NO ACCIDENTS IN NATURE.

Every Calamity, No Matter How Great, Has a Definite Beginning. There are no accidents in nature.

The avalanche that without a moment's warning rushes headlong down the mountain side is not an accident.

For years previous tiny atoms have been crystallizing and adding their minute weight to the mass which led its base when the accumulation reached a certain point.

Neither is baldness an accident. The unpleasantly small germ which is the cause of dandruff and baldness feeds silently and long before the result is seen.

The small germs which thrive on the scalp and which are the cause of baldness, cannot exist, however, when Newbro's Herpicide is applied.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. $1 bottles guaranteed. G. W. Mahood, special agent.

Painful Stitches in the Back

FAILURE OF A LAW.

The state of New York has endeavored to meet the cry of insanity which is raised in so many murder cases. The provision in a law, which has just been signed by the governor, is that when a murderer appears to be insane the government may order his removal to the state hospital, there to remain until he is cured of the malady. Thereupon he will be sent back to the state prison "to suffer sentence given him, under the law."

AID IN THE SCHOOLS.

Pictou has had an exhibition of more than usual interest. It is of the work of the schools, by grades, and so arranged that it is shown in all its progressive stages. It is excellent throughout, and only when the opportunity is given for comparison can this be seen to advantage.

The high school is lighted with electricity and the exhibits have been open for inspection in the evenings, and when visited by a representative of the Whig was well filled with people who studied and discussed the work in an animated way. The meeting was very good, but lacking in the form which one expects when a director of writing is employed. Kingston tried the result of penmanship in the schools with each teacher as an instructor of it, and it was not a success.

The colour work in the Pictou schools is uncommonly good. Here the taste of the teachers and the aptitude of the pupils is clearly apparent, and here the exhibit is characteristic of the town. It is a question whether a similar display could be made in any of the schools of Eastern Ontario. It follows, of course, whether the colour work is of absorbing importance, and whether it is deserving of the close attention which is given to it.

Granted that art is worthy of the high place it has been given, and that it adds to the general qualifications of the individual in the varied occupations of life, Pictou has achieved a distinction of which it ought to be very proud.

PERILS OF RAILROADING.

The Grand Trunk company cannot be blamed when young men are killed while indulging in the most perilous of all excursions—a free ride on the pumps of a car. It may not be generally known, but it is stated as a fact, that the freight trains that pass the city east and west, daily, carry boys and men who find a diversion in riding twenty-five or fifty miles in positions which are most dangerous.

The train officials do not see the unwelcome travellers. They lurk in the vicinity of the stations and watch their opportunity. When they are not seen they catch at a passing train and climb up between the cars. Here they settle themselves while the train travels mile after mile. They are not detected because the trainmen no longer travel along the tops of the cars as formerly. The air brake is in charge of the engineer, and he controls the speed of the train, and stops it, sometimes with a jerky motion, which is disastrous to the intruders.

It is not so long since a party of four, all youths under eighteen, left the city for a run to Brockville. They reached their destination in due time, and, having rested, started for home. Three of them reported when they reached the city. The fourth was missing. His companions knew that he was with them for part of the journey back. Where he disappeared they did not know. But on search being made his body was found some miles from Kingston. It was badly mutilated. He had in some way lost his hold and fallen between the cars. Death was cruel and immediate.

The lessons are numerous and depressing. They emphasize the truth that the only safe place for a ride on the railway is inside the coach, and that the one who tempts the fates by riding on the outside will, sooner or later, meet his end. The heart of many a parent is made sad by the perversity of his willful boy, and in his sorrow he has a sympathy that is sincere.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

There have been many tributes to the late King Edward, but none which surpassed or equalled that of Premier Ashquith. It can well be treasured as a sample of the best literature of our day.

There is only one way in which the express companies are really up to date. Their charges will be the limit every time. There is need of a restraining power, and the railway commission is supplying it.

The place to cast out the unfit, as immigrants, is not on board the ship and some days' sail out for Canada, but in the shipping departments of England. Canada's law is now very exacting, and it should be rigidly enforced.

Some people do not like a parade of the volunteers for church service. Why not? Cannot the young men enjoy the service as well in uniforms as out of them? And a parade of the troops is not in the same class with the men and women milliners.

The women of England who hold or own property that would qualify a man will be given the franchise if parliament will accept the bill they propose. This is a long way from the franchise the suffragettes demand, but it is a start in their direction.

Now comes the information that a barrister of Johannesburg, South Africa, who adopted Sinclair Upton's cure, by starvation, for dyspepsia, has died. The cure was worse than the disease. The only salvation for the medical profession lies in the fact that it was prescribed by a layman.

The Mail is disappointed with the promises of Hon. Mr. Pugsley. He intimated his willingness to re-open the Toronto harbour if the city would contribute to the same purpose, and the Mail says he gave a shock which is to be regretted. In the name of goodness what did the Mail expect?

KINGSTON OLD BOYS.

The Kingston Old Boys' Association, of Toronto, at its meeting on Friday evening, decided to make its annual pilgrimage to the Limestone City on Saturday, July 23rd. The usual excursion by G.T.R., will be conducted, and it is expected that 1,000 or more will come down from the Queen City. The association wishes the city council of Kingston to fix the civic holiday here for Monday, July 25th. This will be done. The home committee will, no doubt, arrange some kind of programme for the reception and entertainment of the old boys.

The Toronto association intends to visit Cataraqi cemetery on Sunday morning, July 24th, and place wreaths on the graves of the late E. J. B. Pense and J. B. McKay, who were the leading figures in the Kingston old boys' reunion for this year. Pense and McKay will always be cherished by the old boys of Kingston wherever they are. At the Toronto association's meeting, many of the members spoke in kindly terms of the late Mr. Pense and of how good a friend he had been to the old boys.

Pity the Poor Cowboy.

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, the food expert, said at a dinner in Washington apropos of the meat boycott and the coin storage discussion: "The trend of modern life seems on the surface to be toward preserved instead of fresh foods, but there is no such real trend save among certain dealers."

"Who would like to be in the boots of the cowboy in the barren sagebrush country, who used to send in, week after week, the same order to the store keeper: "Canamilk, cansaw, canacorn, canabutter, canascrapple, canacorn, cansham, cansaplums."

Walk Out of That Store.

Certain manufacturers, who have faith enough in their products to advertise them in this paper, are entitled to at least fair consideration. If you ask for any of these advertised goods and a substitute is offered or suggested, you had better walk out of that store and find one that will value your patronage highly enough to sell you what you ask for without question.
