HOME FROM BURMAH.

Canadian Missionary Tells of Habits of the Kachins.

Full of interest is the story of a Canadian missionary's work among the Nat worshippers of Burma as told by Rev. F. J. Ingram of Brockville, Ont., who is returning to Canada by way of London, after seven years spent among the Kachins, a warlike tribe who live near the Chinese frontier, says Alex. Pringle, writing from London to The Toronto World. This race has no written language; the people are very poor and according to their belief are afflicted by evil spirits. The reasons they give for this trinity of misfortunes are very amusing.

Nat (spirit) worship forms the total sum of a Kachin's life and this bad luck race attribute every unfortunate happening to the baneful influence of the spirit. When a misfortune small or great happens to a Kachin it is to him a sign that the Nats are displeased with him and that sacrifice is necessary to avert further disaster. He immediately goes to a priest who decides what must be done to appease the wrathful spirit. The propitiation usually is the sacrifice of a bullock or buffalo. The animal is sacrificed and after a weird ceremony is carved up; the priest takes the best portions distributing to the people what remains.

Teaching a new religion to people like these must be very difficult. It is hard for most of us to divorce ourselves from early training and consequent prejudices and to adjust our minds in a fair attitude to new conditions. And the inability to adapt themselves to a new teaching is made more difficult to the Kachins by reason of the length of tenure of their old belief, and the hard task of a missionary can be well understood when the reasons which the Kachins give for the present unfortunate condition of the race, are related. The tradition is this:

When the creation of the world was finished the Great Creator summoned the four races to appear before him. The Kachins, Shans, Chinese and Burmans answered the summons and the chief of each race received a book of laws which contained their language and a solution to every possible problem of life. The book was written on leather.

The tribes dispersed. On the way home the Kachins grew very hungry and no food being available they cooked the leather book and ate it.

Shortly after the Creator again commanded the races to appear before him. Now the three other races had not destroyed their books and by referring to them found that the Creator intended to distribute great wealth. So they made big baskets in which to receive the tokens of good will. The Kachins did not take any baskets. The distribution was made and the Kachins having nothing in which to carry away the gifts went home empty handed.

A third order was issued. Experience had taught the Kachins, they thought a further distribution of wealth was to be made. They made large hampers and every man went joyfully to the meeting place. Not so with the other races. They learned from the books that evil spirits were on the program. They went few in number and without baskets.

Of course the Kachins received all the evil spirits. This did not end their misfortunes. Evil spirits are all right if they can be kept in a closed hamper. But the journey was long; the loads were heavy and frequent rests were necessary on the homeward journey. At each resting place they deposited a few Nats to lighten their load and this is the reason that their whole world is inhabited by evil spirits.

Mr. Ingram's house was six days' journey from the nearest point of civilization. Sometimes for six months he would not see a white face. His nearest "neighbors" were two Canadians engaged in the same work, Dr. Harper of Woodstock and Dr. Kelly of Toronto.

In connection with the Hibernian convention, on August 23rd, high mass will be celebrated in St. Mary's cathedral at nine o'clock by the grand chaplain, Rev. Father Richard Halligan.

THE SPORT REVIEW.

VICTORIAS EASILY DEFEATED THE IRISHMEN.

The Score Was 7 to 2—Junior Vics Beat Wolfe Island by 11 to 7—General Notes on Sports.

The Victorias outclassed the Irishmen in the city league baseball game on Saturday afternoon at the cricket field, winning by a score of 7 to 2. The Victorias had a few changes in their line-up. Dickson replaced Derry at first base, McMahon replaced McCartney at the second bag, while Gillespie played the field in McMahon's place. Purtell, who twirled stellar ball for the Irishmen in the two games, was rather weak, as his arm was very sore, but he had exceptionally good support. Lyttle, the centre fielder for the Irishmen, played a dandy game, getting a couple of seemingly impossible flies. Nicholson, the star fielder for the Vics made a record for himself getting two two-baggers in succession. The third time up he tried to make another, but was caught on a foul ball. Gillespie was put out the first three times he went up to bat, but managed to bring in a run in the seventh innings.

A great many people thought the Victorias did not care whether they got the game or not, but took no chances. Dickson played a good game on first base, but was rather weak at the bat. Tilson and Turcotte scored the two runs for the Irishmen.

Game at Wolfe Island.

The junior Victorias trimmed the Wolfe Island baseball team, Saturday afternoon. Last year, the Wolfe Island bunch had a feather in their caps, as they defeated the Victorias, the first time they had been beaten since they organized four years ago. The boys journeyed over this summer for the purpose of evening up things, and they did it too. The Vics say they had a good game and were treated well. The score was 11 to 7.

Baseball Gossip.

There will be a meeting of the executive of The Sunday School Baseball League, in the Y.M.C.A. rooms, this evening, to come to a decision regarding a protest which was put in by St. George's team after the game last Friday evening. There is also a protest from Sydenham juniors concerning the game with St. James' team last week. The captains of the senior teams and the umpire will be present to thresh the question out.

On August 8th, Ira A. The Modern Daughter.

"What time did you get to bed last night, Matilda?" inquired the young woman's father.

"Parent," replied the haughty girl, "if you will address me by my right name I will endeavor to answer your somewhat abrupt query. I do not answer to Matilda because my name is Mathilde."

"Very well, Mateeld, go ahead with your answer."

"I do not know what time I retired," the fair girl responded. "Mr. Robinson Jones offered to remain here until the appearance of the comet."

"Good gracious," cried the excitable parent, "it must have been half past three!"

"For that," said the girl with calm indifference, "you must blame the comet."

And she swept haughtily from the room.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
