It's Safe

So order my coal, even without looking at it. You don't have to know good coal when you see it. If you get it of me, you know I tell it—or you WILL know after you find it is free from clinkers or foreign matter. It is a dear coal that is one-third dirt. Crawford coal is as pure as the fire that burns it. Not only is it pure, but it is of the slow burning, heat-giving kind. You save money by burning it because you don't burn so much of it.

Crawford Coal doesn't COST any more. It simply gives MORE heat.

CLEAN UP, THE SLOGAN.

There is a law, we believe, against the littering of the streets with the waste of the stores or houses. And yet, day after day, the wrappings of goods, of fruit, of merchandise, is dropped upon the sidewalk or swept into the street, to be there for hours or be blown about by the winds. The fruit vender can very easily have at hand a wicker basket or drop his waste paper into it, and he should be made to realize that the slogan "Clean Up" applies to him more than to any other person.

Then, we believe, there is an ordinance which deals with the washing of windows. There is a time beyond which water cannot be used lavishly on the walks, for the people who have to go to their offices and stores are entitled to protection. Still the slopping, unnecessarily, goes on, and the representatives of that official who is charged with the enforcement of the city's laws, pass on and pay no attention to the matter.

One sometimes wonders what Kingston has a police force for. The crime is light, and the hunt for criminals is limited. The uniformed minions of the law are seen at intervals, treading their allotted beats with stately mien, but they see nothing and surely do nothing. The by-laws, framed with infinite care and for a purpose, have no significance for them.

Must this evidence of village life continue? Summer will come presently—the season may be short, according to present indications—and there will be visitors. Let them see a city which is clean, orderly, and well ruled. It is a timely suggestion, and it should be acted upon.

GONE TO HIS REST.

Goldwin Smith dead! The announcement is not surprising in view of his long illness, his suffering and incapacity following an accident, and his advanced age. Yet the literary world, the public life of Canada, will be impoverished by his death. He was in recent years affectionately referred to as the "grand old man."

It was a term lovingly applied to Mr. Gladstone, and it fits anyone who has given unselfishly, and of his best, to the betterment of the land in which he lived.

There was a time when Mr. Smith was not wholly understood. He had his own views on political, religious, and other subjects, and as the "By-stander" he freely expressed these in the papers and magazines of the times. Sometimes one differed from him. Sometimes his opinions were strongly combated. They were always read with a profound interest and were appreciated for the language in which they were clothed.

Canada will miss him. He never liked the limelight. He was not the one who pushed himself into view. He was a man of great ability, and he never failed to get a hearing for whatever he had to say. He stood for the purer things, for righteousness in public and private life, for everything in art and literature and science that meant the elevation of mankind.

His demise will be mourned in Canada, in England, in America, in Europe, in the world of letters, for he had a wide reputation for his works' sake, and these will perpetuate his memory and keep it green for many, many years.

THE POSITION OF QUEEN'S.

Contrary to expectation, the expectation at least of a leading member of the church who recently conversed with the Whig, the Presbyterian Assembly has been seriously disturbed over its relations with Queen's university. Those who anticipated a quiet time when the report of a special committee, recommending separation, was presented, have been surprised with the heat of the discussion, with the spirit that it evoked, with the storm which swept over the venerable and ordinarily placid assembly.

When the Whig went to press on Tuesday the issue, intense and even irritating, was still under consideration. It had held the attention of the assembly, nudging crowding to one side other matters, and so possessing the members that they refused to be bound by time limits with regard to speeches, and gave evidence by their addresses of the feelings by which they were actuated. Whatever the outcome the discussion will be remembered as one of the most exciting that has ever taken place in the courts of the Presbyterian church. No greater testimony could be supplied respecting its importance and the hold it has had upon the commissioners.

It was a remarkable scene when the supporters of Queen's divided the assembly and expressed themselves in the warmest terms. Those who opposed separation feared for the future of the college without the aid and sympathy of the church. It had not given as largely as it might have done, but its support appeared to be vital. The constitution of the college could be amended, without inviting what the critics regarded as a sacrifice of the institution. Besides, what was to become of the university when separated from the church?

The answer was that the university at the best held but a nominal connection with the church. Gradually it had become a national institution, with large public interests and with a constituency behind it that was being widened and extended. It had not been promised state aid, it is true, but it could claim this more readily and with greater hope of success when free of denominational government. The cause of freedom was the cause which experience had suggested with every assurance that it was for the best.

Let us hope that all will end well. The cluster of buildings on Queen's campus represent the consecrated labours of Queen's many friends, some living, some passed to their eternal reward. How they have loved it, worked for it, and served it! The spirit of these heroes remains. Its influence is felt now as never before. A crisis is impending, and it will be fortunate if it pass without something to jar the usefulness and dim the glory of the university. It may be that sentiment is at the bottom of some of the controversy, but sentiment is not to be despised. It is powerfully associated with the best and highest movements of the day.

REAL ENEMIES WITHIN.

Some Significant Remarks by Col. Roosevelt.

Oxford, Eng., June 8.—"If England or the United States ever falls it will be because they have not safeguarded themselves against the enemies within their own households, their own passions and follies."

This was part of Col. Roosevelt's address before a distinguished crowd gathered to hear him at Oxford University on biological analogies in history. It was mostly technical, but exceedingly well received.

HE HAS TURNED UP

SPANIARDS AS SLAVES IN PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

Soldier Held in Bondage for Twelve Years Escapes and Tells Tale—Says Many More Are There.

Madrid, June 8.—Jose Garcia Paredo, who served as a galley in the Spanish-American war, and who it was believed died twelve years ago, appeared at Pamplona yesterday.

He was supposed to have perished of Caviten in the Philippines. He was taken to Taytay, on the island of Palawan, in the Philippines, and treated with the utmost cruelty. He was badly flogged, whipped and employed as a beast of burden.

In January of this year ninety Spaniards, including himself, threw themselves into the sea. Thirty-five were drowned, twenty-seven swam back to the land, and twenty-eight were taken aboard the American steamer Baltimore.

They sailed to Bordeaux, and thence made their way across the frontier of Spain. Paredo declares that there are many Spanish prisoners still in the Philippines.

COLD STRUGGLE WITH DEATH.

Archdeacon Scott of Athabasca Went Through Ice.

Winnipeg, June 8.—Word has been received that Archdeacon Scott of the Diocese of Athabasca was recently the victim of an almost tragic adventure.

In crossing the Heart River, on his way to hold service at Prairie City settlement, the ice gave way. The archdeacon made a strong attempt to save his valuable team of horses, and after an hour's struggle with death in the ice-cold water was obliged to give up the fight. Although in a weakened state as a result of illness he walked four miles in frozen clothes.

The archdeacon's resignation, on account of ill-health, takes effect on the last of the present month.

ALLEGED TOWNSITES.

Some of Them Far From the Railway.

Winnipeg, June 8.—E. J. Chamberlin, vice-president and general manager of the G.T.P., returned from a tour of inspection of the company's line between Winnipeg and Edmonton, and expressed his satisfaction with the progress of the work at all points.

As for the development of western freight traffic, he said the route to the lakes would have to be in readiness before they could look to any effective development in the west. In a general way, he intimated that some of the townsites now getting a great deal of prominence are situated at great distance from actual stations, and even from the right of way of the G.T.P.

VERY WONDERFUL.

Lightning Struck Stand—Ten Were Injured.

Pony, Mont., June 8.—During a baseball game at Ennis, yesterday afternoon, lightning struck the grand stand while Mrs. M. E. Buck was holding a sun shade over her head.

The lightning came down the shade, and branching on its four tips, knocked down five women and four men. Mrs. Buck's corset was torn from her body and her shoes from her feet. She was seriously injured, remaining unconscious until late at night. It is thought she will recover.

The nine persons knocked down were all more or less burned and injured, Mrs. Buck being most seriously hurt.

Lusty Democrat Called Down.

Berlin, June 8.—The lower house of the diet, yesterday, referred to the budget committee, the Kaiser's social list of 2,000,000 marks. The social democrats alone opposed the proposal. Their speaker, Herr Hoffman, was frequently called to order by the chair. He drew the rebuke of "high treason" from the president by the suggestion that the Kaiser should be elected by the people. Among other things, Herr Hoffman complained that "the crown had too many children."

Mad Mullah Shot.

London, June 8.—The Standard says that the notorious Mullah, Mohamed Abdullah, who long troubled Great Britain and Italy, in Somaliland, was captured in a recent fight, at Hardega, by friendly natives and shot. His death has left his followers without a leader.

The application of the Grand Trunk for permission to construct a line through Massachusetts to Providence, R.I., came before the state railway commission on Tuesday.

Special officers will be appointed by the customs department, at Ottawa, to patrol the river about Windsor, the recommendation by Dr. Smith, collector of customs, is approved by the department. Their duty will be to watch for smugglers and prevent undesirable from gaining admission to Canada.

George Brown, a prisoner in the county jail, Berlin, Ont., escaped on Tuesday night. Brown had been doing time for vagrancy. This is the first escape in twenty years.

FORTUNE IS ATTRACTION.

Heir Says He Will Give Millions to Charity.

Omaha, June 8.—To give away $1,000,000 every month for ten months and then go to work as a day laborer, in the gold mines, whence he has just been snatched in order that he may inherit $100,000,000 and a title in England, is the task set for himself by Alfred James Alexander Brown, who was in Omaha the other day on his way to Gloucestershire, England.

From papers in his possession there of the existence of a vast fortune which he says he is going to England is no doubt as to Brown's identity or to claim.

For fifteen years Brown has been believed by his family to be dead, and only by accident did he discover that his father, Sir Gentelles Brown, of Belmont Manor, Gloucestershire, was dead and that the estate and title had descended to him.

He was in Australia when he read the news in a daily paper and the next day found him on his way to England via the United States. He stopped at Big Springs, Neb., in an effort to locate a cousin in that town, but failed to find and came on to Omaha.

Fifteen years ago, Brown, at that time about twenty-five years of age, had a quarrel with his father, Sir Gentelles, and was ordered to leave and never to return. Alfred left home and, going to Australia, became a gold miner.

Two months ago Brown came down from the gold mines near Ballarat, New South Wales, Australia. On the night of his arrival in Sydney, Brown dropped into a restaurant and while waiting to be served accidentally picked up a newspaper. To first item to attract his attention told of the death in England of Sir Gentelles Brown.

"What am I going to do with all this money? Give it to charity of course. What right has any man to that which he has not produced? I have always believed that no man should have more than he actually needs, and now that I have an opportunity to 'make good' I am going to do it."
