REID & CHARLES

AMERICAN GIRLS ALL FLIRT. Countess Tells of Teaching Women How to Smoke. San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 4.—Countess de Swirsky, who is now in this city, says that while at Newport some of the young society women employed her to teach them the art of smoking. 'Three of them were my pupils,' she admitted today. 'The names I will not tell. For I said I would not. They could not learn to dance. They had not the music. They could play the piano, yes, but they had not the music in the mind. They pay $20 every half hour for the lessons, which they wanted all the four weeks. I tried five days. That was enough. They could wait, but the classic dance—oh, that was so impossible? and the countess laughed in glee. 'They could not learn; they had not the music,' she continued. 'But they were beautiful, especially charming. And like all the American girls, they would flirt, flirt all the time. 'Dress and flirtation are the first things with the young society women of America. Is it not the same in Europe? In France it is somewhat so, but not in Russia. Oh, no! The Russian women in the higher ranks develop the mind and do not care for the superficial things so much. They become physicians, advocates or something that requires study.

FORGAVE SLAYER

JAMES FOX TRIES TO SAVE JOHNSON FROM GALLOWAYS.

Declares in His Dying Moments That Man Was Not Responsible for His Actions—Victim Was Preventing Johnson From Committing Suicide.

Fort William, Nov. 1.—Partly recovered from an insane fit, during which he mottally wounded James Fox, on Sunday, Dave Johnson is now in the cells awaiting trial, being brought in by Constable Stringer. The charge is softened somewhat by the heroic action of his victim, who, on his death-bed, made a statement vindicating Johnson, on the ground that he was not mentally responsible for his actions. That the dead cook, who breathed his last in McKellar hospital, is entitled to the highest honor respect, is evident from the fact that he died trying to save a fellow-workman from possible suicide. When informed that his hours were numbered he made an attempt to have the other cook released from the order indictment by the statement that the man did not know what he was doing.

HATES MODERN WEDDINGS.

Prof. William Robert Smith Criticizes Present Day Customs. British and United States publications, not merely the society sheets and women's magazines, but some of the great daily newspapers have been devoting columns of space to the discussion of a pronouncement of Prof. William Robert Smith, M.D., F.R.S. against the giving and taking of wedding presents on the ground that the practice is immoral as tending to extravagance, to squandering of waste and to imposition. Some publications, which have resented this structure upon a practice which has developed rapidly of recent years, have attacked the critic as 'an impossible crank probably more at home among the dusty tomes of his antiquated library than he would be in modern society. As a matter of fact, the learned 'Professor', is besides being one of the most up-to-date medical practitioners in London, considerable of a lion in the highest professional social set in the world's metropolis, having a splendid city home in fashionable Bloomsbury square, as well as a country place at Plumstead, in Kent. He is a member of four of the most fashionable and smart clubs—the Carlton, the Royal Societies, the Savoy and the Pilgrims. He comes by his title of 'Professor' as the occupant of the chair of Forensic Medicine at King's College, London, and was educated at Aberdeen and Edinburgh Universities, taking the degrees of M.D. at the former and D.Sc. at the latter. Besides being a physician and a barrister, having studied for that profession at the Temple, and having taken the degree of Doctor of Laws at Cambridge. He was also granted an honorary degree by the University of Geneva. Dr. Smith is anything but a mere bookworm, his activities having been varied and numerous. He was one of the Departmental Committee of the War Office that drew up the scheme of volunteer medical organization, which proved so useful during the South African War, and still holds the rank of colonel in the Royal Army Medical Corps. He was the founder of the 'British Institute of Public Health' and is now principal of the Royal Institute of Hygiene. He has for many years been regarded as the foremost champion in Britain of the cause of public health, maintaining that sickness and the death rate can be tremendously reduced by the introduction and rigid enforcement of well-ventilated for the provision of perfect water and drainage systems, the construction and equipment of homes, factories, schools, institutions, etc., on hygienic principles, the inspection of foods, the segregation of the sick, the disposal of the bodies of the dead, etc. etc. To his credit it is mainly due that statutory provision was made requiring that medical health officers in Great Britain must possess special qualifications in the department of public health and hygiene, special courses being established in all the medical schools to afford doctors this particular training. As a manager of the Metropolitan Asylum Board he has taken a prominent part in dealing with the question of infectious disease treatment in London, and the result has been the establishment of a system which is regarded as a model one throughout the world. With a view of having the London schools placed in a thoroughly hygienic position, the Metropolitan School Board some years ago appointed him first medical officer to their body, and under his direction the work was carried through with great thoroughness. During his active career Dr. Smith has found time to write several medical books, all regarded as standards—'Family Health' and 'Weekly Star.'

TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL.

Series of Addresses Will Likely be Arranged For. The regular meeting of the Trades and Labor Council was held on Thursday evening. The president, George Lewis, occupied the chair. The secretary was instructed to confer with Prof. Skelton, of Queen's, regarding the lecture he is to give before the council. Some time ago he notified the members that he would be willing to give them an address and the members that he would be willing to deliver the address at the next meeting to be held on Nov. 27th. Miss Alice Chown was present and addressed the members on the advantage of having a series of lectures on different topics delivered during the winter season. She suggested, in a timely address, that arrangements be made for special addresses. Miss Chown was tendered a vote of thanks for her address and the executive was instructed to consider her suggestion. Owing to the withdrawal of Frederick Curtis from the council William Buck was elected as district organizer. W. Bowell gave the members an address on 'The Union Label.'

The Plowman.

To turn a single acre of ground with a twelve-inch plow requires eight and one-fourth miles of heavy furrow travel. In plowing one square mile of land the solitary plowman and his horse must walk 5,280 miles. It would be easier (and the distance is less) to walk around the earth at the equator (if there were no ocean) than to follow a plow turning a prairie five square miles. To equal our national rate of plowing—the work of myriads of teams, each using force sufficient to move seven tons over a good stone road—it would take an army of 4,550 medical officers to travel as far as from the earth to the moon and back again. For the world's yearly labor of this kind it would send about 80,000 men on that same half million mile journey.—World's Work.
