SUDDEN DEATH OF A CHILD.

Mr. and Mrs. F. V. Samwell Sorely Bereaved. A sad death occurred at the general hospital on Sunday morning, when the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Frank V. Samwell, of Guelph, and formerly of this city, passed away, after two days' illness.

The deceased child, who was only two years and three months old, had the misfortune to break her left arm a couple of weeks ago in Guelph, the very day her mother intended leaving with her sister, Miss Emily Stroud, of St. Paul, on a visit to their parents, Master Gunner and Mrs. W. A. Stroud, Rideau street. They arrived here the following day, and the child's arm was submitted to the X-rays at the general hospital and had to be re-set. She was making splendid recovery from her injury, under the care of Dr. Mylks, when she contracted pneumonia, and acute meningitis followed.

How Blind Read and Write.

Accompanying his annual letter, in which he asks the readers of the Whig to send him the names and post-office addresses of any boys and girls, known to them, whose eyesight is so defective that they cannot attend public schools with convenience, Principal Gardner, of the Ontario Institution for the Education of the Blind, at Brantford, sends us a card on which he has printed, without ink, the letters used by the blind in their reading. These letters, as composed of raised dots or points, arranged in two horizontal rows, and the combinations of points that have been contrived to represent the various literary, musical and musical characters, are much easier to read with the fingers than line letters, and blind children soon learn to read and write.
