Thursday night, organized by Miss Hooper and Miss Mabel Dalton. The occasion was the tin wedding of Mr and Mrs. Richard Hooper, and the objective point their pretty home on Albert street. The house was a veritable garden of lovely flowers, sent from friends in town and friends out of town, to the bride and groom, who have such a widely-reaching circle. The party was practically the same as stormy night as that of Thursday, five years ago, when the wooden wedding day was celebrated. Some faces were missed at Thursday's gathering, chief-February Carpet Sale ly that of Mrs. Yates, "dear Mrs. Yates," who is the life and heart of These go well together. . .
