Goose of the "Coldstreams."

Perhaps the most curious regimental pet on record was Peter, the goose of the Coldstream Guards. Peter served with the regiment throughout the rebellion in Canada, and was a rare favorite with the soldiers. When the guard was mounted each morning Peter always marched with them. One of the most novel sights in London, when the Guards came home, was to see Peter strutting at the head of the regiment when on parade. Unfortunately Peter was run over and killed by a cab while doing "sentrygo," as was his custom, in front of the guard house. His remains are still preserved, his neck being decorated with a collar bearing the words, "Died on duty."

An Honest Confession.

A well-known divine was preaching on Sunday morning on the subject of "The Great and Small Things of Creation."

To illustrate his thought that nothing was either too vast or too tiny to be of interest to Providence, he proceeded in these words: "The creation of this immense universe created also the most infinitesimal atom in it. The architect of these vast mountains fashioned also the tiniest thread of gold running through them. The God who made me made a daisy."—Lit-Bits.

THE KING PAID HIS INCOME TAX.

Didn't Wait Until the Budget Was Signed—Followed Queen Victoria's Example.

New York, May 2.—A cable despatch to the Sun from London says: King Edward did not wait until he had given his assent to the finance bill on Friday, but paid his income tax in full at the rate of fourteen pence in the pound beforehand.

The payment was an entirely voluntary act on the king's part, as it was on the queen's, who was equally prompt, since there is no power to levy upon the crown. For several years after the income tax was introduced, the sovereign did not pay it, but Queen Victoria introduced the custom in order to share the people's burden.

King Edward, when the treasury approached him after he came to the throne, decided to follow his mother's example. The tax officials rigorously guard as a secret the amount of the sovereign's private income.

RUSSIANS FOUGHT POLICE.

Demanding Release of Four Arrested Leaders.

Honolulu, May 2.—Following the arrest of four Russians on the charge of inciting disorder, a mob of 400 of their countrymen surrounded the police station and a battle with the police followed. The mob demanded the release of their leaders and defied the order to disperse. The police brought the fire department to their aid and a stream was turned on the mob which had massed in front of the jail, with women and babies held in front as shields. The fire hose failed to break the mob entirely, and the police drew their clubs and charged. The mob dispersed.

The Russians were brought here by the immigration board of work on the sugar plantation, but refused to work at the wages offered.

RECOVERING LOST RADIUM.

Minute Particles Were Mixed With Dust on Floor.

A good deal of resource was shown by an attendant at the Prince of Wales' hospital at Tottenham, who found that the glass of a tube containing 250 worth of radium was broken, and the contents, hardly enough to cover a three-penny piece, had vanished. The man immediately excluded daylight from the room and groped about on the floor with a fluorescent screen until he discovered fugitive particles of the elusive element mixed with the dust on the floor. The radium was then carefully extracted from the dust, the greater portion of the missing substance being thus recovered. The cause of the breakage is a mystery. It is thought that the glass may have become smashed through the agency of the element itself.

L'ABBE CASGRAIN'S VIEW OF PROF. MACNAUGHTON.

L'Abbe Makes Public Announcement About the ex-Queen's Professor—He Refuses to Make an Apology.

Special to the Whig.

Montreal, May 2.—Controversy over the "Person of Jesus" article written by Prof. Macnaughton, of McGill University, the former Queen's professor, will not die. L'Abbe P. Casgrain, of Quebec, who has taken a distinct stand against the McGill professor's views, is not satisfied with Prof. Macnaughton's latest explanations in the University magazine. In that explanation Prof. Macnaughton called on L'Abbe to apologize for the stand he had taken. Far from that is the reply. The Quebec city theologian throws out hint that he holds the views that Prof. Macnaughton, professor in his own celebrated article should be deposed from the university. Canadian university students he feels should not be exposed to such danger of losing faith in the scriptures.

L'Abbe P. Casgrain makes a public announcement. He says in part: "Notwithstanding wise limitation Prof. Macnaughton was permitted to transgress the scope and purpose of the magazine (university) for the sake of contributing a regrettable paper which has given pain to many good and simple people, and has called forth the strongest protests from Christians of various denominations. Why one may well ask, was an exception made in favor of Prof. Macnaughton and why was he given space in the magazine to proclaim his dangerous views on the Scriptures and thereby expose our Canadian students to regard St. Matthew and St. Luke as 'poets and painters' who at times 'flatterly contradict' each other. That, sir, is a very grave question, to which the editorial committee have not yet given an answer. Their silence is ominous and is my sole reason for interfering in this unpleasant controversy."

Prof. Macnaughton believes the great mystery of the Incarnation, upon which the whole edifice of Christianity rests (and it is revealed truth which cannot be half believed or disbelieved—his paper becomes as unintelligible as it was uncalculated for and should therefore never have appeared in the University Magazine, for no one will contend that it is calculated to foster a belief in this profound mystery.

It is utterly incomprehensible that he should have been allowed to publish his lamentable paper in the accredited organ of three Christian universities. With his personal views on the Scriptures, we have no concern, but when he writes under the "imprimatur" of the distinguished men, who compose the editorial committee of the University Magazine, his statements cannot be ignored.

Happily there exists in Canada, a number of earnest Christians, men of undoubted scholarship, in whose mouths the extravagant utterance of Prof. Macnaughton, would be unthinkable, and it is to them I appeal to unite to protect our Canadian student in our universities from being exposed to the danger of losing their faith in the Scriptures by being erroneously led to believe that they contain many inaccuracies and hopelessly irreconcilable contradictions. So much so indeed, that to quote Prof. Macnaughton's own words, "Any sensible man will justly renounce the attempt to get any detailed story of the birth of Jesus."

Unbelief in the Word of God, is the great enemy threatening Christianity to day, and it behooves all sincere Christians who have at heart the welfare of their country and the future happiness of their children in this world, and the next, to use every endeavor and to employ the divine assistance to combat this terrible evil and prevent it from getting a foothold in our own country, whose religious traditions are very dear to all true Canadians.

Circular Talk.

Success Magazine. The judge's son had just finished his course in law and came home triumphant with his sheepskin in a fine frame. The old judge turned to his son with some wholesome advice. "My son, when you have a case in court and your opponent has the law on his side, you must talk facts, and when he has the facts on his side you must talk law." The young man sat and pondered awhile and then asked, "Father, what must I follow do when both the law and the facts are on my side?" The judge looked wise and replied, "Just talk around and around, my son."

A STABBING AFFRAY LAST NIGHT IN HAMILTON.

Peter Ambo and Maurice Mundy Got Into a Quarrel—Over Remarks Made While Ambo Was Passing.

Hamilton, Ont., May 2.—Peter Ambo, twenty years old, employed at the Gurney-Tilden foundry, is in the hospital and Maurice Mundy, sixteen years old, is under arrest as the result of a stabbing affray which took place at the corner of Simcoe and Mary streets last night. Ambo and a companion were passing the corner when Mundy, and some other youths, made some remarks which led to Ambo striking Mundy. The latter, thereupon, drew a knife and stabbed Ambo in the body. The knife entered the latter's left lung and also slashed him in the left arm. Ambo is expected to recover if there are no complications. Mundy admits the stabbing, but says he intended merely to scare Ambo.

Father Slew His Son.

Louisville, Ky., May 2.—George J. Redmond, a business man, early this morning, fired three shots at his thirty-year-old son, Edmond, killing him almost instantly. Young Redmond is said to have displeased his father by his extravagant habits and inability to hold a position and earn his support. The elder Redmond quietly left the house as the son was dying. When arrested later, by the police, he explained that he wanted with him and when told for the murder of his son, said: "Sure, that's right, I believe I did kill him."

CHILD BADLY BITTEN. Accuses Mother of Grossly Ill-Treating Her.

New York, April 2.—Rosa Petito, eight years old, appeared in a Brooklyn court with her arms and cheeks covered with the prints of human teeth, and her right ear almost torn off. She said her mother, Mrs. Carrie Petito, had kept her locked in the cellar for two days and had made the bites.

When the child was confronted by the mother she screamed and fled to the arms of a court attendant. The mother shrieked and became so violent that she had to be held before she could be seen. In default of $250 bail she was sent to jail and her examination postponed.

The father, Giuseppe Petito, a street cleaner, said: "I don't blame my wife a bit. Rosa would not go to school. She grabs a fence and nobody could tear her loose. My wife no doubt loses her temper. That was bad, but the girl was bad, too. Too bad if the judge sends my wife to prison. We have six children, and they need her."

Rosa's arms were so badly swollen that it is feared blood-poisoning may set in.

HER LIFE IS IN DANGER. Two Attempts Made to Poison Marguerite Carre.

Paris, May 2.—Marguerite Carre, wife of the director of the Opera Comique, received a few days ago, says the Journal, a parcel containing fresh butter. On tasting it she remarked upon the bitter taste. The butter was sent for an analysis, which proved that it contained oxide of zinc.

On Saturday night, after playing in a general rehearsal of "Le Mariage de Telmaque," by Jules Lemaitre, Donlay and Terrasse, Mme. Carre had a bottle of port wine which she invited her women attendants to share with her. One woman drank and immediately shrieked: "Poum! I'm burnt!" A doctor was summoned and he used a stomach pump, after which the woman was put to bed. Mme. Carre only tasted the wine, but found that it burned her mouth.

The bottle and its contents were sent to the municipal laboratory. The police are making an investigation. It is thought that the would-be poisoner is a member of the Opera Comique company playing a minor role.
