An extremely sad and pathetic death occurred on Sunday night, when, without a moment's warning, and while with her husband, about her household duties, at 6:30 o'clock, Mrs. William Kelly, wife of W. Kelly, photographer, fell to the floor and expired.

In common with most of her deceased relatives, the late Mrs. Kelly was subject to heart trouble, and during recent years passed through indescribable suffering.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Kelly, who was a staunch Methodist in religion, will likely occur on Wednesday morning from her late home, Joseph street, to Cataract cemetery, and will be private.

To Queen's Alumni on "Conservation of Life."

The chancellor's lectureship this year in connection with the Theological Alumni conference at Queen's university, is to be delivered by Prof. A. L. Knight, of the chair of biology.

Prof. Knight says he intends to give one lecture on heredity, two on sanitary science or public health, and one on personal hygiene.

1. By heredity. There is a systematic effort to improve the heredity of the race. In Indiana, Connecticut and Michigan, there is a law to improve the heredity of life by forbidding the marriage of people suffering from transmissible diseases.

DUAL LANGUAGE SOLUTION.

Let French Lads Wed Irish Lassies—That's the Cure.

By Prof. Paul Debye. It is not true that man, endowed as he is with social instincts, will at times, crave a colloquy with his fellowmen, and if he is of a reflective turn of mind, passing events in their swift succession cannot fail to furnish ample opportunity for indulging that inclination.

As to myself, when not playing, I preach, which is a trifle easier than practicing, and if there be a law I love to extol, it is to treat others as we like to be treated, which excludes advocating crime in one case and dealing out skinned milk in the other.

And, now, too, in the near future, Ireland and Scotland are to have their local government as we have in Canada. Then, indeed, will I—Brix's skis gleam with grateful joy and Caledonian hills resound with hoarse yells, and the thistle and shamrock and the rose thus entwined in mutual confidence and love shall consecrate a bond too holy ever to be broken.
