

Dropsy

Given up by Doctor

"I had dropsy, and was told by my family physician that there was no chance for me. My family also gave me up. My limbs and body were swollen one-third larger than natural, water collected around my heart and I had to be propped up in bed to keep from smothering. I took Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy until I was entirely cured. This was in 1902, and I am now able to do any kind of work on my farm. My cure was certainly marvelous."

L. TURLEY CURD,
Wilmore, Ky.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy has been wonderfully successful in relieving heart trouble. Its tonic effect upon the heart nerves and muscles is a great factor in assisting nature to overcome heart weakness.

SUPREME MANAGER

RICHEST EARL IS SHABBIEST DRESSER.

King George's Master of Ceremonies Cares Nothing for the Pomp He Dictates.

Washington, June 21.—A prominent figure at the coming world's eucharistic congress will be the Duke of Norfolk, the representative of the oldest Roman Catholic family in the nobility of Great Britain. He is England's premier duke, its premier earl, and, for that matter, is half a dozen baronetcies rolled into one. As hereditary earl marshal of England he had sole charge of all the ceremonial arrangements connected with the funeral of the late King Edward, "the peace-maker," and of the proclamation of his popular successor, George V. And when the coronation of King George V. takes place, the Duke of Norfolk will be the supreme stage manager.

DUKE OF NORFOLK.

All his official duties are associated with pomp and pageantry, yet no man in the kingdom probably has a greater distaste for show and glitter and fuss and feathers. He cares nothing for the cut and fashion of his clothes. On one occasion when he had thrown the grounds of Arundel castle open to the public, two old Irish women were among those who scolded themselves of the privilege. Presently, to their horror, they saw a shabbily dressed man leave the path and walk across a strip of ground, despite the notice, "Please Keep off the Grass." One of them called after the offender indignantly, "Hill! Come back here! Come back here!" The duke, who it was he turned and came back to the two women. Then one of them burst forth: "Why don't you stick to the path, you could reprobate? Can't you read what the sign says? It is the loikes of you as keeps the loikes of us out of many a decent place."

On his watch chain he wears a six-penny piece. He says he has preserved it in that fashion because it is the first money he ever earned. Innumerable other stories are told illustrating what other men might regard as embarrassing situations in which he has been placed through his indifference to his personal appearance.

The premier duke is one of the richest peers in England. He owns 50,000 acres of land, besides big slices of property in Sheffield and London. He is a very devout Roman Catholic and contributes largely to all Catholic charities. During the South African war he enlisted with a regiment of yeomanry. His bravery and obedience to orders marked him as a model soldier and endeared him to the rank and file of the British army.

Business Is Business. London, Answers. "The Village Blacksmith" had just been recited by the "actor-feller from town" amid intense admiration. When he concluded, the rustic audience in the schoolroom cheered and applauded till it was blue in the face.

"Ancoww!" it cried. "Ancoww!"

"The 'actor-feller from town' was just able to go on again, when a burly, rustic, very much out of breath, tapped him on the arm.

"I've just come round from in front," whispered the man excitedly. "I want 'ee ter do me a favor."

"Well—well, what is it?" queried the "actor-feller" impatiently, as the renewed cries of "Ancoww!" fell upon his ears.

"It's this," whispered the intruder. "I appen ter be the iusser you've been talkin' about, an' I want yer to put in a verse this time sayin' as 'ow I let out bicycles."

Many a preacher fails because while he guards the seed of truth sedulously he knows nothing of the soil in which he plants it.

The man who likes people can be led to like any really good thing.

PAINS AND TORTURES

Of a Weak Stomach Prompt Cure Through Pink Pills.

Indigestion is a condition in which the stomach is more or less unable to digest the food. Give a light case of indigestion means much misery, but when the trouble is at its worst the life of the sufferer is one of constant and acute misery. Indigestion is recognized by a burning sensation in the stomach, bloating, an oppressive feeling of weight, acidity, pain in the region of the heart, often vomiting and nausea, and a dread of food for the misery it causes. Dieting and the use of pre-digested foods may give some relief, but will never cure indigestion. The work of indigestion depends upon the blood and the nerves and the only way to cure indigestion is to so tone up the stomach that it will do the work that nature intended it should do. The very best way to cure a weak stomach is through a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These renew the blood, strengthen the nerves and give tone to the stomach, and enable it to do its work with ease and comfort. No one suffering from indigestion in even the slightest form should neglect the trouble for an instant to do so means that it obtains a firmer hold, and daily misery and suffering are the result, and the cure more difficult. It is the first approach of the trouble take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and it will speedily disappear. These Pills will cure even the most obstinate case of indigestion, but naturally it takes longer to do so. Mr. Philip LaFleur, St. Jerome, Que., says: "I had indigestion when I had studied hard for four years. I suffered so much from indigestion that I found it difficult to earn my living. I was troubled with terrible pains, a bloating feeling, and a sourness in the stomach. This led to a loss of appetite and I began to lose weight, and my nervous breakdown. I tried several different treatments without finding any apparent relief, and my nervous system had grown so shattered that I could not work. A priest who was interested in me advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I followed his advice. It was not long before they began to bring me back to health, and in the course of a couple of months my stomach was as sound as ever, my nervous system strong and vigorous, and I have since enjoyed the best of health. I owe all this to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for which I shall always feel grateful."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

How P.O. Opens Letters.

In Russia one letter in every ten passing through the post is opened by the authorities as a matter of course. Indeed, the postal authorities of every country have experts who have trained their eyes to a fine art. Some kinds of paper can be opened without leaving any trace, and this simple operation is finished by re-burnishing the flap with a bone instrument. In the case of a seal a matrix is taken by means of new bread-crumbs breaking the wax. When other methods fail the envelope is placed between pieces of wood with edge projecting one-twentieth of an inch. The edge of the envelope is flattened, then roughened, and finally slit open. Later a hair line of strong white gum is applied and the edges united under pressure.—London Chronicle.

Six Follies of Science.

The squaring of the circle, perpetual motion, the philosopher's stone, the elixir of life, magic and astrology. In all ages men of undoubted ability have toiled early and late to unravel the mysteries supposed to be connected with these fascinating problems. It is not always remembered that such intellectual giants as Bacon, Sir Isaac Newton and Sir Isaac Newton sought the philosopher's stone. In the study of astrology Lilly was for a time even pensioned by parliament. Most of these "follies" conferred indirect benefits upon science, for in seeking one thing they discovered many another. The craze for the secret, or unknown, has held upon men in seen in palmistry and kindred cults.

Number of Fatal Accidents.

During the month of May, three hundred and seventy-six people were killed or injured in Canada during the course of the day's work. Of these accidents thirty-eight per cent. were immediately fatal. Some day we will adopt as a first principle the idea that the workman must be given science's extreme protection no matter how expensive that protection may be.

Game Went Wrong.

The stranger had down four aces and scooped in the pot. "This game ain't on the level," protested Sagebrush Sam, at the same time producing a gun to lend force to his accusation. "That ain't the hand I dealt ye!"

HAVE HUGE AIRSHIP

WORLD'S LARGEST AND MOST POWERFUL AIRSHIP.

A Mile-per-minute Speed—Constructed to Remain in Cloudland for Days and Beat Any Rival on Earth.

London, June 22.—In a few weeks' time the largest, fastest, and most powerful airship in the world will be launched at Barrow.

This leviathan is the first airship ever constructed for the British navy, and it is the forerunner of a fleet of airships which are to be the Dreadnoughts of the air.

The same inviolable secrecy that was maintained during the rapid construction of the sea Dreadnoughts at Portsmouth is being preserved in the case of this vessel, which Messrs. Vickers Sons and Maxim are building at Barrow for the admiralty.

Only half a dozen people in the country possess knowledge of the entire design, and knowledge of sections is confined to the smallest possible number of officials and workmen, any of whom would be liable to penal servitude if he divulged any of the precious secrets connected with the vessels.

This airship is intended to be a battle ship of the air. It will be manned by a specially trained crew, and its duties will consist of thoroughly and quickly exploring the upper regions in search of the enemy's airships, overtaking them and destroying them and dropping explosives on the decks of warships below.

To carry out these duties effectively, Britain's airships will have to operate in the air several days on end, and have speed superior to that of any foreign ship, whether on the sea or in the air.

So far as can be gathered, both these vital conditions will be fulfilled. When completed, the ship will be nearly 200 yards long, and will mount a gigantic shed 200 yards long, 30 yards wide, and 40 yards high, which is now being finished at Cavendish Dock, Barrow.

The gas envelope alone will be of enormous proportions, far larger than that of the famous Zeppelin airship, while the vessel itself will be fitted with not only powerful engines, but with sleeping accommodations for the crew, and a number of special guns and mountings.

In regard to the speed, it is said on good authority that it is hoped to maintain a rate of sixty miles an hour under favorable conditions. Experiments are now being made with the object of finding out which is the best type of propeller to use. A curious-looking structure has been erected in Messrs. Vickers' engineering yard at Barrow for carrying out these experiments. It rather resembles a section of a steel suspension bridge, through the middle of which has been run a mast. At one end of the "bridge" a propeller is fixed on a shaft, a motor is set going, and the whole of the heavy structure is carried round and round at a terrific speed by the force of the revolving propeller.

The testing structure can be seen from the roadway, and when it is working many people try to figure out the speed at which it is whizzed around by the rapidly revolving propeller. The airship is being built in sections in the engineering shops. When completed the sections will be taken to the shed and assembled.

Trials on an extensive scale will be conducted and the ship will afterwards leave for her permanent station, which no doubt will be on the east coast. As soon as the trials are completed a fleet of airships will be built embodying whatever improvements on the original design are thought necessary.

Instruction in Honesty.

A few years ago there was a shiftless colored boy named Ransom Blake, who, after being caught a number of petty delinquencies, was at last sentenced to a short term in the penitentiary, where he was sent to learn a trade. On the day of his return home he met a friendly white acquaintance who asked:

"Well, what did they put you at in the prison, Rans?"

"They started in to make an honest boy out'n me, sah."

"That's good, Rans, and I hope they succeeded."

"They did, sah."

"And how did they teach you to be honest?"

"They done put me in the shoe shop, sah, nailin' pasteboard onter shoes to leather soles, sah."

What Hens Know.

Peterboro Review. A dog in Ashburnham knocked over a hive in its anxiety to find what was inside, and when the bees got through with him he was dead. This is one of the penalties for butting in. Some people are like that dog, and once in a while they get badly stung. However, this animal was not one of the wise old dogs of Ashburnham, Ontario, but a dog of Ashburnham, Essex, England. But chickens are wiser than dogs. They stand by the wire and when the drones come out later in the season, ejected by the working bees, they stand near by and eat them. They can distinguish the working bee from the drone, for the latter has a peculiar hum. The bee with the business end is left severely alone.

Calling Mr. Borden Downs.

In the political game, self-government ought to have developed a champion. Mr. Borden, on the contrary, as we understand him, will at the next election ask for a popular declaration that in all matters of war Canada shall abandon all pretensions to autonomy, and he would have us, of course, adopt the principle of taxation without representation. For greater self-government Canadians have been pressing, sometimes angrily and always sternly from the beginning of their political life. Does Mr. Borden think that he can float our political idols as William Lyon Mackenzie, Baldwin, Howe, Sir John A. Macdonald and Blake, or that in the long run he can escape the fate of George the Third and Lord North?

The heat record of the United States is held by Phoenix, Ariz., an official thermometer there once registering 119 degrees.

DANISH FARMS EXCEL

Systematic Education Secret of Husbandman's Success.

Copenhagen, Denmark, June 21.—Some very interesting figures have recently been printed which show why Denmark has come to be known as the "model farm" of Europe.

The soil of Denmark is naturally arid as compared with the rich meadows of more favored countries. Moreover, the climate is inclement, and the winters are by no means short. But the Danes—they number some 2,500,000—are of an excellent breed, and their education as farmers is the best yet evolved in any country. The total number of farms is 250,000, with a cultivated area of over 10,000,000 acres.

The land is thus divided: Less than 1 1/2 acres, 68,000 farms, 25,000 acres; from 1 1/2 to 13 1/2 acres, 65,000 farms, 450,000 acres; from 13 1/2 to 40 acres, 46,000 farms, 1,150,000 acres; from 40 to 150 acres, 61,000 farms, 5,900,000 acres; from 150 to 750 acres, 5,000 farms, 2,100,000 acres; more than 750 acres, 822 farms, 1,150,000 acres.

Quite eighty per cent. of the cultivators own their holdings, and these in consequence control the state machine, with an outlook on life almost exclusively agricultural. The minister of agriculture was a roof-thatcher, and four of the other ministers were small farmers.

Until about 1850 each farmer tool-sonely made his own butter, but then a butter-making machine of great utility was invented, and a number of Danish farmers clubbed together and bought a specimen. To-day there are 1,087 co-operative dairies, with 158,000 members, who ship to England yearly butter worth £200,000.

Then the farmers took to the use of skim milk for hog feeding, and a big bacon business was the by-product taking the form of thirty-four district co-operative abattoirs, with a membership of 90,000.

In 1895 was formed the famous Danish co-operative Egg Export Society. It has 57,000 members, and in 1908 its business amounted to £320,000. The peasant is, moreover, his own banker. There are 536 co-operative savings banks in the country, and it is now proposed to institute a great central bank to co-operate the whole of them.

The Danish farmers' education is unique. He is taught his business in school. Experiment stations are scattered all over the toy kingdom. He knows all about bacteria and ferments and nitrates and legumes. School attendance is compulsory up to fourteen. There are forty-two high schools and twenty-nine agricultural colleges—"practical seminaries"—for mature students, and it is to these the Dane owes his remarkable superiority as a husbandman.

Woman Suffrage in Britain.

Brantford Examiner. The woman suffragists of Great Britain are, considering their sex, putting a tremendous restraint upon themselves—are keeping quiet. This is accounted for by the fact that they are, woman like, having their own way—at least to an extent. A Bill to extend a larger franchise to women is before the British parliament.

The bill, which is a private one, is the product of a conciliation committee, on which some forty members of parliament served, and it is said to be sympathetically regarded by leading members of the government. It is not expected that the issue will become in any sense a party one, as members of all four political parties in Great Britain were represented on the committee, and all are anxious to get rid of a somewhat troublesome issue.

If the bill becomes law it will give votes to about a million women, which is about the proportion of strong-minded females—one in forty-five—to be expected in the forty-five million population of the motherland. If this legislation proves satisfactory, other women may want the franchise, and there will be a probable extension of it to others, than the single women and widows, chiefly included in the new legislation.

Great Men Will Differ.

Montreal Herald. If we took the list of public men, who have made history for us and great reputations for themselves; no two could be found who were in agreement about all the questions they dealt with together. Between Brown and Holton, between Mackenzie and Blake, between Blake and Cartwright, between Macdonald and Cartier, between Langevin and Chapleau, between Tupper and Wallace, between Thompson and McCarthy, between Bowell and Foster, there were differences on essentials, that imperilled, when they did not actually destroy, that mutual confidence which alone can give strength to governments which are charged with the duty of carrying on the business of the nation. This, it is well to bear in mind, is the normal, not the exceptional, order of our existence. We cannot exercise it. We must just, each in its sphere, do his best in the circumstances in which he is placed, according to his conscience and his abilities.

Are Synonymous.

Everybody's. "Poor Myra Kelly," said a magazine editor, "was almost as distressed as Mr. Carnegie at the spirit of graft and crookedness rampant among us."

"The young writer, at a dinner of magazine contributors, said that we worshipped wealth—that was our trouble. Then she crystallized her meaning in an anecdote.

"She said that one man asked another: 'What position does Bland hold in the community?'"

"A very honorable position," was the reply.

"Is he wealthy?"

"Wealth and honor," said the other, "are synonymous terms in America to-day."

THE LAND OF STORY BOOKS.

Robert L. Stevenson. "The lamp is lit, and the fire is burning brightly. They sit at home and talk and sing and do not play at anything. Now, with my little gun, I crawl into the dark along the wall and follow round the forest track away behind the sofa back. There is the night where none can spy. All in my hunter's camp I lie and play at books that I have read full of time to go to bed."
