"Nothing is too good for Kingston," said Charles H. Haystead, tracelling theatrical sepresentative for A J. Small, Toronto, proprietor of the Grand Opera House, who is here to arrange for the placing of new scenery n the local house. Mr. Haystead says that Mr. Small thinks so much of Kingston that he is going to give he people the very best in the way of an up-to-date furnished house. The Grand is one of the prettiest and most modern opera houses in Ontario, but a few more things are to be added. The present scenery is to be all replaced by new, and E. W. Mac-Andrew & Co., scenic artists, Chicago, have the contract. Work will be commenced very shortly. Next year Proprietor Small intends to redecorate the Grand.

Mr. Haystead and Manager D. P. Branigan were old friends twenty years ago when the former used to be at Martin's old opera house and send bills up with the fall fair balloon man to "remember Josie Mills at the opera house to-night." The jolly actor does not look any older than he did in those far-off days.
