TWO MEN ARRESTED BY THE POLICE.

Charge Against Charles Killen Dismissed in Police Court—Thomas Jenman Elected Trial by Judge, and Was Committed for Trial—Evidence Taken in the Case.

The charge against Thomas Jenman and Charles Killen, in police court, Tuesday morning, was that they did steal the sum of $94 from one George Turner, employed as a shipper at Crothers' biscuit factory, Jenman is a barber and Killen is a carter. Both men were placed under arrest, shortly after midnight, last night, by Constable James Downey.

Crown Attorney, Whiting conducted the prosecution, and J. McE. Mowat appeared on behalf of Killen, and entered a plea of "not guilty," and asked for a summary trial. Nearly two hours were required in taking the evidence in Killen's case, after which it was dismissed. Jenman elected to be tried by a judge, and was committed for trial.

Turner was the first witness called, and he told of having gone to a restaurant, last night, with John McCaul, employed at Bibby's livery. They left the restaurant about midnight, and went to Bibby's livery. Witness then left the livery about 12.20. At the time, he had in his possession three $20 bills, two or three $10 bills, and four $1 bills. On October 1st, he had drawn $130 out of the bank, in order to pay some bills. He came down Brock street, and when near Waldron's store, some one came up from behind him, raised his arms, and he felt some one put a hand in his pockets. He recognized Jenman and Killen as the men who were near him at the time. Constable Downey came along just after he had cried out that he had been robbed, and he asked that the two men be arrested. Witness said Constable Downey at once took charge of Killen, and Jenman walked to the corner, and then came back again. Then both the men denied having stolen the money and said they were willing to go to the police station, to be searched. They were then taken to the station. Afterwards, witness, with Sergt. Nesbit, went back to Waldron's corner, and the sergeant picked up four $1 bills. Afterwards, they went to Bibby's livery. McCaul said that he knew that Turner had money, and taking a lantern, McCaul went with witness and Sergt. Nesbit and they looked for the rest of the money. Near the edge of the walk, near a stone, McCaul picked up three $20 bills and two or three $10 bills.

The stand taken by Bishop Fallon in favor of a sound English education for the children of his diocese, in place of the absolute breakdown of the so-called bi-lingual schools there, in, is one of the best exhibitions of patriotism, if we may use the term, that we have seen in many a day. It is a fine rebuke to that irresponsible junta in Montreal that has undertaken not only to run the province of Quebec and the dominion, but proposes now to dictate to the people of Ontario what their system of education shall be, and that the teaching of French shall be the least of our responsibilities that devolve upon this province to educate all her children.
