had lost all power of his body from his waist down and I think he was nearly a year under treatment before he began to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was with him the first day he moved his big toe and from that time on he gradually improved and for the last few years he has been perfectly well. I can vouch for the cure Dr. Williams' Pink Pills effected in his case."

If you are sick and the treatment you are now taking does not help you, give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial. They have cured thousands of cases of paralysis and other medical troubles that had hopelessly failed. These Pills actually make new, rich, red blood, feed the starved nerve and bring health and strength to every part of the body. This is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure such apparently hopeless cases as Mr. McDonald's, and it is why they have cured thousands and thousands of sick, discouraged people in every part of the world. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

of course, the breaking of his twice-sworn pledge, but to break faith was of small matter in those rough, blood-stained old days.

Hour by hour the work went on. At wondrous speed the building grew, and early in the morning of the third day all was complete but the roof and spire. The troll, sure of his prize, was resting when the king passed by.

"Thou and thy seven priests may enter before noon wares," he called exultantly, "for soon the roof and spire will be in place."

Never had sadder thoughts beset King Olaf than in the morning's walk. He was young, and strong, and ambitious, as was every true Norseman. He had done good work for his people. He loved his country. He had noble plans for its future, and now, in the very flower of life and fullness of power, to be cut down. "Oh, fool! fool! that I was!" he cried, despairingly.

He clenched his teeth and strode along, seeing nothing but his approaching doom.

A child's cry, shrill and pitiful, caught his ear.

He stopped, looking about, but nothing save ragged rocks and the wild growth of trees and bushes met his gaze.

Again it shrilled forth. This time he caught the direction surely. It came from the depths of the mountain side.

"Hush! Hush!" crooned a woman's voice. "Hush! Hush! my child. Tomorrow comes thy father Wind-weather home, bringing sun, and moon, and stars, or saintly Olaf's self."

To call a troll by name brought his evil power to nought, and exultant King Olaf hastened homeward. To speak exactly he fairly flew, his scarlet cloak streaming straight from his shoulder, and his golden spurs clanking unceasingly.

What if the magic name fail? His speed slackened not a little, but his heart almost fainted within him, and his cheeks, fanned to flame by joy and exertion, blanched white as the elder duck's breast.

At last he sighted the church. High, high, above the forest pines towered its dome, and higher, higher still its slender spire was lost in sky and cloud flashed the spire, set with gems of every hue. Astride the ridge, head on side, contemplating the spire he had just set in place, sat the troll. For one moment, King Olaf stood open-mouthed, gazing, lost in admiration and awe, then shouted at the top of his lusty lungs:

"Wind-weather, thou hast set the spire askew."

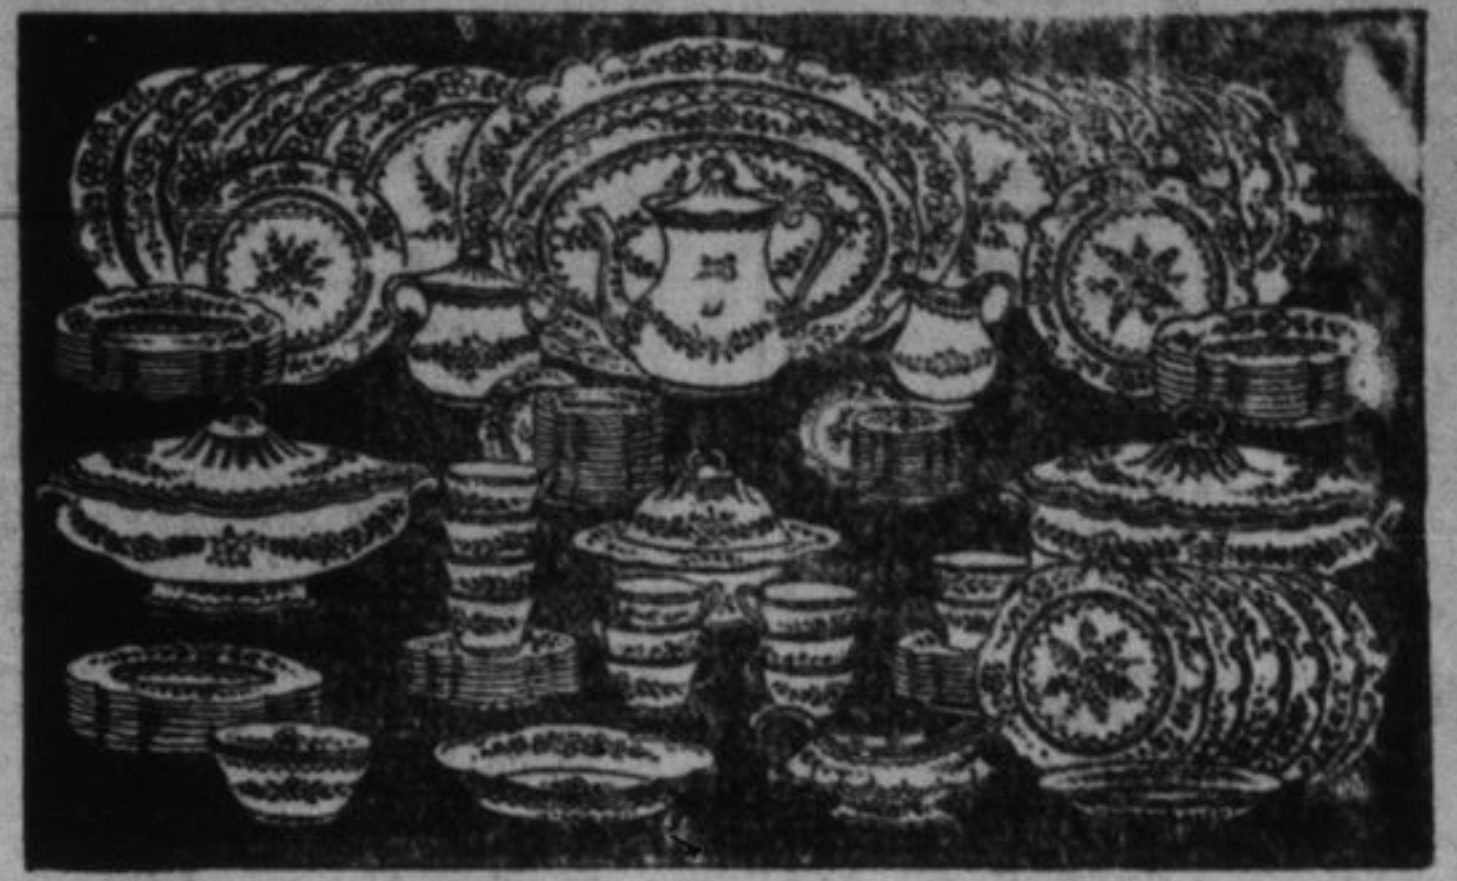

Instantly the troll came tumbling down, shivering into bits of flintstone as he fell, which covered the ground for yards around.

Some time after King Olaf fell on the field of Valhalla, while fighting his faithless subjects who had united with the English and Danes under King Knut, of England. His generosity, goodness and valiant work for Christ were not lost, and as Saint Olaf he is revered by his countrymen.
