IT'S A FALSE ALARM.

The fact that pulp wood of a kind, the poorer quality, short lengthed and peeled, is not in demand, and that there are many thousands of cords of it piled up in Quebec, suggests that the government regulation is operating against the people. But that is not so. The regulation does not affect the pulp wood cut on private property. It can be sold as formerly, subject to the United States import tax.

The lack of demand is due to another cause—the low water in places and consequent loss of power, and the strikes. These conditions are temporary, however, and cannot seriously interfere with the market for pulp wood.

This market remains, and the supply is dependant upon the demand, and it only. The attempt to stampede the Quebec government on the question, or to create a discontent over its action, will not succeed.

LABOUR AND LOYALTY.

There are two reasons why the militia should not be employed in local service, such as the maintaining of order during a strike. The first is that the volunteers enlist primarily for the defence of the country. They may, under the law, be called out for special duty. They will perform that duty, without fear, favour and affection, but they shrink from it because it is distasteful to them.

The cause of their call out may not be defensible, as in Brockville, where an attack was made on the trains and property of the Grand Trunk, but the average volunteers will act when ordered to do so. Still that is not the task to which he should be summoned, and the militia department has decided to send men of the permanent force to wherever it may be necessary to station them in the public interest.

The militia, too, are made up largely of union men, and they do not like to participate in any trouble which has a connection with labour's struggles. Indeed in the United States the labour leaders advise the members of the union to refrain from military service, however desirable it may be, lest they become embroiled in labour difficulties of a most unfortunate character.

It is a matter of regret always that labour riots occur. They may not be due to the labour party, but it has to bear the onus, since sympathizers seek by unworthy means to advance its cause.

W. J. BRYAN'S ILL-LUCK.

Bryan's was a name to conjure with. One recalls the day, some years ago, when at a democratic convention, assembled for the purpose of selecting a candidate for the presidency, he had risen, an unknown, and made a speech which electrified the audience.

Here was an orator with ideas of his own, with the courage of his convictions, with a policy that appealed to the people of the western states, with a plea for the recognition of silver that roused the enthusiasm of Nebraska. Amid a scene that beggared description he was proclaimed the saviour of his country.

For years he was the idol of his party. Three times he was the candidate for the highest office in the gift of the people. Each time he appeared to retain his popularity. He was still the peerless one.

Now he is abandoned by his state. At the late convention he was cursed publicly by the men who formerly supported him. His repudiation was at once emphatic and complete. And what is the occasion of his fall? His advocacy of an option plank in the party's platform. Bryan, not long since, in his paper, denounced the liquor traffic. He arraigned it for most of the crime and misery of the day. He insisted that the state party put itself on record upon the subject. And it did, rejecting his proposal by 647 votes to 198.

It is said that Bryan left the convention crushed and with the statement that he expected defeat. He was not, then, catering to current opinion, or he had seriously misjudged this public opinion. Two conclusions follow: That a great man has sacrificed himself on the altar of principle, and that a "wicked" cause has accomplished his ruin. It did look a while ago that the temperance party was becoming dominant in public affairs. The Bryan experience indicates that this feeling has been over-estimated.

Several observant papers have come out strongly in condemnation of the Grand Trunk company. One wonders if this is not in some measure due to political animus. The C.P.R. had a great strike some years ago, and these papers were very sympathetic.

JUSTICE AND MERCY.

The labour leaders and the Grand Trunk company have conferred with regard to the strike of the conductors, trainmen and switchmen, and this conference has not proved the way for a settlement. On the contrary the chances of a peaceful close of an intense situation is further away than ever. What a pity it is that the talk of these men was not confined to the question of arbitration. If a competent tribunal of unaffected men had been held a step towards reconciliation would have been probable.

What could be accomplished at a meeting at which neither side had any proposition to submit? The men desired to return to work, all of them, in the places they formerly occupied, accepting the increases offered by Mr. Hays before the strike occurred, the pensions to be restored to the employees, and the date when the standardization of wages was to take effect to be fixed by arbitrators. The answer of Mr. Hays was very harsh. The men would be considered one by one, as new employees, and without any claim upon the pensions.

Herein is the injustice of the situation. The men have earned their pensions. These were not forced upon the company in the first place. They represent a generous contribution to the fund from which worthy and long-served officials may be generally aided. But the company promised pensions only because of long service, and they represented legitimate rewards. Some men imperilled their standing and future when they went on strike but it is hard, if not impossible, to stand alone when thousands cease their work.

A contemporary talks about a law being passed to prevent a company depriving an individual of the pension he has earned. Yet parliament has nothing to do with it. Parliament cannot make a great corporation establish a pension fund and certainly cannot direct how it must be administered. But public opinion can intimate that a man may suffer in prestige and in salary in indulging in a strike, and that he should not lose the pension which was assured if not earned by long and faithful service.

The company, a recipient of many public favours, cannot afford to ignore the voice of the people upon this point.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Joseph Martin, M.P., is visiting Canada. He has no hesitation in saying that Mr. Asquith, as premier, is a failure. We need hardly ask what Mr. Asquith thinks of Mr. Martin.

To get themselves on record, two American scientists, Clark, a chemist, and Bicker, a geologist, have reckoned that the earth is 70,000 years old. And, in a sense, it is only an infant yet.

W. J. Bryan has fallen, but in a mighty good cause. The liquor party of his state has for the time accomplished his defeat, but it has not accomplished his ruin. He can wait for a vindication, and he will get it.

The Sentinel's repudiation of Mr. Kemp, who made an Orange or yellow address on July 12th, in Toronto, is significant. It means that some smart politicians may miss the mark of working the order for their own particular ends.

Mr. Bourassa wants to know whether Canada is French or English. It is Canadian, in aims, plans and purposes, and its people are Canadian, no matter what their origin may be. All classes are free and welcome, but not to build up or perpetuate their prejudices after the manner of Henri Bourassa.

The Mail is in tears day after day because it says the premier is preaching the doctrine of separation from the empire. He is talking of this young nation and of the necessity of developing its powers, but he has not talked of separation from the mother country. Nothing is to be gained by misrepresentation.

Earl Grey has started on his five thousand mile circle of the Canadian hinterland through the district of Keewatin, through Hudson Bay and around by the Labrador coast and Newfoundland back to Montreal. He is a most observant man, and he will, for Canada, make the most of his opportunity. As a missionary for this country he will be most valuable in the years to come, for Earl Grey is bound to be a leader in his class.

MAY BE STARVING.

Strange Colony in Maine in Absolute Want. Portland, Me., July 29.—It begins to look as though "Elijah," the head of the strange religious colony at Shiloh, had shot his bolt. A number of his "Holy Ghost, and Us" followers are deserting the camp, and information given out by those who have left the place that actual want exists. Within a short time the only food the followers of Sandford had were potatoes and cattle feed.

When he arrived from Palestine Sandford was in great need of money, and wanted $500. The town of Durham had just paid the Shiloh school teachers, and this money went to Sandford. The postmaster's salary also went the same way. The town of Durham is in the hands of Sandford.

The report is current that Holland, styled "Moses" by Sandford, is still at Shiloh, but that he has been disposed by the head of the movement, "Elijah," and other men are in charge. The condition without money, and with the glaring prospect of no crops is said to have struck terror to the hearts of many in the colony. The people are evidently losing their courage, and even getting distrustful of Sandford.

WILL RETIRE. Hon. W. A. Buchanan Tells His Supporters of Intentions. Lethbridge, Alta., July 29.—At the annual meeting of the Lethbridge Liberal Association, Hon. W. A. Buchanan said "that he had been loath to leave the government. He recognized at once that the A. & G.W. deal was indefensible from a business standpoint, but the issue was mixed up with so many political jealousies and ambitions on the part of the liberal members that it was necessary to be careful. He had acted according to his best knowledge and judgment in the matter and believed he had done right."

Mr. Buchanan paid a high tribute to the worth of the new premier, and in concluding stated his intention to retire at the end of his term as a member of the legislature. Not only had he had all the politics he wanted, but his defective hearing and the demands of his private business made it difficult for him to stay in politics.

SAVED BY WIRELESS.

A Burning Steamer's Passengers Taken Off. Lima, Peru, July 28.—Saved by wireless, fifty passengers and most of the crew of the steamer Hualaga, were brought to port Ucaiali. The Hualaga was burned to the water's edge, yesterday, off the Peruvian coast, according to dispatches received here. Several of the crew were killed in fighting fire and attempting to quell the panic, which followed close on the discovery of the blaze. The Hualaga, an oil burner of the Peruvian line, was bound from Panama. Only her wireless prevented a terrible disaster.

BROWN SEES NO SLUMP.

Says Wave of Prosperity is Due Inevitably. New York, July 29.—Satisfied that business conditions in this country are basically sound and that, instead of a slump, a wave of prosperity is sweeping over the land, William C. Brown, president of the New York Central lines, returned to New York from a ten days' trip through the west. He said the manufacturers, financiers, business men and farmers living west of Chicago cannot understand how any apprehension over the stability of American securities is possible.

DOCTORS ENDORSE HERPICIDE

Because Its Formula is Submitted to Them. Alexander McMillan, M.D., a prominent physician of Lansing, Michigan, writes: "On three cases I have tested Herpicide for dandruff and the result has been all that could be desired."

Herpicide is made upon an entirely new principle, that is, that dandruff and falling hair are caused from a microbe that infests the hair bulb, and, by destroying the microbe one's hair is bound to grow luxuriantly. Herpicide is the only hair remedy that claims to, and really does, destroy the dandruff germs.
