HELD FOR PERJURY

ARREST FOLLOWS ACQUITTAL OF GYPSY AT SHAWVILLE.

Now Denies He Fired Shot—Wife Indicted, Produces Affidavit to This Effect, and Judge Orders Him Into Custody.

Bryson, Que., June 1.—A peculiar situation has arisen in connection with the Shawville murder case, in which Michael Murphy, a gypsy, was accused of shooting two young men, named Howes and Dale, who had been pestering him. At the trial two weeks ago the jury which acquitted Murphy of the charge was severely censured by Judge Weir. Yesterday, when Murphy's wife, also indicted on the same charge, came up for trial her lawyers submitted an affidavit from Murphy, in which he declared he had not fired the shots which killed Howes and Dale. Immediately on this affidavit being read Judge Weir ordered Crown Prosecutor Barry to indict Murphy for perjury.

TALKS ON TEETH—(No. 4).

Written For Whig by Dr. S. A. Akroyd, D.D.S., L.D.S., Kingston.

Dr. White, Philadelphia, writing in "Dental Cosmos," says—"It will not I think be denied by any observing practitioners whose observation embraces representatives of three or four generations, that from the great-grand-parents to their children and their children's children, there is a general continuous deterioration in the quality of the dental outfit, through the successive generations. All the facts of professional experience, which have been gathered, all improved modes of practice which the best heads and hearts have thus far developed have not sufficed to stem the tide which seems destined to render the human accretion—that is,—teethless."

Surely this is an alarming state of affairs. How is it that this terrible affliction has been forced upon us during the last hundred years? Is it not about time we set ourselves seriously to enquire into the causes of the trouble? First, we may be certain that one law of nature have been violated. Then our enquiries to be fruitful must be scientific, based on known laws of chemistry, biology, physiology, pathology and hygiene.

I have already pointed out some of the causes of poor teeth, or what I considered to be causes, and that childhood is the important time to look after the teeth. This cannot be emphasized too strongly for as before said, a tooth affected in any way during childhood, is affected for life. Other parts of the body may recover, or improve in after life, but not so the teeth. If the health of a child is in any way disturbed during the period of dentition, which may be said to extend from birth to the twelfth year, the teeth will be more or less permanently affected. Any expert dentist can tell at a glance by the condition of the teeth of any boy or girl whether and when there was sickness in childhood. There is a class of skin diseases called syphilis, due to a process of fermentation, caused by unsanitary conditions, such as scurvy, measles, mumps, whooping cough, etc., which give rise to defective places in the enamel or dentine, and may result in the final destruction of the tooth. A teething child should have more than usual hygienic care, more than usual freedom from all avoidable disturbance. It is pernicious nonsense to think that children must go through certain complaints, even though healthy all the time, attend to their environments, and you need not reckon on the nuisance of these infantile disorders so injurious to the teeth.

If you have remembered that the enamel and denture of a tooth belong to the skin tissue of the body, you will more readily understand why these skin diseases affect the teeth during their development stage.

There is another disease of our civilization belonging to this class of syphilis, or skin diseases, which infants and children have been regularly inflicted with for more than a hundred years now, known as "rickettsia." It is the opinion of some dental curators, who have given this question some thought, that the practice of vaccination is most destructive, if not a primary factor in the loss of children's teeth. Dr. Carter suggests that vaccination may be at the bottom of the defective dental organizations so prevalent wherever it is practiced, and nowhere else. Dr. Carter, of London, Eng., travelled all over the world and made it his business to investigate this subject. Dr. Fox says: "Individually the harm may be small, but multiplied by the millions of civilized infants subjected to the disease process, (everyone admits it is a disease process) and continued over generation after generation, I consider it does lower the resisting power of the teeth in this and other countries."

Dr. Peacock says: "In considering the effects of vaccination on the teeth no fact is better established by physiologists than that severe constitutional derangement in early childhood leaves its indelible mark upon the teeth, and the child's health is affected by vaccination just when the germs of the permanent teeth are undergoing their earliest formation." Nutrition, the basis of creative function, is interrupted. Therefore, we may feel certain that a great cause of the decay of the teeth may be referred to the disease "rickettsia."

We must go back to the cause of physical deterioration and stop the mischief at its root. Medical and dental inspection or treatment will not do. What is needed is an absolute revolution in the environment and personal habits and practices of all civilized races.

Hudson Bay Drama at Bijou.

A drama of Hudson Bay is the top liner at the Bijou for to-morrow and Friday. It tells the story of a factor for this great company who fell in love with an Indian maiden and aroused the enmity of a French half-breed named Jules Lepresse. The half-breed persuades the chief of the Redskins that his daughter's lover is really engaged to a white girl in Montreal, and the Indian sees the factor and proceeds to put him to the torture. The play is full of excitement and gives a fine idea of life in the far north of Canada. It will be accompanied to-morrow by a series of splendid views of the Pyrenees mountains, where the British Duke of Wellington conducted his victorious campaign against the armies of the Emperor Napoleon, also by a pathetic drama, "Only a Faded Flower." The last two subjects will also be shown to-day, and the great Indian drama, "In the Dark Valley," portraying scenes in the Wyoming Valley during the Revolutionary war, will be shown again to-day.

BATTERSEA SADDENED

By the Deaths of Two Young People.

Battersea, June 1.—Never in the history of this village has more sadness and sorrow reigned in two homes, and more real sympathetic sorrow in every other home, than was evident last Thursday night, when within a short distance of each other three lay cold and coffined all that was mortal of two young people, cut off in the prime of young manhood and womanhood.

On May 22nd, N. H. Williams received a telegram from Brandon, Man., stating that his son, John, who had been ill in the hospital there, for a couple of weeks, had passed away the day before. He immediately wired back to have the body sent home. It arrived on Thursday, and burial took place the next day in the family cemetery. Service was conducted at the house by Rev. W. S. Short. A large concourse of friends was in attendance. The deceased was twenty years of age, and well liked by those who knew him. He attended the public school here, and later took a course at the Kingston Business College. Three years ago he went to the west and later on a homestead in Saskatoon, which he continued to look after up to the time of his death. Besides his father, he leaves three sisters and one brother. The doctor in attendance stated that he died of an acute attack of a nervous disease, to which he was subject.

On the 25th inst. there passed peacefully away, at her home in the village, Mrs. George Kirkpatrick, (formerly Miss Jennie Boal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Boal, of Keelerville), after an illness extending over five weeks following the birth of her baby boy, which with her husband and two little girls survive her. All that two physicians and trained nurses and friends' help could do was done for her, but could not stay the progress of the disease. She was a favorite with all who knew her both old and young, and a loving and tender mother, in her home; a consistent member of the Sunbury Presbyterian church, and when in health a constant attendant at the church services here. Her genial and amiable presence will be greatly missed in the circles in which she moved. The funeral was conducted on Friday, to the Sand Hill cemetery, service being conducted previously in the Methodist church, by Rev. Robert Laird of Kingston, assisted by Rev. Mr. Short.

The funeral of the late John Sutherland, who died at his home near Seely's Bay, took place to the Sand Hill cemetery, on May 23rd. The deceased was well and favorably known here, being born and raised on the farm now owned by Robert Dixon, about one mile north of the village. After leaving here he moved to the farm, which he purchased on the canal between Brewer's Mills and Seely's Bay. William, of this place is a brother, and Mrs. James Clark, a sister. Several other brothers and sisters reside in the west.

Deceased had lived in this city, all her life, and was beloved by all her acquaintances. She was of a kindly disposition, and was especially fond of children and very kind to them. She was a daughter of the late Samuel Paippen, of this city. One son, John, is in the west. Mrs. J. J. Lin'ou, Kingston, and Mrs. John Grist, Ottawa, are sisters. #### Can't Please Everybody.

The manager of an asbestos mill conceived a novel idea for his announcements. He had them printed on this asbestos and inclosed in envelopes of the same material. As he was uncertain of the correct addresses of some of the stockholders, he ordered his stenographer to write on each envelope "Please Forward."

The idea was clever, but one may appreciate the feelings of the widow of one of the stockholders when she received an asbestos envelope addressed to her late husband with the inscription, "Please Forward" beneath the address.
