No one questions the honest motives of those who advocate local option, or prohibition, or even the use of Regal Lager. But the temperate folk who use Regal Lager as a daily beverage for health's sake, know how mistaken is the idea that so pure and tonic a drink is an intoxicant.

SWIMMING PLACES.
A grand body of water lies in front of Kingston and, to our shame, there is not a place where the people can bathe or swim with safety. The city council should see to it that provision is made for quarters where the public can enjoy themselves in proper dress and under clean conditions. This means that some official must be in charge and paid for his time. The citizens generally, we are sure, would be as willing to be taxed for such an officer as they are for the officers who are appealed to very frequently to chase the lads away from the water, because they dared to lave in nature's garb in the pellucid waters which are one of Kingston's attractions.

PAVEMENTS IN TORONTO.
Toronto's committee on civic works has been discussing road pavements, and decided against putting down any more light asphalt. City Engineer Rust placed himself on record as in favor of sheet asphalt pavement as against asphalt block pavement, as he claimed it was the most satisfactory and durable. It will interest the local board of works to know that Toronto is still building macadam roads, and that the residents of a certain street objected to a recommendation of the city engineer that its macadam roadway be replaced by a medium asphalt pavement. The city engineer of Toronto told his works committee that there is a general movement in America in the direction of reducing the depth of the foundations for sidewalks, and that he was following out the new practice.

GOVERNMENT AND PROSPERITY.
Conservative journals now incline to the opinion that the prosperity of the country is due, not to the government, but to the resources and energy of the people. There is much truth in this view, remarks the Toronto Star in a thoughtful and able editorial, but our conservative friends do not hold it very steadily. Their view varies according to political exigencies. When depression existed under the Mackenzie regime, Mackenzie and his colleagues were blamed for it; and when Sir Richard Cartwright declared that a government could do little to make or unmake prosperity, he was scolded. A liberal government, it appears, is to be held responsible for depression but not for prosperity.

The bases of prosperity, of course, are the soil and all it yields, and the energy and industry of the people. But governments may do something to check or assist progress, and only a very rabid partizan would deny that both political parties in Canada have desired and furthered the growth of the country. In his speeches in the west, Sir Wilfrid Laurier gives full credit to the government of Sir John Macdonald for conceiving and carrying out the building of the Canadian Pacific railway. The British Columbian, however, is not satisfied with the premier's acknowledgments. It says: "Now, the business man might well assume that Sir Wilfrid would go on and reason that by the opening of the North-West by the Canadian Pacific, by that company's wise land settlement policy, by their enterprise and genius for advancing expansion, and great growth of Western Canada in recent years was also indirectly due to the conservative foresight of twenty-five years ago. Not so. Sir Wilfrid attributes Western Canada's progress to the stream of immigration pouring into the new land, which, he considers, was the result of the 'courageous policy' of his party, whatever that may be. The Canadian who thinks will not be misled by Sir Wilfrid's disingenuous statement that puts the effect before the cause, and will not be easily led to give Sir Wilfrid's government the credit he pleads for, that Western Canada is great because of the Laurier administration."
If credit is to be given to the conservative government for the building of the Canadian Pacific railway, it is surely fair and reasonable to credit the present government with a large share of the prosperity which the west is now enjoying. The fact is that after the building of the railway the conservative government did not display conspicuous energy or skill in developing the west, and the administration of Mr. Sifton and Mr. Oliver was in these respects in marked contrast with that of their predecessors.

The names of certain leading New Yorkers involved in a gambling raid are not to be made public "on account of their position and families." The late Magistrate O'Gara's epigram on a memorable occasion, in Ottawa, "I never make any difference between a well dressed and a poorly dressed set of blackguards," might well be nailed over the door of certain American court houses.

EDITORIAL NOTES.
The farmers of Quebec have safely harvested their hay, a good crop. Hay is the best asset the Quebec farmer has. Their barns are running over and the somewhat unusual spectacle of the hay stack is frequently to be seen—convincing evidence of the reality of the unexpected surplus.

J. P. Downey will be missed in the legislature. He was a progressive man and sometimes showed the government what it should do. But he is now set aside and Whitney et al will likely breathe easier, for editors are always busy when in public service. Hugh Clark can now set the pace.

Another M.P.P. has been given a snug berth, although it has been imputed as a crime to the federal government that it has appointed members of parliament to office. Both governments are in the same boat, and both are likely to remain there so long as the patronage system exists.

The St. John Telegraph remarks: "No one thinks of Ontario as a country with a low birth rate, yet it has less than fifteen births for every thousand of population. And in France, where there is frequently an outcry to the effect that the race is dying out, the number of births is slightly more than nineteen per thousand."

The New York Herald says some men who kicked themselves, yesterday, were those who, lacking faith, released their grip on Canadian Pacific though they knew its earnings were on the increase with every prospect of an increase in the dividend rate. Those who took their stock have no fault to find.

Hon. Mr. Murphy proposes to cut off a lot of the perquisites that members of parliament have, for a generation, been accustomed to regard as theirs as a matter of course at the public stationery department. Well, pointedly remarks the Hamilton Times, the members' indemnity is now large enough to cover any proper outlay in that direction.

JOSEPH W. BAILEY.

Presence of Financiers Leads to Interesting Rumors.
Winnipeg, Aug. 12.—The presence of four British noblemen and a number of prominent British financiers, who are awaiting the arrival of Norton Griffiths, the great British railway contractor, who is coming here direct from Chile, has led to rumors that they are planning an enormous new railway project. It is said a new transcontinental is being projected. Lord Dunlop, and Lord Dunmore have been here several days, and Lord Vivian and Lord Clinton came in last night.

Want to Tear Down.

London, Aug. 12.—According to the Rome correspondent of the London Globe, expert engineers have recommended to the Italian government that the famous leaning tower of Pisa be torn down, and re-erected on a better foundation.
The report of the engineers is supplementary to that they recently made, and follows a thorough examination of the foundation of the tower which is believed to be in danger of falling.
The tower was built in 1154. It is of white marble, 158 feet in height. The inclination from the top to the base is sixteen feet.

Will be at Toronto Exhibition.

Toronto, Aug. 12.—H. W. Just, C.B., C.M.G., a leading official in the colonial office in London, will be present at the Canadian National exhibition in Toronto, in a semi-official capacity. J. McE. Mowat, Kingston, will help in this. R. Biggs, his majesty's trade commissioner to Canada, may also be present.

Mate Received Shock and Made Unconscious.
The Advance one of the Montreal Transportation Company's barges, was struck by lightning as she lay at Jacques wharf, at lock No. 2 of the canal, at Montreal, on Thursday. The only damage done to the boat was a bit of railing knocked off. Mate McGillivray, Kingston standing near, received a severe shock, being rendered unconscious. The general hospital ambulance was called, but McGillivray had recovered when it arrived, and he remained on the boat.

There was a good attendance at Lake Ontario Park last evening, notwithstanding the various other attractions in the city. An elaborate and varied programme was presented. ### FIENDS KILLED MUSICIAN.

Violinist Played Until Exhausted—Brutally Beaten.

Buffalo, N.Y. Aug. 12.—Because he stopped playing his violin in a vacant lot last Sunday night, Jacob Kriozzo was so battered and kicked that his injuries have resulted in his death. The police, seeking his assailants, gave out the story to-day. Kriozzo was a laborer in the day time and a dance hall violinist at night, was crossing a vacant lot, homeward, after midnight when held up by several men who ordered him to take out his violin and play. Kriozzo played softly at first, many popular airs, then louder, hoping to attract attention of some passer-by. Pausing a moment in the weird light, he was brutally pounded and knocked down. Then, yanked to his feet, he was ordered to continue. He played until exhausted. Further blows were rained upon him and he was left helpless. It was morning before he was discovered and removed. His skull was fractured. He told of the assault and described his assailants, who are supposed to have been intoxicated.

Back to Scotland.

Much wonder is being expressed in the old country at the news that arrangements are being made by more than 2000 Scots, from Canada and the United States to charter two Allan Line steamers to Glasgow in connection with a "Back to Scotland" movement next year. A "Back to Scotland" movement among Scots abroad is regarded as too new to be true. What does the old rhyme concerning the northern portion of the northern kingdom say? "But of all the lads that leave their deil a an' gangs ever back."
