

GUARD THEIR HEALTH!

Children Who Grow Very Fast
Need Careful Watching.

Next to infancy, the years between ten or twelve and eighteen are the most critical in life, especially for the boys and girls who grow too fast. Rapid growth and the physical changes that are taking place render them particularly liable to weakness and disorders of the digestive system, kidneys or lungs that very frequently, when allowed to run on, condemn them to a lifetime of suffering.

It is most important that at this period of life those organs which carry off the body's waste and impurities—the bowels, the kidneys and the skin—should be kept active and vigorous.

Nothing will do this more effectively than that good old-fashioned remedy, Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills. It acts directly on each of these organs, enabling them to do their work properly, and thus keeps the whole system pure and healthy.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills are still made from precisely the same formula as when our grandfathers used them, for nothing better has ever been devised.

SIR JAMES' LOUD TALK.

The premier of Canada has made a dignified and effective reply to the premier of Ontario, who, in England, has been talking, and once more through his hat. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, at Nelson, B.C., referred to the tariff. He had been interviewed by free traders and protectionists, in his trip across the country, to change the tariff, and he had only to say that it was not perfect and would be amended, but not in the interest of any one party.

"It will be our own," said he, "to evolve a tariff suitable to all men and calculated to benefit the whole country. One thing we have done, the cardinal feature and outstanding principle is the British preference, and so long as we stay in office it will remain." That is emphatic enough and Sir James Whitney will probably read it with some concern and snap his jaws in anger.

The premier of Ontario was evidently playing some one's game when he gave out, in his own peculiar way, that unless something were done to harmonize the British and the Canadian fiscal systems, the empire, so far as Canada was concerned, would be but a recollection. Sir Wilfrid's answer, though indirect, was very decisive. Said he:

"Our opponents say we should ask Britain to change her fiscal policy. How absurd! It is not the policy of the Canadian government to ask Britain to change her fiscal policy one iota. We make our own fiscal arrangements to suit our own interests, so with Britain. Yes, and more: I have heard it said that unless Britain gave Canada some mutual tariff arrangement there was danger of the estrangement of our dominion. This is an insult to the Canadian people. Let the world know that the loyalty of Canada to the British empire, of which she is proud to be a part, is not dependent on any tariff agreement. Canada is united to the motherland in heart and in life, independent of all tariff arrangements.

That is the talk that counts for something, and that is the expression that, copied into the British papers, will carry conviction wherever the name of Laurier is known. Canada rejoices that it has a premier that can speak so nobly and patriotically when the occasion calls for it.

A WHO'S WHO DEPARTMENT.

Students are arriving in the city and they are realizing the drawback of not knowing where to find certain persons with whom they have to do business and get certain information. The result is a feeling that what Kingston wants, and very badly, is a publicity department at which a visitor may call and get the help and advice he needs. A publicity department need not be expensive.

In some of the larger cities it has assigned to it duties and functions of a very important character. The head of it negotiates with those who contemplate business relations or new industries, and who can be enamored of a place by being shown the courtesies and attentions they appreciate. But a publicity department can be carried on without the contingencies which sometimes mean expenses of a considerable size.

The demand of the present is for information with regard to the schools and colleges. The heads of them should be accessible for some days before they are opened. One head has been hunted for some days, without success. He has, to some seekers, been as securely inaccessible as though hidden from view. That surely is a condition that should not exist. The office and hours of each one should be advertised. For every institution there should be one who knows everything, or who can look up what he does not know, and meet, civilly and pleasantly, the students and their friends.

The Whig has in mind a complaint which was made to it by a student last year. He said he spent many hours in trying to learn what courses he should follow at college and what books he should buy. He was handed a calendar, which contained a great deal of matter. Some of it he did not understand. He persisted in his questions, and was sent from one person to another, until he became weary of the task. In business, customers, or prospective customers, would not be treated in that way.

Men are wondering what is the matter with the old city—an occasional eye is wandering abroad and seeing if other cities possess that which is not to be found in Kingston—and the fact is that our people do not make the most of their opportunities. The best that can be done is to give those who come to the city on business the attention that is their due, or the information which they want with regard to our institutions.

Napanee, Sept. 2.—Roland Hawley, Newburgh Road, won $25 from M. E. Mitchell, proprietor of the Paisley house, on Wednesday. The wager was that Mr. Hawley could not walk four miles in an hour. "Rolly" showed him that he could, and won out in forty-nine minutes and forty-nine and a half seconds.

The annual Lennox fall fair will be held, this year, on Thursday and Friday, September 15th and 16th, and the directors are sparing no pains to make this the best ever.

HOWE'S GREAT SHOWS.

No Adjectives Needed to Describe This Production.

The capacity of the big tents is always tested during Howe's Great London Shows' engagement, and it is best to allow the children to come to the afternoon exhibitions, where the new menagerie can be seen to much better advantage and more time given to absorb the descriptive knowledge so pleasantly unfolded by the gentlemanly lecturers.

The white city is a beautiful picture on the green, and thousands of sight-seers will take advantage to inspect this monster moving caravan. The horse stables alone are worth visiting to all lovers of the gentle equine, for Howe's London "horse show" is unequalled; there the ponies should be seen; also the culinary department, a marvel in itself. The blacksmith shop, the electric light plant and an hundred places will be found of interest.

Only work of an absolutely necessary character is done on Sundays. If the weather is fine and the water is not too cold, the elephants will be given a bath.

Every one will see the vast improvement and enlargement of this, the best of all the large tented aggregations.

Each department is so completely filled with foreign and American features that it is capable of being transported and handled in a satisfactory manner. The show will be here on Monday, September 21st.

SOUNDING THE ALARM.

Mr. Taft has undertaken to scare the people on the tariff question. In the last presidential election he championed a lower tariff. It was demanded in the Western states and it appeared to be inevitable. The senate, however, had its own idea of tariff reform, and this idea was to give the tariff a tilt upwards, and the evidence of this lies in the fact that last year the customs revenue was increased in the United States by about twenty millions of dollars.

There is a congressional election at hand, and all the signs point to a defeat of the republican party. In several states there have been electoral tests and they have been against the government. The change in public sentiment has been attributed to the dissatisfaction of the people with regard to the tariff. This dissatisfaction is widespread, and, taken in connection with the insurgent movement, has alarmed the party. The result is evident in the later appeals of the leaders.

Mr. Taft warns the people to be wary of the grout that will, at the polls, give the upper house to the democrats, for all they can do is engage in tariff agitation to the serious injury of the industrial and business interests of the country. The chairman of the New York state committee admonishes the party against the agitators who are seeking to destroy the peace of the merchant, the manufacturer, and the labourer, by electing men who would lay violent hands on that sacred thing called the tariff. The talk is familiar. It sounds like a repetition of what was heard in Canada during the election of 1896.

The grits were out. They were a bad, a wicked, a perverse lot. They had designs on the National Policy. They would wreck it if they could, and, incidentally, do mischief to the business of the people. Therefore the electors were advised to avoid them as they would a pest, and to stand by the party which had given them the assurance of peace and prosperity. And the people, exercising the good sense which usually possesses them, hurled the corrupt gang from power and gave way to the liberals. Their reign has been one of the best. The country never knew what prosperity really meant until the Laurier government took office. It may not be an ideal administration—and the ideal has never existed—but it has given the country good laws, a good tariff, and an expansive and progressive policy.

It might be the same with the democrats. They have been long enough in opposition to learn wisdom and prudence, and they should show proof of this when they get a chance.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The constituencies represented by conservatives in the North-West are asking for public buildings, chiefly post offices, and the premier is promising them. Fribing the people openly. Audacious acts.

There is an agitation to extend the Intercolonial railway to Toronto, in the west, at a probable cost of $20,000,000. It is a big scheme, and one that has its opponents, though the commission now running the road favours the scheme.

There is a mania for suicide among some people. They are sufferers from something. There is nothing quite so demoralizing as the love blight. Witness the shooting of the young woman in New York, whose literary failures were culminated with a lover's quarrel.

Kingston ought to have closer railway connections, but they are costly. The G.T.R., when asked some years ago, what it would expect to divert its track and plant its depot in the city, suggested a quarter of a million dollars. A mere trifle, of course, for a city of our pretensions.

The Emperor of Germany explains that he did not mean, by his late speech, that he was under the protection of the Highest and working under any special commission. He assumed that every "honest Christian" did the same. Blessed assurance. How the world must be appeased!

Mr. McBride, of British Columbia, welcomed Premier Laurier, and tendered him a reception. Before leaving British Columbia, Sir Wilfrid had occasion to attend a political meeting in the interest of his party, and he criticized the McBride government. The Montreal Gazette, in consequence, is inclined to call him bad names. Did the reception purchase his silence?

Secretary Lighthall, of Montreal, refers to the several combinations that have seriously afflicted the municipalities: (1) the telephone company, now a slumbering volcano; (2) the Mackenzie & Mann company, with its powerful pull at Ottawa; and (3) Pierpont Morgan syndicate which aims at controlling the franchises, water powers and natural resources of Canada. The fight against these forces must be waged and severe.
