WONDERFUL ACT COMING

To the Orpheum for the Rest of the Week.

The Griffin Amusement Company, of Toronto, proprietors of the Orpheum Theatre is doing all in its power to make its house attractive to the theatregoing public. In fact they do more than any other house can do.

The company has a circuit of over 200 houses in Canada and the United States, the largest vaudeville circuit in the world. An attraction starting at the first house takes two years to complete the circuit. By this means it is able to give to the public acts that otherwise would be impossible to show on account of the enormous expense. That this company will give the best for their money is proven by the acts which it is showing here all the time. Each week sees a better bill put on than was seen the preceding week.

For the last three days of this week the company will produce a bill the like of which was never shown in Kingston before. In fact, it is the only act of its kind in existence. Some shows say: "We have many imitators, but none can come up to our standard." This act has no imitators, for the reason that no one has been able to find out how the thing is done. This wonderful man is known as "Mankel, the wonder of the age," or "The Mysterious Handwriting On The Wall." His act is called "The Mystery of Babylon." He takes a piece of what appears to be congealed ink about the size of a hickory nut and throws it on a large writing pad which stands on the stage. The substance sticks there and when commanded to write does so without the assistance of the operator. It will write anything commanded to by anyone in the audience. It is the most puzzling thing ever witnessed on any stage in this country. This act is costing the management $50 a day while it is here, and in addition to that it has another act. Rodgers and Roberts, colored singers and dancers are a complete show in themselves. A complete change of two reels of pictures every day is a new feature. The illustrated song is changed twice a week. Don't fail to see this big act while it is here.

Friendly games of croquet are going on every day in the park and as the season is advancing when no longer may we hear the click clack of the mallets as they swing, the enthusiasts, so careful are they not to lose a single moment are on the ground morning, noon and night, we might almost say, just snatching time for meals in between. May the ardour of these enthusiasts never pale. All luck to the finishing of the tournament, when and where?

DOMESTIC ADMITTED THEFT IN THE POLICE COURT.

And the Magistrate Remanded Her a Week for Sentence—Member of the "Prohibited List" was Fined—Michael McNally Has a Heap of Trouble.

"I plead guilty to theft, your honor, and am at your mercy."

Mary Johnston, a middle-aged woman, made this plea in the police court, Wednesday morning, when accused of stealing some wearing apparel and household goods, valued at $25, from the home of Capt. William Robertson, of 41 Frontenac street, where, during the summer, she was employed as a domestic. The magistrate remanded her for a week for sentence.

The charge was that she did on or about June 4th steal and carry away the goods. Constable Craig was given the case and made the arrest. He made a search of the trunk of the accused and found quite a lot of the stolen property in her possession but it appears there is yet a few articles of clothing missing. The accused admits having stolen the goods, which Constable Craig recovered, but says she knows nothing whatever about the rest of the goods, alleged to have been taken.

"I plead guilty to stealing what the constable found," said the accused, when arraigned, "but I do not know anything about the rest. I can kiss the Bible on that."

No evidence was taken in the case, the magistrate remanding the prisoner for a week.

Poor Michael McNally. Talk about hard luck. Michael has his share all right. Yesterday noon he completed a term of three months for drunkenness—his old charge—and before night-fall he was again gathered in by the police. Michael is not like some other people. Every time he gets under the influence he falls by the wayside and has to be taken in charge by the police. Others have friends, or manage by some means to reach snug harbor.

The magistrate told the accused that it would be to his advantage if he were kept at the jail all the time. However, as he had not served a term he was inclined to give him a chance but in doing so, he told Michael that the next time he came up, it would mean a good, stiff sentence. There was no use sending him to jail for a short time, it appeared that he could not keep from drinking, and the only way to deal with him would be to put him away for a good term.

Michael took the chance, with sincere thanks.

Under the influence of liquor, when a member of the "prohibited list."

Such was the charge against Andrew McConville. He pleaded guilty, and the magistrate imposed a fine of $10 and costs, or one month.

Asked where he had secured the liquor, the accused said that he met a friend from Berlin, giving the name, and said that his friend had liquor, and gave him some. The charge was rather old, that of being under the influence of liquor on August 25th.
