Newport, R.L., July 7 .- Mrs. Herman Oelrichs, one of the handsomest and best gowned women in Newport, and New York, and a society leader, has furnished Newport with its latest sensation. In the role of detective, Mrs. Oelrich ferreted the identity of a persistent admirer who had annoyed her by writing love letters to her and rerealed him as the coachman of another of society's leaders.

The coachman is George H. Welch, who for many years was in the service of Mrs. J. R. Busk. It appears that he was much such a character as Thackeray describes in his "Yellow-plush," a self-convinced "lady killer" of the backstairs whose ambitions of this sort were bounded only by his unbounded self-esteem.
