MODERNIZING CAIRO

WESTERN PEOPLES ARE REMOVING ITS ORIENTAL AIR.

A Remarkable Mixture of East and West is Found in Egyptian Metropolis—On the Same Street Are Men Riding in Taxicabs and Others on Donkeys—All Sorts and Conditions of Men Are Found Living There.

Twenty-five years ago Cairo was an Oriental city. To-day it is a mixture, an amazing mixture, of East and West. Sit on the terrace of one of the great hotels on the Nile street for half an hour at any time of day and you will see in the passing show the most extraordinary medley that the modern world has known, writes H. Hamilton Fyfe in The London Daily Mail. Here dashes a taxicab, and across the way is a man on a donkey, who looks as if he came straight out of the Book of Exodus. He jogs along with a dignified air. You meet men riding on donkeys on every street. There are standards for these patient animals, just as we have standards for our taxicabs. After the donkey come smart motor-cars and carriages, in which wealthy Cairenes are taking the air. They might be in Piccadilly or the Avenue des Champs-Élysées. Then suddenly there is a stoppage in the traffic. What is that waiting noise? It comes from a body of ragged-looking men, beggars apparently, who are shuffling along three or four abreast. They wear white turbans over a brown cloth skull-cap. Their dirty robes of white or blue reveal bare legs beneath.

Behind them comes a more respectable procession, all men, some in European clothes with the red tar-bush or fez, some in long garments of striped silk, showing at the neck a neat embroidered waistcoat. And see, following them again is a bier covered by a colored cloth and borne upon men's shoulders. It is a funeral, a poor man's funeral. A well-to-do corpse would have a number of mourners carrying silver censers and holding green herbs to go in front of it. This is the last promenade of a man of no account. Yet the beggars cry with a will. "There is no God but Allah, and Mohammed is his prophet," and the police clear the way. The dead man is attracting more attention than he ever did while he was alive.

If you wait long enough you are sure to see the stream of fashionable cars and barouches interrupted by a wedding. First comes a band making Oriental music on brass instruments or bagpipes and tom-toms, then a string of decorated carriages. The bride is completely covered over by gay "Manchester goods."

While the marriage feast is going on the band will play outside the house, which is also profusely decorated. Before the bride joins it the procession takes the bridegroom three times round the quarter in which he lives. Is this a kind of equivalent for the publication of banns? Sometimes the guests do not gaily caparisoned camels, but go of going processionally in an procession will be closed by a group of donkey-riders.

Here in the Sharia Kamel I doubt whether you would see a camel, but just round any corner they are passing all day long and getting mixed up with the electric cars, of which Cairo has an excellent service. Here, however, is a sight better than many camels—a magnificent rider in a regular Arabian Nights costume comes curvetting along on a jingling Arab horse.

Nearly all the horses in Cairo, even those in cabs, are a joy to behold. They are small, swift, and full of prancing energy. Here, see, is a mounted policeman (English by the way) on a beautiful bay. The Egyptian cavalry are a smart lot, thanks to British drill sergeants. It is pretty to watch a squadron of hussars cantering by on their mettlesome little chargers.

Walk along the pavement and the contrasts are quite as striking as any we have seen in the roadway. Dark-skinned Arabs, Nubian negroes, Coptic Christians, Sufianes, Turks, and Syrians in their flowing robes rub shoulders with the most smartly-dressed people of Europe.

In the East one always misses the charm of women's faces to which we are accustomed in Europe. But there are some women. They are nearly all in black, the only wear for the street among Moslems, and their faces are half-hidden by yashmaks, kept up by a curious brass or wooden nose-piece which has a very unaccountable look. But here and there a unveiled Christian native with silver bracelets round her ankles carries burdens on her head or squats in a doorway playing with her children.

MONTHS OF AGONY.

Severe Case of Rheumatism Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"For many weary months I suffered untold agony. I could not walk. I could scarcely raise myself to a sitting posture. I was under medical care, but in vain. Finally I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and they have restored me to my former healthy condition. This strong statement was made to a reporter recently by Mr. Charles S. Kodley, formerly of Kingston, N. S., but now living at Port Maitland. Mr. Kodley is a carpenter by trade and is now able to work every day. He adds: 'I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as they cured me after other medicine failed. While I was living in Kingston, N. S., I was seized with rheumatism in its most violent form. I was compelled to take to my bed and for months was an invalid. I was so weak that it was difficult for me to raise myself to a sitting posture. It is impossible to tell how much I suffered day and night, the piercing agonies in my limbs, but be assured I had no medical attendance, but it failed. Then I tried medicines advertised to cure rheumatism, but with the same result—money wasted. One day when hope had almost gone a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had tried my experience with other medicines, but these pills would cure rheumatism, so I sent for a supply. After using a few boxes I was able to leave my bed, and from that on my restoration to health was rapid. I am now as well as ever I was, and have not had the slightest touch of rheumatism since. The change they have wrought in my case is simply miraculous, and I can strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to anyone suffering from any form of rheumatism.'"

Rheumatism is rooted in the blood. Rubbing the aching limbs with liniments and outward remedies cannot possibly cure it. You must get the rheumatic acid out of the blood and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the one sure medicine to do this because they actually make new blood. That is why these pills cure anemia, headaches and backaches, neuralgia, indigestion and the several ailments that make miserable the lives of so many women and growing girls. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BUDGET FROM STELLA.
The Late Peter Gratton Built Two Well-known Scows.
Stella, May 9.—The farmers are in high hopes of an abundant hay crop as the recent rains have made the grass grow rapidly. Grain is also looking well.

The death occurred in Kingston, May 2nd, of an old and much respected former resident of the island, in the person of Peter Gratton, who was born on the island sixty years ago. In his younger days he took up the carpenter trade, then with his parents removed to Kansas. Some years later he returned to the island and followed his trade. He built many gasoline boats here, and superintended the building of two scows, Granger and Ariadne, which are now trading from bay ports. Owing to ill health, he ceased with his wife removed to Kingston, about three years ago.

Good prices were realized at S. Fleming's auction sale, on Thursday, April 28th. Some of the cows brought over fifty dollars apiece. A young child of H. McCormick's, passed away in the hospital, in Kingston, after an operation, on Tuesday. The funeral was held here, on Wednesday. Mrs. Polley has returned home, accompanied by her niece, Miss Lindsay, after spending the winter with her daughter in Strathroy. Visitors: R. A. Caughey, Perthsmouth; Mrs. R. Fison, Kingston; Mrs. F. Burleigh, St. Catharines.

Westport Notes.
Westport, May 10.—R. W. Leech, seriously ill, is somewhat better. Henry Grothier, who recently purchased N. Niblock's house, on Spring street, has moved into town. W. J. Barker has taken possession of the farm purchased from Mr. Grothier. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Charbonneau, of Toronto, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Charbonneau.

F. A. Acland, deputy minister of labor, has been appointed registrar of boards of conciliation under the new conflict act.

It's Easy to Stop Pain
"I use Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills for Neuralgia, LaGrippe and all pains. I don't intend to be without them, for I find ready relief in them for everything I use them for."
MRS. L. F. MILLER, 120 W. 6th St., Davenport, Ia.
All Pain
"In my family Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are used for headache, colic and other pains, and always give relief at once."

THE HEIGHT OF TREES.

A Hundred Feet is All That is Usually Attained in Britain.

A tree 100 feet high, accurately measured, is not as tall as it looks. There are not many trees in the gardens of England that exceed 100 feet, notwithstanding the records of reputedly much higher trees than this. We have been told that the highest tree in Kew Gardens, carefully measured with a tape, was 103 feet and that the tallest pine, a Corsican near the entrance, is 86 feet, says The Field. There are some fine specimens of Atlas and Lebanon cedars in these gardens, but not one of them is 70 feet high. A larch that had been drawn up by surrounding beeches and was looked upon as a giant, was blown down in 1902 and it proved to be 110 feet long. Beech, among the best of our trees, rarely reaches 100 feet, though Dr. Henry measured one in Kilkenny in 1904 which was 117 feet. The famous deciduous cypress, Taxodium distichum, in Syon Park, Brentford, is, according to Mr. Elwes, 110 feet high, the tallest of its kind in Europe.

The same authority gives 165 feet as the height of the tallest horse chestnut he had seen, though there are others estimated to be even higher or than this. The tallest walnut is from 80 feet to 85 feet, and the tallest black walnut, at Marble Hill, Twickenham, was 96 feet high when measured by Dr. Henry in 1905. Oaks have been measured up to 130 feet, but they are quite exceptional, 100 feet being above the average for our tallest oaks.

The height of trees is influenced by the company they grow in. For example, a larch growing in the open would most likely fail to reach 100 feet in height, whereas larches growing close together or pressed upward by other trees have been known to exceed 130 feet in this country. The California giant trees of the Wellingtonia owe their great height to the same influence. Not even in that country would this tree have grown to 300 feet or more if it had not been forced to grow upward because it could not grow outward.

According to Mr. Elwes, one of the tallest Wellingtonias in England is at Fonthill Abbey, which in 1905 measured "certainly over 100 feet and probably 105 feet high." This is at least 10 feet higher than the tallest at Strathfieldsaye. It is next to impossible to ascertain the correct height of a tree by any other means than that of careful measurement; there are, we know, ingenious contrivances for doing it otherwise, but they are not reliable. Of course the approximate height may be near enough and yet be a long way out.

The "A I Demons."
It was a little boy, who had been taken to see the pantomime at Drury Lane Theatre, who thus described the Salambo, who, as the wizards of the lamp, did so much for Aladdin. The Salambo comprise Mr. Salambo and his wife and daughter. Previous to appearing at Drury Lane, they had for four years been traveling all over the world. As a boy Mr. Salambo was apprenticed to a cabinet-maker; then he became a fruit buyer in Los Angeles; then an engine-driver on the Southern Pacific Railway; and ultimately acquired that knowledge of chemistry and electricity which he has turned to such good account on the stage.

In India their fire-blowing act caused the Parsis to really worship them, for fire is the Parsis' god, and when they saw the Salambos toying with flame and exchanging volumes of fire with each other by merely blowing sheets of flame from the bare lips, they seemed to think they were their gods come to earth. As a consequence, they were followed from town to town, and were bowed and saluted whenever they were seen in the streets.

A Sailor's Compliment.
As Miss Margot Tennant, Mrs. Asgill, electrified London with her beauty, her wit and her high spirits, Mr. Gladstone admired her, and the novelist Benson owed his success to the portrait that he drew of her in "Dodo." Gladstone, Tennyson and other distinguished persons made a cruise to Norway one summer in Sir Daniel Currie's yacht. Miss Margot Tennant was among the party and her gaiety and beauty enchanted all on board, from Tennyson and Gladstone down to the cabin boy.

Mr. Gladstone and Miss Tennant, promending the deck one morning, paused and talked awhile with a sailor. "Are you married?" Miss Tennant asked him. The sailor touched his cap and answered: "Yes, ma'am; I'm sorry to say I am."

ROBIN HOOD FLOUR IS DIFFERENT

Do You Suffer From Headaches? There are few people who have never experienced a headache from one cause or another. It effects at ages and both sexes alike, but the female sex is naturally the more effected through the higher nervous development and more delicate organization of the system. Those also of a nervous temperament and studious or sedentary occupation are subject to it. The presence of headache nearly always tells us that there is another disease which, although we may not be aware of it, is still exerting its baneful influence, and perhaps awaiting an opportunity to assert itself plainly. Burdock Blood Bitters has, for years, been curing all kinds of headaches, and if you will only give it a trial we are sure it will do for you what it has done for thousands of others. Mrs. John Connors, Burlington, N.S., writes: "I have been troubled with headache and constipation for a long time. After trying different doctors' medicine a friend asked me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I find I am completely cured after having taken three bottles. I can safely recommend it to all."
