IT IS A REPUBLIC

OVERTHROW OF MONARCHY IS ACCOMPLISHED.

Part of Army Loyal to King—Massed in Entrenched Camps About the City of Lisbon—Serious Clashes Likely.

Lisbon, Oct. 7.—While the city of Lisbon is in the hands of the revolutionists and a republic has been proclaimed, with Theophilus Braga as provisional president, and other prominent republicans constituting the ministry, there are still many thousands in and around the capital who are loyal to the monarchy.

The monarchists include a portion of the labor troops massed in entrenched camps about the city. These have effected so far to ally themselves with the revolutionists, and the provincial government is taking steps to enforce allegiance.

The people of Lisbon are ignorant of the situation in the provinces and it is therefore not known whether the movement is broad enough to sweep the country. Nevertheless the republicans are proceeding as though the transformation of the monarchy into a republic was an accomplished fact, a stand for all time.

For months past preparations have gone on for the overthrow of the king, and it was definitely arranged to raise the cry of revolt on Wednesday. It so happened that the king was about to take his residence at Cascaes, and the warships were ordered to proceed there.

The navy, which is the chief support of the revolutionists, thereupon decided to act immediately; otherwise had defensive arm of the country could not have offered no assistance in carrying out the plan.

Monarchs at midnight the revolutionists, accompanied by numerous partisans, went to the barracks of the Sixteenth regiment of infantry. The doors were immediately thrown open to the populace, and arms were distributed to thousands.

The barracks of the First regiment of artillery were next visited, and the guns were dragged forth. The revolutionists marched to the highest point of Lisbon, a fine strategical position, where artillery was mounted, threatening the town.

The government troops immediately took up a position in the centre of the town, about two miles distance from the revolutionists, where heavy guns and Maximas were placed to oppose the enemy. Meanwhile the insurgent cruiser Adamastor steamed up in front of Lisbon, ready for bombardment, while the cruiser Rafael proceeded down the river, taking position opposite the seamen's barracks, which, having joined the revolutionaries, surrounded by a force of men guards.

The bombardment commenced and the whole town trembled to its foundations. A regiment of municipal cavalry made a brilliant charge in an endeavor to take the insurgents' camp near the railway, but were met with a terrible fire by the artillery. This regiment was almost annihilated, only three men escaping.

The revolutionists showed extraordinary courage and sustained an attack on all sides by superior forces for two days and nights. On Tuesday the Admaston shelled the Neigesides palls, and King Manuel and the Queen Mother Amelie were forced to escape to Cascaes, from which place they went to Mafra.

The same night the Admaston and sailed west the centre of the town, doing much execution among the monarchist forces, and finally the latter, tired of the carnage, surrendered. The republic was proclaimed in the afternoon and the republican flag was hoisted on the public edifices.

Portugal's President.

Dr. Theophilus Braga, who has been named president of the provisional government, is a man about fifty-five years old, and a graduate of a leading European university. He began his practice of medicine in Lisbon when a young man, and has been prominent throughout Portugal for nearly years past.

About three years ago Dr. Braga identified himself with the intellectual wing of the republican party, and became president of the Committee of Seven of that organization. In this office he wielded great political power and his undoubted honesty and well-known integrity won many supporters for the party which was destined to obtain control of affairs. He was long associated with Dr. Bernardino Machado, one of the foremost professors of the Lisbon university, and who is prominently mentioned as the first president of the new republic.

Dancer and the King.

Vienna, Oct. 8.—Mme. Gaby Deyds, the French dancer, whose name has been connected with King Manuel, who is said to have showered gifts upon her, is filling a vaudeville engagement here. She is indignant at the stories that King Manuel supported her, and that Portugal is suffering from his extravagance on her account. She said to-day:

"I am making $250 a night dancing, I am richer than the king, perhaps." She added that when she went to Lisbon in February to perform at a charity concert, she stayed at an hotel and not at the palace. She was introduced to Queen Amelie. She never received anything from King Manuel, but small tokens of affection. She receives a letter from him recently, in which he said he hoped to meet her in Paris in October.

A Teacher's Difficulty.

St. Thomas Journal.

Now that Ontario has a real teacher's problem, and students in every county are starting under the effects of permanent legislation, perhaps Sir James Whitney will take notice. Or the people will make their voice heard.

For all practical purposes there seems to be but one remedy for the present state of affairs—the re-establishment of the model school. Let Sir James be bold enough to bring this time, and admit his mistake?
