$12 A WEEK BOOKKEEPER LED MILLIONAIRE LIFE.

That is, He Spent Thousands as to Manner Born—Now the Bank's Wrecked.

Boston, March 3.—It develops that George W. Coleman, who is alleged to have embezzled $144,000 from the National City Bank of Cambridge, Mass., of which he was bookkeeper, was in receipt of but $600 a year. He is twenty-four years of age and had been with the bank for six years. He dressed well, took lady friends to the theatre, owned an automobile, and hired a chauffeur whose wages were double those of his employer—and nobody investigated to find where he got his money.

Coleman, who had been last heard of in Kansas City, unexpectedly returned to the city Friday and surrendered.

The discovery of the shortage in the accounts was the direct result of an examination of the books, which was being made by officials of the Harvard Trust company, which had nearly completed negotiations for the absorption of the National City bank. The charge is made that some of the books had not been balanced for months. The cashier admits he took the figures of the teller and bookkeeper, in weekly bank statements, without verification.

Young as he was, the defaulting bookkeeper appears to have been living a remarkable life on a salary of $1,233 a week.

His attorney admits Coleman was fleeced of $40,000 in an attempt to break a faro bank in New York, to which he was lured by the same gang of swindlers that did Cashier Walker, of the New Britain, Conn., bank, and Dr. Muir, a New York physician, out of thousands of dollars.

The swindlers recognized him as a good and easy thing when he lost $10,000 in wagers on the last Boston city election.

It is also said that there were three women who lacked for nothing while Coleman's money could buy it.

One of these is described to have been Mrs. Marguerite Taylor, a young Cambridge widow, who has now disappeared.

Another luxury in which the young bookkeeper indulged was a suite of rooms at the Hotel Lenox, where he entertained without regard to cost, where no cigars under 50 cents each were smoked, and each guest began with a bottle of champagne. Princely suppers were served almost nightly.

It is said Coleman thought nothing of dropping $1,000 in on a flying visit to the curb market, and always was looking to repeat the haul of $30,000 which he made two years ago.

Whispers are being heard now of strange revels at the bank in the night hours. Whiskey and women played the principal parts, and one of the chief amusements is declared to have been boxing bouts between the women, who pummeled themselves dressed in correct ring fashion.

Lawson Lockwood, one of Coleman's closest friends, says there are many young men in Cambridge and Boston who had been devoutly hoping Coleman would never be brought back, as the revelations that might be made would shake the social circles of Cambridge through and through.

"Money was nothing to Coleman. He was never without $3,000, or $4,000 in his pocket, and often carried as much as $15,000. Men had little difficulty in obtaining money from him. Women had barely to ask."

To Be Hungry.
Sir Ernest Shackleton, who so nearly reached the South Pole, told a fashionable audience in London the other day, what it feels like to be really hungry. In his diary, written during the last stage of the journey, he had recorded the entry "Very hungry; dreaming of food all night and thinking of food all day." His party had, he said, been hungry for three months at that time with only one full meal and that on Christmas day.

If one of the party dropped a crumb from the one biscuit allowed him daily, he would wet the tip of his finger and pick it up so that not a morsel might escape. The men, Shackleton said, often asked each other how it was that starving people in cities did not break into bake shops and help themselves. If there had been a bake shop within reach of Shackleton and his followers during their period of semi-starvation they certainly would have helped themselves.

Melroy Pettit, Winona, one of the best-known fruit growers in Canada, died, Thursday morning, after an illness of two days. Mr. Pettit was born in Saltfleet sixty-seven years ago and had lived in this district all his life. A widow and three daughters survive.

WILL BE GIVEN TO TARIFF ADJUSTERS

Who Have Come From Washington to Ottawa—The Consul-General is Giving the Spread.

Ottawa, March 3.—To-night United States Consul-General Foster will tender an informal dinner in honor of Messrs. W. O. Emery, chemist, and C. M. Pepper, journalist, both from Washington, who got here at noon. This special tariff commission from the United States government was met at the station by Mr. Foster and driven around the city. This afternoon they made an informal call on Sir Wilfrid Laurier. They will be here at least until Sunday, at present it cannot be said how long it will take them to discuss the important tariff issues the commission wants to get information about. Sir Wilfrid and Finance Minister Fielding will be amongst those at the dinner.

The annual meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses is being held at Government House with delegates from all over Canada present and Earl Grey presiding. John Fraser, honorary treasurer, reports that the financial affairs are in a very satisfactory state. There is a balance to the credit of the Lady Minto Cottage hospital fund of $6,272.

Playing with a box of strychnine pills, yesterday, Marjory, the fourteen-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Blackney, of this city, led to her pet dog, and ate the others herself. Both child and dog died last night.

The first rabies scare felt in this city came, this morning, when a little black and white fox terrier, suddenly went mad on Nepean street among a crowd of over one hundred school children, who were on their way to classes. Foaming and frothing at the mouth the animal ran amuck along the street, frightening the residents and creating a panic among the children. Fortunately no one was bitten.

Police Constable James O'Brien arrived on the scene and sent a bullet into the dog's head. He will be examined at the biological laboratory at the experimental farm.

PREACHER "LED ASTRAY"

By a Member of His Congregation at Raglan.

Denbigh, March 1.—Ellis Wager, teacher, has quit housekeeping, and Mrs. Wager and the children have left Denbigh to take a winter with her parents near Deseronto. Mr. Wager intends also to the general rearing of parents and pupils, only to remain here during the present school term and to leave at the beginning of the midsummer vacation.

Rev. J. Rebie had quite an unpleasant experience on Saturday before last. He had held service in the Lutheran church in Raglan township the preceding Friday and intended to connect service at Maynooth on the following Sunday. A member of his Raglan congregation offered to accompany him and to show him a much shorter winter route than the one usually travelled. They left their quarters in Raglan early on Saturday morning and, drove several hours, when the guide admitted that they were astray and not going in the right direction for Maynooth. Getting an opportunity to enquire, their suspicions were verified, but they were favored with the apparent by plain direction to reach their destination yet about dark. However, they got bewildered and lost again in the lumber roads crossing one another, and they finally concluded that they either would have to spend a night in the woods, or take their back tracks before.

They decided on the latter course and safely arrived at their starting point again at 9.30 o'clock p.m.

Emil Stein and family, of Saskatchewan, who enjoyed a couple of months visiting amongst their numerous relatives and friends in their former home town of Denbigh, are lately intending to take the train for their present place of abode. They were accompanied by Miss Jennie Dool, who intends to leave them at Winnipeg and to make the capital of Manitoba her future home.

Gustav Stein sold his farm near White Lake in Ashby, Lockwood, containing 157 acres to Walter J. Slater, and is disposing by private sales of whatever live stock or other chattels, he is not going to take along to New Ontario, where he intends to remove in a few weeks. George W. Pennock has moved off the farm. He lately sold near Snake Creek. Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson are away on a visit to friends, at Verona and vicinity.

Miss Mary Greer, who spent a few months with her parents and other relatives here has returned to Mason City, Iowa. Miss Melinda Lockwood, of Napawan, on the sick list, and has returned home to recuperate for a while with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Lockwood.

Issue a Challenge.
A member of the K. & P. railway hockey team, has asked the Whig to issue a challenge on behalf of the team, for a game with the "Trunkers" team. He says that the "Trunkers" were given several challenges during the season, but that they could not get any answer. There will not likely be much more ice, but the K. & P. hockey players would like to get the game on if possible. Last year, two teams indulged in a series of games, and it provided some good sport.

Game To-night Postponed.
The warm weather is playing havoc with the hockey games scheduled in the city this week. The game called for to-night between the Granites and the Y.I.C.B.A., has been postponed, owing to the soft ice at the Palace rink. The followers of hockey would like very much to have a couple more weeks of cold weather so that the rest of the games might be played off.

Sore throats Relieved.

Market Poorly Attended.
The market was very poorly attended on Thursday morning. Bad roads is given as the cause of the small attendance. The farmers say that the roads in some sections are in a terrible state, and that it is no wonder that the farmers are staying at home.

Matthew Sheard formerly a well-known Toronto architect, died suddenly on Thursday. Mr. Sheard had been suffering from chronic kidney trouble for some time. He was in his seventieth year and a bachelor.

GOWNS MAKE THE WOMAN AS EXPERIMENTS PROVE.

Brooklyn Social Reformer Garbs Irish Cook in Silks and Satins and Austrian Count is Smitten.

New York, March 3.—Lawyer, linguist, suffragist, fresh-air apostle, anti-meat crusader and buttermilk advocate are a few of the descriptive terms that have been applied to Mrs. Alina Webster Powell, the "busiest woman in Brooklyn." And now social reformer must be added.

One of Mrs. Powell's pet theories is that the social barrier consists simply in a difference in bankroll, and that, given the wealth and raiment of a social leader, a poor girl can gain as much prestige in society as a millionaire.

To that end Mrs. Powell went down on the east side some days ago, selected two comely young women for experimental purposes, decked them out in her most costly Parisian finery and introduced them to her unsuspecting guests at a masquerade ball at her home on Washington's birthday.

The two east side girls proved such a success that Mrs. Powell decided to experiment further. A few days later at another function at her home, she decked out her maid, Mary Corrigan, in her choicest raiment, and gave her the range of the drawing-room during the entire evening.

Mary had the most stunning figure any one in the room," said Mrs. Powell, to-day. "Count Frederick Strosch, of Austria, another man, whose fortune is estimated at $8,000,000, and many other men and women of culture and refinement were much taken with her. They thought she was the daughter of an Irish landowner, and that a single person suspected her identity."

VARSITY WILL WITHDRAW

From Hockey if Fair Play is Not Given.

Under the heading, "Varsity is Up In Arms," the Toronto Globe says: "The Intercollegiate Hockey Union executive met in Montreal on Monday and arranged the play-off for the tie among McGill, Queen's and Varsity. They decided:

- (1) That Queen's should be given the bye, as they were last year's champions of the league.
- (2) That McGill and Varsity play off in Ottawa, and that the winners play Queen's in Ottawa.
- (3) That the gate receipts of a game should be equally divided between the two competing clubs.

Varsity's representative objected to each of these proposals as unfair to Varsity, but was overruled by the representatives from Laval, Queen's and McGill.

Varsity stood for a draw for the bye with no favor, and that if McGill and Varsity had to meet they should play on Queen's ice, which is intercollegiate ice, at Kingston, about midway between the two cities, Toronto and Montreal (McGill).

Varsity maintained that the expenses of two contesting teams should be lumped and half borne by each club. As it is, a match in Ottawa means a $200 trip for Varsity, and a $75 trip for McGill, with a very slim chance of any gate receipts.

In view of the unfairness of the ruling the University of Toronto athletic directorate, after a full discussion, this afternoon, authorized the sending of the following telegram to V. W. Crawford, secretary C.I.H.U., Kingston:

"Acting on authority from the University of Toronto athletic directorate, Varsity Hockey Club protests that the action of the executive in giving Queen's a bye without a draw, and in discriminating against Varsity in the matter of time, expense and distance by ordering the tie in Ottawa, is unjust. Varsity demands that a draw be made for the bye, and a fair arrangement made as to games for the play-off. Otherwise Varsity will withdraw from intercollegiate hockey."

Vaccination Against Typhoid.
Montreal Herald.
Typhoid is the special scourge of armies. The massing of large numbers of men, the conditions of camp-life and the lack of facilities for medical attention make the disease particularly to be dreaded by military authorities, both for the virulence it develops under the ordinary conditions of actual campaigning, and the rapidity with which it spreads through a regiment, a brigade, or an army corps as opportunity offers. During the war between Spain and the United States, there were over twenty thousand cases of typhoid and fifteen hundred deaths during the three and a half months when one hundred and twenty thousand men were in camp.

It is, therefore, peculiarly fitting that the testing of an antitoxin for typhoid should have been enthusiastically undertaken by the officers of the medical corps of the United States army. The tests, which were begun on Monday of this week, consisted in the inoculation of three hundred men of the coast artillery forces, who volunteered for the purpose, with the new virus which had been the subject of long experiments in the government laboratories at Washington.

Within a few hours after the "vaccination" the subject experiences a slight headache, backache and feverishness, which passes off within twenty-four hours and leaves him, if he is healthy, immune to attacks of typhoid. Many demonstrations and much discussion will be required before the claims in behalf of the serum can be proved or disproved, but the discovery of an effective method of combatting typhoid will deserve to rank with the great benefactors of mankind.

Rhoda Higgins and Florence Nickerson were committed for trial in the Toronto police court on charges of petty larceny. The women were agents for the notorious Tolman, New York, who has had a number of branches in various cities in Canada.

The Brantford trades and labor council adopted a resolution asking the provincial government to adopt wider preventive measures in stamping out tuberculosis, which the council claims is very prevalent among workmen.

Schiffer, bookkeeper for Booth Hyman Co., with offices at No. 16 Elliott street, Buffalo, N.Y., shot himself in the head in the lavatory of Flynn Brothers' saloon, Seneca street, on Thursday morning. He is dying at the emergency hospital.

POSSIBILITY IN PEAT.

And Canada Can Produce Vast Tons Of It.
It has been estimated, says Dr. Haanel, in an article in Industrial Canada, that there are 36,000 square miles of peat bog in Canada capable of producing a fuel equivalent to that contained in fourteen billion tons of coal.

Various efforts have been made, at different times, to turn these resources to account, but so far without any great measure of success. Lately the dominion government has turned its attention to the matter and, with a view of learning what can be done, a peat bog covering 300 acres was some time since acquired near Caledonia Springs, Ont. This action was followed by levelling and drainage works for the erection of storage accommodation for 300 tons of dried peat and the installation of machinery for the purpose of preparing the peat for use as fuel well before next month.

The experiment will be watched with interest. Next to the development of electrical energy, and the application of the same to the making of steel, there is nothing which contains more of promise for the industrial development of Ontario than the possible utilization of this bog fuel. If the experiment at Caledonia Springs proves successful even the Trent Valley canal may prove of value as a means of transporting peat from Holland River marsh to various points served by the canal.
