NO PROVINCIAL AID.

If anyone expected Sir James Whitney to become lost in his admiration of Queen's University, on the occasion of his late visit, and promise it something he had not contemplated, he must have been disappointed. The premier said a good deal, but he carefully avoided saying anything upon the endowment question, which was the great desideratum. Evidently the Londoners did not construe the situation right when they swept down upon Sir James and led him to understand that the Western University expected the same treatment as Queen's had been accorded.

Then it was that the premier broke the spell long enough to remark that in his opinion Queen's would make a huge mistake if it separated itself from the Presbyterian church. In effect he said that the government would not grant aid to other than the provincial university, and that all other colleges and centres of learning would have to depend on their friends as heretofore for the financial support which they required. This declaration will have its powerful effect, in view of the fact that the committee from the church, having the subject under review, was so nearly divided in the vote.

It may be that some modification may be made in the constitution of the college—the opponents of separation will concede that—but it is by no means certain that the recommendation of the committee will be adopted by the General Assembly.

MORTGAGING OUR PROPERTY.

"In Toronto, in Winnipeg, and in Montreal within the past six months," says the Ottawa Journal, "large money by-laws have been voted upon by the people and carried, the total vote recorded in each city amounting to less than five per cent. of the voters on the list. In Toronto two-thirds of a million dollars was voted recently, only one per cent. of the men on the civic voting list going to the trouble of recording their votes."

What is the meaning of all this? Are the property-owners, who are supposed to be deeply affected, or deeply interested, indifferent with regard to the result? Or are they insufficiently informed? A money by-law, when passed, implies that a mortgage will be placed upon the rateable property, and that it remains so long as the civic debt endures.

Sometimes the vote is taken at a time when the voters' list is not so clean, or as free from errors, as it should be, and then the spectacle is witnessed of persons voting who have no right to do so, and even the dead are raised or impersonated without protest or objection. And the property owners, who will have to bear the burden of the civic debt, do not seem to realize that they are being hypnotized or hammered into silence.

"As men cannot be whipped to the polls," adds the Journal, "and as the vote of men forced to the polls through fear of legal consequences, would not probably be of much illuminating value, the plan of requiring a certain percentage of the total voting strength of the municipality to be recorded before a money by-law can pass seems to be the best possible way of overcoming the present widespread civic apathy as shown in Toronto, Winnipeg, Montreal, recently, and in other Canadian cities also."

Strange, isn't it, that the men who value their property, and work so hard to acquire it, should be so careless as to the manner in which it shall be encumbered by a civic debt or liability.

CUTTING OFF THE LICENSES.

The license commissioners have performed their allotted task of reducing the licensed places by three, and have cut off at least two hotels which have not given offence, in that during the last license year there has not been an illegal sale of liquor by them. There should be some governing conditions under the circumstances. The house that can be regarded as a public one should (1) provide accommodation for the people of an acceptable kind; and (2) it should be conducted with a wholesome regard for the law and its provisions. The hotels that have the more fully complied with these requirements should have had first consideration with the commissioners. But have they? The answer is obvious to any one who reads the records of the police court, or scans its published list of convictions.

To the men who have been fairly or unfairly deprived of their licenses there is the consolation that they can still make a living. One can run a good public house—public to the extent of accommodating the patrons with good rooms and food—and can win a support that was simply impossible when it was recognized as a tavern. There is a hotel in Bowmanville which teaches this lesson most emphatically. It was obliged, when the people voted for local option, to close its bar. With a change of proprietorship, as well as tactics the business prospered. The hotel became the resort of those who valued home comforts free from the temptations of the bar, and made it a point to put in the night at Bowmanville rather than at nearby towns where local option did not prevail.

More remarkable still the landlord demonstrated the fallacy that could attend a sale of liquor a hotelman could not succeed. He cut down the rate per day, and still made money. Herein is a message to a certain alderman that he should ponder well. He opposed a reduction in the number of licenses to be issued in Kingston because he said the city could not do with less hotel accommodation. The experience of Bowmanville is that its chief hotel is the better without the license, and the same would be the experience of any other hotel man who ran his business so that the people would get just what they wanted and all they paid for.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Gen. Lake says that the prohibition of liquor from the canteen in Canadian militia camps worked well on the whole last summer. He ought to be a competent witness.

The Grocers' Guild, having escaped from the coils of the court, proposes to fight for tariffs, agreements and combines. It had better be careful. The new act is far-reaching.

The closure is needed in some of the churches as well as in parliament. Some way should be found of ending the discourses of those who do not seem to know when their talk should cease to flow.

The Kingston police must be well disciplined when they are in such demand for special service in the surrounding towns. The chiefs at Nanapanee and Trenton got their training in this city.

The lords must feel better now that they have accepted and passed the budget they not so long since threw out. The one thing which the appeal to the people has made clear is that the upper-house must be "reformed."

There is a Methodist church in Winnipeg in which the elaborate ceremonial of the Polish Catholic church takes place regularly. A remarkable circumstance, in view of what has occurred recently in Quebec. The religionists are more liberal in the west.

The pictures of William O'Brien, the thorn in the flesh of Mr. Redmond, shows a very different man to the one who visited Kingston some years ago and offered for his indiscreet talk. He is opposed to the man he then championed.

The Toronto World demands that the province sustain but one university, and that if it has money to spare it be spent in other ways than on higher education. Is the one university equal to the requirements of this province? Can its work, on a ponderous scale, be as effective as that of several institutions?

The British navy will provide for the equipment of their warships to burn oil or fuel. Oil stations will be erected in all the colonies, and the oil fields will be exploited and developed under government direction. It is added that "Canada should be the principal contributor of oil for naval purposes before long."

A Shabby Trick.

Brockville Recorder.

Two sons of William S. Connell, formerly proprietor of the Central hotel, here, who are putting themselves through Queen's as medical students, were victims of a shabby trick at the hands of an Erie, Pa., man who wrote offering them work for the summer checking freight. On receipt of his letter the boys, who had just passed their examinations, bought tickets and left for Erie. Upon arriving there they were informed that they would have to wait until May 20th, and returned by next train poorer, but wiser.

Has Gone to Regina.

H. Ross Wilkinson, fourth-class clerk in the local post office, resigned on Saturday and left at noon, to-day, for Regina, where he will take a position. He has been six years in the post office service. This morning the clerk of the local office presented him with a handsome travelling bag as a remembrance. Mr. Wilkinson was a very popular young man and his friends regret that he is leaving Kingston.

Needed Where He Was.

Saturday Evening Post.

Under the municipal commission plan in Des Moines, Iowa, any person who goes through the proper formalities can announce himself as a candidate for one of the five commissionships and make the race at the primaries. This year, of the twenty-five or thirty candidates, there are negroes, one smart colored lawyer, and the other an aged negro preacher. They were speaking at a meeting one night. The young lawyer said: "I deserve the support of the colored men of this town because I am the friend of the colored race. I have kept many a colored man out of the penitentiary when the white lawyers would have railroaded him there, and I have got many a colored man out of the penitentiary after he had been sent there by the white lawyers."

"Fellow citizens," said the aged candidate, "you heard what my friend has just said. You ain't got any business chiding him to be a commissioner. This man ought to stay right where he is, practicing law, if he is so smart about keepin' our folks outen jail."

Bourassa on the Tories.

Montreal Le Devoir.

Floating between the bourgeois and the red bonnet socialism of W. F. Maclean, the conservatives have one time supported and at another time opposed the great corporations, and it is difficult to guess whether the Laurier ministry, if defeated, would be succeeded by conservative, tory retrograde, or progressive government. Until the public see some real difference between the two parties it is not likely that any change will take place.

Joseph Shattell, who claimed to have been robbed in Portland township, denies that he is a Jew. He is a Greek Catholic. He also controverts the charge that he is a tory. He refuses taking action against those who make the charge.

The three hotels that have lost their liquor licenses were not the ones that police court records would have counted against. They were the only three on which the commissioners could agree.

12,800 BARRELS A DAY.

This Will be Output of the New Concern.

When the new 6,000 barrels Flour Mill, which the Maple Leaf Milling company limited, is building at Port Colborne, Ont., is completed, the daily capacity of the company's mills will equal the huge total given above. Already they have mills in operation at Brandon, Kenora, Thorold, St. Catharines and Welland, but the Port Colborne mill will be the largest of them all, with a daily capacity of 6,000 barrels of flour.

In its thoroughly modern equipment, too, as well as in its capacity, the new mill will compare favorably with any in the world.

Its location is without exception the best in Canada. In the first place there will be an unlimited market for its bye-products among the stock-raising Ontario farmers, who grow but little wheat. In the second place, on account of its unique position on the great water and rail transport systems the Maple Leaf Milling company will be able to lay down flour at any of the Atlantic seaports or in the markets of the old world, at a lower price than can any other Canadian Milling company.

With its geographical advantages, its splendid equipment, its experienced management, and plenty of capital, the Maple Leaf Milling company can confidently look forward to a prosperous future, and its preferred stock, now being offered for public subscription, should prove an excellent investment.

A Fascinating Drama.

Manchester, Eng. City News March 12, 1910.

The peopling of great Canadian West is a fascinating drama, whether we view it from the large or the small end of the telescope. From the point of the great railroad builder throwing a steel spine across the continent, or from the point of a little family unit finding its true farm under the aegis of this transportation line.

The line of the Grand Trunk Pacific across Canada is essentially the belt of homes. Who is it that answers the call of the wheat? The young brave, the hopeful, says Miss Agnes Deane, in the March issue of the Magazine of Commerce. The writing tools to write the drama are the strong arms of men and of faith-possessed women. It is a good play for the west to read. The first scene is enacted on the prairie farm where the young soil is turned under to a crop of wheat for the first time since creation's dawn. The second scene is the grain elevator, and against the setting sun, and the waiting wheat train of Grand Trunk cars. Our drama closes with the loaf of bread clutched in the eager grasp of the little child in some crowded city of the old world.

C. P. R. Profits.

A comparison of the C. P. R. financial statement of last month with the corresponding period last year, shows: March, 1910, gross earnings, $7,706,338; working expenses, $5,985,194; net profits, $2,711,171.

In March, 1909 net profits, $1,933,708, and for nine months ended March 31, 1910, the figures are as follows: Gross earnings, $69,513,315; working expenses, $44,333,993; net profits, $25,181,665.

For nine months ended March 31, 1909, there was a net profit of $16,996,780.

The increase in net profits over the same period last year is therefore for March $807,465, and for nine months ended March 31, there was an increase of $8,587,885.
