The Travellers Life Assurance Company of Canada.

What the Mercantile and Financial Times of New York said of date of February 14, 1910, said of the above Company:

SHOULD APPEAL TO CONSERVATIVE INVESTORS.

Sound Investment Value of the Stock of the Travellers Life Assurance Company of Canada, Which is Now Being Organized by Influential Financial Interests in Montreal Under the Brightest and Most Encouraging Auspices—Why Life Insurance Stocks Are Good Investments and Why This One is Particularly So.

In its purely commercial aspects, life insurance is more solidly buttressed than any other business. The assumption of mortality, of interest, of expenses and contingencies are such that with good management it cannot fail. It is unlike any other business in the matter of over-production, of miscalculating, the demand, or in purchasing raw material at too high a price. The seller, not the buyer, fixes the price. The seller produces no more than he can dispose of, and he, therefore, never has any unsalable stock on his hands or any which he must sell at a sacrifice. We repeat that a life insurance business, based on correct principles and under good management, cannot fail, and a general appreciation of this fact on the part of the investing public, makes the stocks of all good life insurance companies command a very good premium whenever they are offered for sale.

After the Armstrong committee disclosures in 1906 we see Thomas F. Ryan purchasing a controlling interest in the Equitable Life Assurance Society of New York, the total capitalization of which organization is only $100,000, for a sum said to be in excess of $5,000,000, and some months ago this controlling interest was sold to interests identified with J. P. Morgan & Co., at a price unstated, but which, it is reasonable to suppose, was somewhat in excess of that which Mr. Ryan paid. Life insurance stocks are seldom or practically never traded in on the open market, and if any are offered for sale they are quickly snapped up. These facts make the stocks of all promising young organizations particularly attractive to conservative investors, and we will, therefore, no doubt, be doing many of our readers a service by directing their attention to a sound and promising life insurance flotation, now being organized here in Montreal by powerful and influential interests.

We refer to the Travellers Life Assurance Company, which received a Dominion charter some time ago, and will in the near future receive a license to do business in all parts of the country. This will be strictly an old line company, and being purely Canadian in character, its management will be strong Canadian business men and its funds will materially assist in the development of the resources of the country.

The Travellers Life will have offices at 60 Notre Dame street, Montreal, and will have an authorized capitalization of $1,000,000, and will begin business with a fully paid capital of $200,000, and a surplus of $250,000. Its officials and directors will be among Canada's wealthiest, most prominent and most influential financiers and business men, and will be fully as important as any that have ever headed any Canadian life insurance

COUGHED ALL NIGHT

This Recipe Was Tried, Cure Followed in 5 Hours.

A prominent medical man, who suffered with a severe cough and cold on the lungs, often being kept awake all night, and weakened by loss of sleep, finally discovered a simple formula which will cure any cough in five hours by the clock. It is a laxative tonic cough syrup which can be made at home by anyone and the formula is here given for the benefit of those who pass sleepless nights in painful paroxysms. Those who have tried it say it is magical, and beats any high-priced, slow-acting cough medicine ever sold.
Mix in a bottle one-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardiol, and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Take twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then take one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times a day. Give children less according to age. This will tone up and rid the system of deep-seated coughs every time.

MUST CUT IT OUT

KISSED TOO MUCH BY HIS OWN WIFE.

Mr. Lowenthal Says She Makes Life a Burden by Hanging Always on His Lips.

New York, Feb. 17.—Everything was running smoothly with Mr. and Mrs. Sol Lowenthal, of No. 981 Forest avenue, according to the husband, until his wife developed a fondness for long distance occlusion.
In explaining their domestic differences to Magistrate Corrigan in Morrisani Court Mr. Lowenthal said he liked a kiss as well as the next man, but he had grown weary of the ten minute brand demanded by his wife. He said she left him last Saturday and declared she would not return, whereupon he had summoned her to court for an explanation.
"My husband doesn't love me any more, and that's why I went away," said Mrs. Lowenthal.
"What makes you think so?" asked the court.
"He never kisses me any more."
"If she'll cut down the length of her kisses we'll be just as happy as ever," said Mr. Lowenthal, "but I can't make a living for the two of us and the baby if she insists on dragging each other out for ten or fifteen minutes."
"How often does she kiss you?"
"Every time I turn around, your honor. I could stand little ones all right, but no man wants a woman hanging around his neck every minute he's in the house."
"If I pick up a paper I have to put it down and get busy because Myrtle won't move until she gets a salute."
"It's haven't you forgotten something, Sol?" every few minutes.
"I've grown so used to kissing her that the other day when I started out of a butcher shop absentmindedly and the butcher asked me the same thing, I rushed back and tried to kiss him, but he threatened me with a cleaver."
"You should be glad that your wife thinks so much of you," said Magistrate Corrigan.
"I know, your honor, but it's getting to be more like punishment every day. I've been kissed to a standstill. She even went so far as to bring an engaged couple to the house to show me how spunky couples behaved. I made a protest because I'm not running an occlusion plant."
"I just think the world of him, judge," said Mrs. Lowenthal, advancing toward her husband.
"Watch her, judge," shouted Mr. Lowenthal. "She's going to have a slap."
"You two think too much of each other to be quarrelling," said the court. "Run along home now to the baby and forget your troubles, and report to me in a week. And, Mrs. Lowenthal, it might be well for you to go on an anti-occlusion diet."

BOSTON VERY ANGRY

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN A THIEF, AND ADAMS A DEFAULTER.

Idols of the Revolution That Are Smashed With Vigor by a Very Candid Historian.

New York American.
Boston, Feb. 14.—James Henry Stark, a local historian, has provoked much criticism and abuse by statements contained in his latest book "The Loyalists of Massachusetts and the Other Side of the American Revolution." Mr. Stark calmly asserts his book contains truths which he has gathered after years of research and which other historians have wilfully passed by.
Its pages teem with facts that demolish the altar erected to Massachusetts' heroes of the revolution and are extremely humiliating to families who pride themselves on the immaculacy of their ancestry.
Patriotic societies in Boston, such as "The Sons of the Revolution," are deeply aroused as the book contains many damaging statements that cannot be refuted.
Concerning the causes of the American Revolution, Mr. Stark's book says:
"In Virginia the revolutionary movement of the poor whites, or croakers led by Patrick Henry, was against the planter aristocracy. It was only very slowly and very deliberately that Washington identified himself with the disunion cause."
"Patrick Henry was one of the most unreliable men living. He had been successfully a storekeeper, a farmer and a shopkeeper, but he failed in all these pursuits and became a bankrupt at twenty-four. Then he studied law a few weeks and practised a few years. Finally he embarked on the stormy sea of politics. One day he worked himself into a fine frenzy and in a most dramatic manner demanded, "liberty or death," although he had both freely at his disposal."
"John Adams joined the disunionists probably because he saw that if the revolution was successful there would be great opportunity for advancement under the new government. This proved to be the case, and Adams was given a certain amount of money to go to the town of Boston, of which he was the tax collector. Mr. Adams' sureties had to pay $5,000. Of the Boston massacre the book says:
"The rioters repeatedly challenged the soldiers to fire if they dared, and the torrent of coarse and obscene abuse poured upon the soldiers is astonishing even in its echoes across the century and would furnish material for an appropriate inscription in the Attucks Monument."
"Of the Boston Tea Party he says:
"The illegal seizure of the tea was in a certain sense parallel to the so-called respectable mob which on the eleventh day of August, 1834, destroyed the Charlestown Convict and a year later nearly killed Garrison and made the jail his only place of refuge."
Many of the signers of the Declaration of Independence were smugglers, Mr. Stark asserts, and John Hancock, while having the name of being a "fair" trader, was in reality the owner of one of the smuggling vessels. Concerning Mr. Hancock's connection with Harvard University, Stark writes:
"In 1773 John Hancock was elected treasurer of Harvard College. The amount of college funds paid over to him was upward of fifteen thousand and four hundred pounds, and like his friend, Samuel Adams, he, too, proved to be a defaulter. For twenty years the corporation begged and entreated him to make restitution. They threatened to prosecute him and also to put his brand in mill, as Adams' was, but it was of no avail. He turned deaf ear to their entreaties, and it was only after his death, in 1793, that his heirs made restitution to the college, when a settlement was made, in 1795, in which the college lost five hundred and twenty-six dollars interest."

President Josiah Quincy, of Harvard, later asserted that these defalcations hurt the university considerably, and that it would be grateful to pass over in silence the extraordinary course he pursued in his official relation to Harvard College had truth and ability to history permitted.

CHARGE OF A THIEF

SAID JUDGE WAS AS BAD AS CROOKS

Who are Still Enjoying Their Liberty—Respect for the Bench Called for a Heavy Sentence.
Montreal, Que., Feb. 17.—Judge Choquet was somewhat dazed in the police court, when he was informed by a thief that he was just as bad as a lot of other bad crooks who are still enjoying their liberty.
Arthur Paquette, who had stolen a ring from a sleeping guest at an East End dance hall, was in the box, and, having been proven guilty, was remanded until Tuesday for sentence.
When leaving the box he remarked to the judge that there were lots of worse crooks than him enjoying their freedom, whereupon the judge replied that if they were arrested they would get their deserts.
"What's the use, you are just as bad as the rest of them," was the way Paquette came back at the judge.
"Repeat what you said," responded the judge, and Paquette did.
Not so much on his own account as out of respect for the bench Paquette was given four years in penitentiary. He had previously served two terms.
