His ante-nuptial agreement with the famous singer shows him up as one of those characters who exist mainly for the purpose of being separated Nfrom their money. A former wife is now separating him from $20,000 alimony

The agreement Mr. Chanler made with Mme. Cavalieri represents exactly the second class chorus girl's idea of paradise, a business marriage to a rich husband who has no claim on you, so that you can keep on with your art, whether it be of lungs or of legs, send him home when you are tired of him, keep right on getting $20,000 a year as long as he lives, and get all his income after he is dead, a provision which lessens sweetly the pangs of final parting. No one can sympathize with the victim of such a trade.
