The Whig is in sympathy with the Montreal Herald when it comment upon, and regrets that the grea minority in Canada, the conservative party, is not given by a liberal government some representation in the Senate. The observation is upon the appointment of two liberals following the death of two conservative members of the upper house. One recalls the difficulties of the aurier government when it took office in 1896. The Senate was overwhelmingly conservative, and it seemed to be as active as possible in its hostility to the government of the day. It failed to perform its functions with that udicial fairness which parliament and the people had a right to expect. Then Dr. de Van's Female Pills it was that the premier and others A reliable French regulator; never fails. . This suggests a gentle protest on the part of the Herald. "On the broad est ground," it remarks, "looking to the future of Canada, and the hope of being able to work all together for the general good, it is in the highest degree impolitic to treat rich, powerful, or otherwise influential or import ant minorities so that they feel, wherever their nature, that for them. Mr. Plake used to say, the measure scaped up, pressed down and running over. And nowhere else can so much be given at so little cost as in the representation allowed them in public

FOULING WATER SUPPLIES.

A document of rare value, particularly at this time, when the question of typhoid ever is engrossing the pub-He attention, is the address, just printed, of Dr. Hodgetts, in Ottawa and so late as October 10th.
