WOMEN DROWNED

WHILE THEY WERE CROSSING FLOODED RIVER.

Tragedy Near Teswater—Mother, Daughter and Guest Victims—Boat Swept Away by Current.

Teswater, Ont., March 23.—A triple drowning accident occurred at Sample's farm, four miles from here, yesterday, when Mrs. Sample, her daughter Christian, and Mrs. Elliott, a relative from Liverpool, Eng., were drowned in the Teswater River. Mrs. Elliott's daughter, Miss Elliott, was the only one of the party saved.

The river runs through the Sample farm, just below the Louse, and they intended rowing up the river and crossing over to a neighbor's but owing to the swollen condition of the stream and the strong current at this spot, the boat was swept down the river and overturned before they had taken hold of the oars.

The accident was seen by Miss Kate Sample, and she immediately called her brother, who managed to rescue Miss Elliott as she was being swept around a bend in the river.

The child was in his buggy, about four feet from the kitchen stove and was playing with a ruler having a string attached. It is supposed the string caught fire from the stove and then ignited the clothing and a quilt in the buggy. When the mother returned to the house, after an absence of a few minutes at the barn, the child was dead every stitch of clothing being burned from the body.

Use Light Plant Waste Steam.

Some years ago, ex-City Engineer Kirkpatrick, now of Queen's School of Mining, reported on the cost of utilizing the waste steam of the light, heat and power plant for the heating of the city buildings, and also for heating a couple of blocks of stores and houses in the vicinity. The ex-engineer considered that the investment would be a good one. At present the waste steam goes into the harbor at the foot of Queen street. A number of aldermen would like to have this matter fully laid before them, before being asked to decide upon the present recommendation of the city property committee regarding the heating of the city buildings.

DEFENDS THE TARIFF

BEST REVENUE GETTER UNITED STATES EVER HAD.

Attitude Towards Canada—Mr. Taft Hopes It Will Not Be Necessary to Apply the Maximum Rates.

Providence, R.I., March 23.—With Senator Aldrich seated at his left hand, President Taft earnestly defended the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill in his address at the annual dinner of the New England Manufacturing Jewelers' and Silversmiths' Association. Mr. Taft received a most enthusiastic greeting. His mention of Senator Aldrich's name was the signal for an outburst of cheers. His defence of the new tariff was frequently applauded.

The president also expressed the hope that it would not be necessary to apply the maximum tariff rates against Canada, thus bearing out the reports of the Albany conference of Sunday, that the negotiations with the dominion government had taken a more favorable turn.

"I can't go on the floor of the house or senate," said the president, "so I have to accept opportunities like this to give vent to my views. At the recent extra session of congress we passed a new tariff bill, which has been the subject, many say, of considerable discussion. But the proof of the pudding is in the eating. Seven months of the new tariff law have proved a more favorable turn."

"Second, it has by the returns shown that it has the largest free list."

"Third, it has shown that the rates of the Dingley bill have been materially reduced."

"Fourth, by the creation of a customs court it has provided a means for the speedy and just administration of the customs law."

"Fifth, it has provided for our trade with the Philippines—a measure of justice which should have been given as far back as 1900."

"Sixth, it has furnished to the executive, by means of the maximum and minimum principle, a leverage to secure from all foreign countries fair treatment for American products without any undue discrimination, evidence of which had been cropping out in the tariff laws of a number of nations."

"Seventh, a new tariff law has provided a permanent tariff board to administer this new law we have proceeded to great prosperity. Wage earners have all they can do and at unusually high rates of pay. There has been some complaint about high prices, but I do not think they have been so high as to cause suffering. Our opponents have been attempting to charge high prices to the new tariff law. But the recent high prices have been in those industries with respect to which the tariff rates were either lowered or altogether removed."

"To put the blame on the poor old tariff bill, is to use a moderate expression, unjust."

President Taft then proceeded to review the proposed legislation he has recently recommended to congress. He declared he had attempted as much as he could to carry out the Roosevelt policies. He asserted also that he was attempting so far as he could to carry out the pledges of the party platform.

HOGS HELPED HER OUT.

How the Woman Got Out of an Indian.

Kansas City Journal.

The pioneer Kansas women had some hard times. To begin with, the neighbors were always several miles away, and many a woman was left alone at home all day while her husband was busy in the fields or working in the timber.

Over in Brown county a story is told about the settlement of the Kickapoo Reserve. Naturally the proximity of the Indians often caused the settlers' wives a great deal of worry and fear.

An Indian and whiskey were always ready to mix in these days.

One day a big ugly Indian staggered up to the door of a farm house and pounded it hard. The door was opened by the farmer's wife. She was alone.

"Nothing here," said the woman, trying to add to the meaning by making motions.

"Me hungry," grunted the Indian again. He could hardly keep his feet, and leaned heavily against the house for support.

"Nothing here," said the woman again, much worried.

"Me hungry," fussed the drunken aborigine.

"Nothing here," said the woman, another time. She saw that time for action had come and shouted at him: "Go away—get away—no stay here—get away."

The Indian grunted a little more, but he was too drunk to quarrel, and finally turned around and staggered over to a small fruit tree in the yard, under which he lay down and was quickly asleep.

It was still early in the day and the woman was sure that the Indian would awaken before her husband came home. She did not scream and wring her hands and go into hysterics. She put her wits to working.

First she went to the barn and got an armful of corn, which she shucked. Then she tipped to the tree and scattered the cobs all over the drunk on's nose, and then made a trail of corn to the barn lot. She opened the gates and called to the hogs. About thirty hungry shoats, to whom corn was a luxury, ambled joyously forth. They licked the trail clean and came on to the sleeper, rooted about him, and was a show worth seeing.

There was a mixup of shoats and Indian, a wild yell, and a very undignified but determined race on the part of the Indian to put as much distance as he could in the shortest possible time between himself and the hungry pigs. That Indian never bothered that farm again.

Corrected.

Detroit Free Press.

At a window in the business department of a Boston daily there recently presented herself a trim looking servant who, offering a small advertisement, said:

"Tomorrow's paper, please, and for three days thereafter."

"In the 'want' or 'personal' column?" asked the employee.

"Have you no 'wish' column?" asked the young woman.

"No what?" queried the clerk, puzzled.

"I simply wish a situation as lady's maid," haughtily explained the girl. "That's all. It's the shortest case of want. Is there no newspaper in this highly cultured city printed in the English language?"

Did as He Was Told.

An unpeccable constituent of a Chicago alderman called upon the latter at his office, one day and requested the loan of a dollar. A two-dollar bill was the smallest the alderman had. This he handed to the caller, saying:

"Go to the cigar stand downstairs, get a fifteen cent cigar, keep a dollar and give the change."

In a few minutes the visitor reappeared, puffing contentedly at a cigar, and handed the alderman 85 cents. Noticing a peculiar expression on the alderman's face, he withdrew the cigar from his lips long enough to inquire:

"Did you mean that the cigar was for you or me?"

"Get out of here!" was all the disgusted politician could say.

After La Grippe

"I had suffered several weeks with LaGrippe. Had pains in my head and eyes. It felt as though there was a heavy weight on the top of my head, until it seemed that my brain would burst. I was so nervous that I could not rest or sleep. When I dozed off I would awake with a sudden jerking of my whole body. Dr. Miles' Nerve, Heart Remedy and Nerve and Liver Pills cured me. A number of friends have since realized the same benefits."

MRS. ALVIN H. LOCKS,
Seabrook, N. H.

The after effects of LaGrippe are often more serious than the disease, as it leaves the system in a weakened condition that invites more serious troubles, such as pneumonia, etc.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine should be taken for some time to thoroughly restore nerve strength.
