

MAY END CRISIS

THE CONFERENCE MAY BRING ABOUT PEACE.

Nation Weary of the Present Middle, and Will Support His Majesty in an Effort to Find a Solution to the Vexed Problems.

New York, June 19.—The Tribune's London correspondent writes: The conference regarding the veto is accepted without enthusiasm as a political necessity for each side. Neither Premier Asquith nor A. J. Balfour can run counter to the king's wishes without incurring odium for disloyalty.

The Morning Post also affects to be watching Mr. Balfour with profound misgiving, but its discontent is not serious when the ardent tariff reformers who have consulted Mr. Chamberlain are convinced that the constitutional question must be disposed of before fiscal revision can be undertaken.

Otherwise the advantages and disadvantages of a settlement are fairly equalized between the main parties, and this is a good augury for the success of the negotiations when the situation has become unmanageable and there is unmistakable evidence that the nation is already weary of barren strife and eager for constitutional revision on sound, rational lines.

King George is credited with a natural ambition to strike out in a new line for himself, and he is known as a great imperialist, as his father won recognition as diplomatist and peace-maker.

It is already intimated that the coronation will be attended by the colonial premiers, and that an important imperial conference will be held immediately afterward.

THACKERAY'S COUSIN.

Sad Plight of the Famous Novelist's Relative.

London, June 20.—In a dismal back kitchen in the basement of a home at Wallham Green there has been living for five years past an old lady, who claims to be a poor relative of William Makepeace Thackeray.

A press representative who called in the hope of helping her had to wait until eleven o'clock because the poor old lady had been walking the streets alone for hours rather than meet the gentleman who calls on Monday nights for the rent.

THE SON ARRESTED.

Soldier Declined to Shoot His Own Father.

Berlin, June 20.—An inhuman tragedy is reported to have taken place in Albania in connection with the shooting of a rebel. According to a message from Constantinople, an Albanian of good family had joined the insurgents, was captured and was ordered to be shot.

NO FAVORS FOR PRINCE.

King George's Son to Study Hard at St. Peter's Court College.

London, June 20.—Prince Henry, the third son of King George, during his long stay at York Gate house, Broadstairs, is not allowed to neglect his education.

Now, however, he has been entered as a day scholar—the only one in the establishment—at St. Peter's Court College, an establishment conducted for the training of boys for Eton and Harrow.

REJANE TO GIVE UP THEATRE.

Will Drop Managerial Burdens to Resume Acting.

Paris, June 21.—Mme. Rejane, the creator of the role of Madame Sans-Gene, is about to give up her managerial career and will surrender the Theatre Rejane into other hands.

Mme. Rejane has won the reputation of being almost too amiable as a manager, and possibly this fact is the real cause of the change, since amiability and economy are not always compatible.

ELIXIR OF LIFE.

Sir James Grant Interests London Over It.

London, June 20.—Sir James Grant, the well-known Canadian physician, a recipient of many foreign honors, believes that he has discovered, not exactly the elixir of life, but at any rate a means of greatly prolonging youth, and apparently bringing it back to some extent.

Sir James is himself the best advertisement of his method, for he possesses amazing vitality for his age, now nearly 77 years. He is visiting London, and he looks like a man in his fifties.

Two years ago Sir James treated a sensation at a meeting of the British Association by a paper on the extraordinary rejuvenating powers of electricity. He has since then treated himself by his own method, with results that he describes as wonderful.

BRITISH LADY WANTED TO FLY.

Paid $800 Passage Money to the Aviator.

London, June 20.—Graham White, the English aviator who was a near winner of the London to Manchester prize of $50,000 recently, announced that he would take passengers in flight in his biplane.

COST A BIG SUM.

Merchants, Clubs, Theatres and Others are Hard Hit.

London, June 21.—It is of course, impossible to state in actual figures what a fabulous sum a royal death costs a country.

But some idea can be gained of the immense amount involved by mentioning a few of the chief items. As soon as the news that the head of the country had passed away is published there is a slump on the Stock Exchange.

Most of the great social functions, house parties, and the like, are arranged a considerable time in advance, and immediately grave news of the sovereign's health is received these are all cancelled.

The caterers suffer to an alarming extent, and although they may have taken out insurance policies, their losses are seldom recovered, owing to the high premiums charged on such a speculative class of business.

Court dressmakers and tailors are flooded with thousands upon thousands of pounds' worth of orders for mourning, but on the other hand florists lose great sums because of the cancellation of their orders.

Race meetings, sport gatherings and other open-air functions arranged to take place about the time of the sad event are, out of respect, abandoned, nullifying the promoters in heavy losses.

WATCHED BY THE POLICE.

Obtain Situations as Servants and Rob Masters.

Paris, June 20.—The Paris police have been obliged to organize a special detective brigade to watch domestic servants in Paris.

Information has been received at headquarters of a thieves' organization called the "White Apron Brigade." By means of forged testimonials the members of the gang, which is several hundred strong, obtain situations in private houses and rob their masters.

London alone has forty music halls, with approximate seating accommodation of 64,857 people, and as most of these places derive huge profits from the sale of intoxicating liquor which are only sold during the hours a performance is going on, it did not seem that the falling off in the revenue becomes a very serious matter indeed.

But not only do the great theatres and music halls in London and the provinces suffer. Travelling showmen, proprietors of cinematograph theatres, circuses and the like, and promoters of concerts, must perforce close their doors for a time.

And the effect is not only pronounced at the time of the sovereign's demise, but it takes a long time for the people to recover from their grief, and again seek amusement.

London alone has lost the cost of the funeral, too, cost the country a tremendous amount of money; but England's bill is not so high as that of foreign nations.

The bill for the burial of Prince Albert came to $30,000, but the late Queen Victoria expended $1,250,000 out of her private purse on the mausoleum at Frogmore, and an additional $700,000 was spent by the country on the Hyde Park Memorial.

The Globe.

TORONTO

As A Newspaper

SOME philosopher has said that the citizen who does not take an interest in politics is a poor kind of citizen. There is a great deal of truth in the saying, for the man who has no interest in politics, can care very little as to the welfare of his city, province or country.

THE GLOBE stands for something in politics and throughout the year pays a lot of attention to politics—not partizanship, but politics. It is worth noting that THE GLOBE above all things is a newspaper. It has never been afraid to give "the other man's" version, and has not failed to do its opponents justice in regard to reporting and recording meetings and assemblies. That is another reason why THE GLOBE is Canada's National Newspaper.

As An Advertising Medium

THE paper that is the favorite in the home stands the best chance of being the most satisfactory advertising medium. To a degree remarkable in journalism THE GLOBE has for sixty-six years been the home paper of Canada. There exists between the paper and its readers an intimacy and a confidence only won by long years of straight forward dealings. This is an asset of the paper that invariably works to the advantage of its advertising patrons.

R. W. Ball, Toronto, claims to have sold $4,000 worth of goods from an expenditure in Globe advertising of less than $100.

GIRL WHO "BLUFFED" OFFICERS.

Identity of Brave Woman Who Saved Brother.

In 1897 there appeared in a Richmond paper a communication from Shepherdstown, W. Va., giving an account of the heroic act during the civil war of a southern woman, then a girl of eighteen, living near Port Republic, Rockingham county, which resulted in bluffing a dozen Yankee soldiers and saving for her brother, a confederate soldier, who happened to be in the neighborhood at the time, his highly prized mount, which the northern troops found in her possession.

The writer of the communication was unable to give the name of the brave young woman, but her identity has at last been discovered by a newspaper reporter. She was Miss Cynthia Hooper, who still resides on the old Hooper homestead near Port Republic. Her brother, the owner of the horse in question, was Scott Hooper, who is still living.

In the main the author of the communication, to the Richmond paper gave the facts with absolute accuracy. He was wrong in one particular, however. The Yankee lieutenant referred to did not discover that the pistol with which the young woman held her men at bay was capless, and, therefore, harmless, until he had returned to camp, following the delivery of the pistol to him.
