

Dropsy

Given up by Doctor

"I had dropsy, and was told by my family physician that there was no chance for me. My family also gave me up. My limbs and body were swollen one-third larger than natural, water collected around my heart and I had to be propped up in bed to keep from smothering. I took Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy until I was entirely cured. This was in 1902, and I am now able to do any kind of work on my farm. My cure was certainly marvelous."

DESERONTO DEATHS

BOY SCOUTS FOLLOWED REMAINS OF COMRADE.

The Late Richard De C. Marrigan—Miss Eveline Post Died of Typhoid-Pneumonia—Mrs. Thos. Hyatt Died in Ottawa.

Deseronto, Nov. 5.—At the family residence, St. George street, on Wednesday morning there passed away a bright young life, in Lawrence John Knox, aged fourteen years, second son of Mr. and Mrs. James Knox, after an illness of one week duration of inflammation. He is survived by his parents, one sister, Miss Florence and one brother of the Bank of Toronto, Galt. The funeral was held at their residence on Friday afternoon, the service being conducted by Rev. J. Shaver, of Picton, after which the remains were taken to Deseronto cemetery vault. In addition to the immediate family, a number of sympathetic friends, including a wreath from his school class, and boy scouts of which he was a member, and they following their young comrade's remains to their resting place.

On Wednesday morning at the home of his sister, Mrs. George Toppings, there passed away Richard De C. Marrigan, of Port Arthur, aged forty years, youngest son of the late John Marrigan, he having come to Deseronto about two weeks ago to see if the change would benefit his health. Heart failure was the cause of death. He is survived by his widow, two sisters, Mrs. Richard Baxter, and Mrs. George Toppings, of Deseronto, three brothers, Messrs. Michael and John, of Deseronto and William, of Port Arthur.

The funeral took place on Friday morning at the Vincent De Paul church, where Rev. Father J. P. Harrigan said requiem high mass. Deceased held a responsible position with the Bathurst company, leaving to accept one as assistant manager with M. J. Hogan, government contractor. The remains were placed in Deseronto cemetery vault. Among the floral tributes was a pillow from Kenneth, of Columbus, Port Arthur held memorial requiem mass, John Hogan, of Port Colborne, William Marrigan, of Port Arthur, Mr. and Mrs. E. Gorman, of Deseronto.

Wednesday morning at her home, after an lingering illness of typhoid pneumonia since June, death came to Eveline Gertrude Post, aged twenty-one years, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Post, of Rochester, formerly of Deseronto. In September they brought her here to benefit by health, but she gradually grew worse. She is survived by her parents, three sisters Mrs. E. Gravel, Misses Pearl and Maad, and one brother, Master Harold, of Rochester, N.Y. The funeral was held at the Methodist church, by Rev. G. B. Copeland, on Saturday afternoon. The remains were placed in Deseronto cemetery vault.

On Friday morning word was received from Ottawa that Mrs. Thomas Hyatt had passed away, she having been ill for some time. The remains were taken to family residence, corner of Thomas and College streets. She is survived by her husband, two daughters, Misses Grace and Kathleen, and one son, Edward Hyatt, of Ottawa.

On Wednesday, Mrs. Patricia Berry passed away, with friends on Dundas Road. She was known by everyone, having resided in Deseronto for a number of years and made her home of late years at Home of Providence, Kingston.

GIVE YOUR STOMACH A NICE VACATION.

Don't Do It By Starving It Either—Let a Substitute Do the Work.

The old adage, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," applies just as well to the stomach, one of the most important organs of the human system, as it does to the man, himself. If your stomach is worn out and rebels against being further taxed beyond its limit, the only sensible thing you can do is to give it a rest. Employ a substitute for a short time and see if it will not more than repay you in results.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are a willing and most efficient substitute. They themselves digest every bit of food in the stomach in just the same way that the stomach itself would, were it well. They contain all the essential elements that the gastric juice and other digestive fluids of the stomach contain and actually act just the same and do just the same work as the natural fluids would do, were the stomach well and sound. They, therefore, relieve the stomach, just as one workman relieves another, and permit it to rest and recuperate and regain its normal health and strength.

This "vacation" idea was suggested by the letter of a prominent lawyer in Chicago. Read what he says: "I was engaged in the most momentous undertaking of my life in bringing about the coalition of certain great interests that meant much to me as well as my clients. It was not the work of days, but of months. I was working night and day, almost, when at a very critical time my stomach went clear blank on me. The undue mental strain brought it about and hurried up what would have happened later on."

"What I ate I had to literally force down and that was a source of misery as I had a sore stomach much of the time. My head ached, I was sluggish and began to lose my ambition to carry out my undertaking. It looked pretty gloomy for me and I confided my rights to one of my clients. He had been cured by Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and at once went down to a drug store and brought a box up to the office.

"I had not taken a quarter of that box before I found that they would do all the work my stomach ever did; and as a rest or vacation was out of the question for me, I determined to give my stomach a vacation. I kept right on taking the tablets and kept up and went ahead with my work with renewed vigor, and just as much as ever did and carried out that undertaking to a successful issue. I feel that I have Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets to thank for saving me the handsomest fee I ever received as well as my reputation and last but not least my stomach."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50 cents a box.

challenge that was sent last week by the Cambridge hockey manager to the McGill club, of Montreal, for a match to be played in Boston this winter.

Toronto (Vancouver). With a red shirt and a brass band to help, "Varsity" should pretty nearly scare the Presbyterians into submission on Saturday. But wouldn't it be awful if Queen's should come back with a chorus singing the Psalms of David.

The Varsity Hockey Club will, in last year, enter a team in the senior O.H.A. They may also put one in the Interprovincial Union, but will not have a seven in the Intercollegiate, at least this winter, and not at all until there is a recast of the circuit, omitting Laval.

Not more than half a dozen amateurs were playing hockey or lacrosse last season in the professional senior leagues in Montreal, so that there should be little difficulty in bringing to a close the special privileges granted them by the governing body of athletics.

Toronto News: There is everlasting fame awaiting the person who can suggest a substitute that will be an improvement on the three-yard tackling rule. One official interprets three feet as three yards, while another judges three yards to be three feet. The result is the wings following up are in a blue funk when to tackle the man catching the ball.

Hamilton Spectator: With the four interprovincial teams making money this season, the opponents of the organization will have a hard time making out a case, for their argument has always been that the clubs could not stand the heavy expenses, forgetting that the receipts at the various games are about three times as big as any O.R.F.U. team ever thought of taking in.

At New York, the American team of Hans Holmer (Halifax), and William Cusack (Alexandria Bay), won the twenty-mile international foot race at Madison Square Garden in the world's record time of 1 hour 23 minutes 47 seconds, 4 minutes 21 seconds better than the previous mark. The Canadian team of Frederick Meadows and Abbie Wood was second, and the Swedish team of Gustav Ljungstrom and John Svansson was third.

Toronto Globe: Among the bookings and disputes over the appointment of officials for the big rugby games this season the "most amazing feature is that anyone should be willing, even eager, to act, in the face of the openly expressed objections and distrust of one of the competing teams. It is difficult to understand how a man who is not in a great want and hunger, could be compelled to place himself in such a position.

HIS NAME IS JOHN

A PLEASING CEREMONY AT A CHRISTENING.

Water From Jordan Was Used Held in China Font—Ancient Rites Were in Evidence at Service.

Napance Express. A baptism, unique and interesting in its character, took place on the eve of All Saints Day (Thanksgiving day) at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. McCabe, when the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Byrne M. Black (nee Miss Bertha McCabe) was received into Christ's Holy Catholic church and was given the name of his paternal grandfather, the late John Sumner, of Stirling, Ont.

The solemn rite was administered with water from the River Jordan, Palestine, the water being dipped from a china font that has been associated with the baptism of all the children of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Black, the child's paternal grandfather and grandmother.

The shell from which the water was poured on the child's head was imported from Bermuda especially for the occasion, and contained a pure white scallop shell mounted in Cobalt silver.

During the service this shell rested on stones from the Mount of Olives, the Garden of Gethsemane and the traditional site of Calvary. Beneath the stones was a piece of cedar which carried one in thought back past the "bloody sweat" of Gethsemane, the agony and sacrifice of Calvary, and the thunders of Sinai, to the days of Moses and the Pharaoh of the Exodus for it came from Egypt, and is nearly 3,500 years old.

The baptismal office was read from a liturgy which, from 1843 to 1868, was owned and used by the late Rev. John Black, the child's great-grandfather. The scripture lesson, St. Matthew iii, 13-18, which, by request, prefaced the baptismal service, was read from the bedroom Bible of the late Bishop Carmichael, of Montreal, a book now in the possession of John M. Black, Montreal, to whom it was given by the four sons of the bishop soon after the latter's death in 1908.

You Can See How it Heals

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT

To people who have used internal treatment in an effort to cure eczema it is almost beyond belief what benefits can be obtained by a few applications of this soothing, healing ointment.

It is seldom that the cause of eczema can be determined, but one thing is certain, the itching must be stopped and the sores healed up.

These results are secured by the use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment. The itching is relieved almost instantly and you will be surprised at the healing which will take place over night.

A little patience and persistent treatment with Dr. Chase's Ointment will give you more practical and definite results than a whole lot of dosing with internal medicine. You can see how the Ointment heals. The other is guesswork.

George Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: "I wish to communicate to you the great benefit I received from using Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment. For years I suffered with a great skin disease on my head, a sort of eczema. I tried four doctors, giving each a fair trial, but got no better. In fact, the disease spread to my left arm.

"I saw Dr. Chase's Ointment advertised and began using it. Persistent use of this treatment has entirely cured me, and I give you a statement of my case with pleasure, as I hope thereby to induce some other sufferer to try the same Dr. Chase's Ointment."

Because this ointment has made its world-wide reputation by curing the most severe and long-standing cases of eczema and piles is no reason why you should overlook its scores of uses in the relief of itching and irritation of the skin.

HISTORIC LONDON STREET.

The Scene of Little Dorrit's Girlhood to Be Blotted Out.

In the obliteration of Tabard street, London will do away with a road that is a disgrace to modern civilization yet one familiarly connected with the city's history, poetry and every circumstance of greatness. In the days before the new Dover road wheeled round from the borough into the Kentish highway, Tabard street was called Kent street and was the main approach to London from anywhere in Kent, from Canterbury, from the Cinque Ports, and so one might almost say from Europe.

Up that street nearly 600 years ago rode the Black Prince, conqueror at Poitiers, bringing with him in triumph the captive French King, a pageant compared with which these 50th century shows are but heart-beating pieces of make-believe. Up Tabard street swarmed the posanets of Kent under Wat Tyler and later on Jack Cade and his Kentish men, pouring in from the heart of England's industry, the "Lancashire lads" of that day.

Down Tabard street some time before either of these events the Canterbury Pilgrims clattered over the stones on their way to Becket's shrine.

Yet as long ago as the 13th century the street was a haunt of depravity and poverty. In Shakespeare's time it was shunned by all respectable folk. For centuries it was deplored that distinguished foreigners coming from the continent should get their first impression of London from Tabard street, and sometimes they used to be hurried through by night so that they would see as little of it as possible.

The recent resource of changing the name to something more poetic has had no effect. Vice and dirt seem to be in its very air, and since the creation of Dover road turned the stream of traffic elsewhere it has just quietly degenerated into a back slum.

Even the old Marshalsea, the debtors' prison, where Mr. Dorrit was so distinguished a resident, where Dickens' own father was not unknown and to which Dickens himself paid many a visit as a boy—is still to be traced to a far greater extent than is imagined.

One has only to dive into Angel place—the little court on the left just before one comes to St. George's from London Bridge—to find the grim old walls of the Marshalsea standing as they stood a century ago. Following the old walls round by warehouses and offices flanked by grimy little narrow alleys that are probably themselves Dickens survivals, one reaches the Southwark mortuary. Close by is a battered old door—once an actual door of the old Marshalsea. Here from across the street, New Auldham street, the mortuary over the wall one may catch a glimpse of the old Marshalsea balcony, practically just as it was when it rang out locking up time for Little Dorrit and her father. Coming round into St. George's churchyard one has completely encircled the famous old prison that was the world of little Dorrit's girlhood.

Royal Servants on Holiday. The Royal servants will have a much longer holiday than usual this year. As a rule, all the servants except those required to be in personal attendance on Their Majesties would, in the ordinary course of events, be relieved from August to October, when they usually returned to Buckingham Palace. But, as the Court will not be in London again until February, the servants will not be required to return to the palace before then.

A certain number of the Royal servants have, of course, gone to Balmoral, but the grooms of the chambers, the pages, and the state porters, as well as a number of the female staff, have been relieved of duty for the next four or five months.

Many of the late King's servants have been re-engaged in the new Royal household, but two of the most prominent have been pensioned off namely, Mr. Menager, the former head chef, and Mr. Chandler, King Edward's valet. Mr. Chandler's son, it will be remembered, was recently killed in a motor-car accident.

When the Royal servants go on their holiday they must notify the Master of the Household, the Lord Chamberlain, or the Master of the Horse, according to the particular department of the household with which they may be in, of their address, and they must be ready to return to duty within twenty-four hours if required to do so, unless they are specially exempted from service for a specified period.

Drumming Immigration.

All through the streets of London, especially in the Strand, one finds handsome shops, rented by various Colonial Governments, filled with most attractive exhibits of their various produce. Rhodesia is one of the latest Governments to start a shop of this kind, and there you can see not only amazing heads of maize and cast, but also beautiful furs, such as otter, the last thing you would expect to find from a tropical country; and you can buy cigarettes of Rhodesian-grown "Turkish" tobacco which compare favorably with the best weed from the Levant. This tobacco is grown near Bulawayo, where only a few years ago the wild Masabalo fought and hunted.

Explore Island. Bathurst Island has just been explored by a British Government expedition. It is situated some fifty miles from Port Darwin, Northern Australia, and has an area of 186 square miles. It is uninhabited, but it is well watered with fresh running streams, and has a fertile soil, capable of growing rice, rubber, cattle and tobacco.

James E. Fidler, for eleven years manager of the Brockville branch of the Bank of Montreal, has been appointed manager of the branch at Bathurst, N.S. Fidler's address is C. W. Taylor, Fidler & Co., Toronto.
