

THAT TIRED WHEEL

In all ages the only natural and mechanical and scientific way of working iron is by heating it and sticking it in the matter of setting tires, as every one must admit that the most natural and mechanical and scientific way of setting tires is by heating and getting them on while hot. Then you have perfect job done on this subject next to nothing.

Sinking Spells Every Few Days

"At the time I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy I was having sinking spells every few days. My hands and feet would get cold; I could scarcely breathe, and could feel myself gradually sinking away until I would be unconscious. Those about me could not tell there was life in me. After these spells I would be very weak and nervous, sleepless and without appetite; had neuralgia in my head and heart. After taking the remedy a short time all this disappeared and in a few weeks all the heart trouble was gone."

ALARM IN ENGLAND

DIRE MISFORTUNE THREATENS HER, SAYS OLD SUPERSTITION.

The Coronation—Lloyd's Demanding High Rates for Insurance Against Losses. New York, Nov. 18.—The Marquis de Fontenay, writing in the New York Tribune, says: "Everyone will recall the strange apprehension which prevailed after the death of Queen Victoria, to the effect that something would occur to prevent the coronation of Edward VII.—an apprehension which he himself is known to have shared, and which was in a measure realized when he became so dangerously ill two days before the date first appointed for his coronation that the ceremony had to be postponed for several months, and was consequently shorn of much of its splendor. Fears of the same sort are already being expressed about the coronation of King George. Indeed, they are even still more widespread and deep rooted than those of the previous reign, and arise from the fact that an old English saying, which has been current for centuries, predicts misfortunes for England whenever Good Friday falls on Lady day—that is to say, on March 25th. That is what happens this year, and the last occasion on which it occurred was in 1861, the year of the death of Queen Victoria's husband, the Prince Consort. The saying is as follows: 'If our Lord falls on our Lady's lap, it is a bad omen for the king's reign.' Never has this proverb failed to come true and that is why a feeling of considerable uneasiness prevails, especially among all those who are in any way inclined to be superstitious, and why Lloyd's and other similar concerns which insure persons against monetary losses in connection with the postponement or abandonment of great public pageants, such as the coronation, are already demanding bigger premiums than in the late reign.

CURING STOMACH TROUBLE.

Sufferer From Indigestion Tells How She Was Cured.

Stomach trouble is a general name for all forms of indigestion, whether great pain after eating, belching of wind, heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, or the sharp pains that often make you think you have heart trouble. There are two things noticeable in indigestion. One is that doctors at ways find indigestion a prominent symptom is a bloodless run-down state. The other, that sufferers usually find relief when a tonic is taken that restores the general health. Without a doubt stomach trouble is simply stomach weakness, and the cure is to make the stomach strong enough to digest food without trouble. Any other treatment is patchwork and cannot cure. As the processes of digestion are controlled by the blood and nerves, the stomach that is too weak to digest food needs a tonic to give it strength. And in all the world there is no better tonic than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They actually make new, rich blood, tone the nerves, and so strengthen the stomach and all the bodily functions. We submit the following as proof that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cure even the most obstinate cases of stomach trouble. Mrs. John Graf, Fort Saskatchewan, Alta., says: "For years I suffered from great torture from indigestion. I took many different medicines, but instead of benefiting me I was growing worse all the time, till my stomach got so bad I could neither eat nor drink without pain. Even cold water would cause me suffering. Nor did I get any relief when the stomach was empty, as I still suffered from a horrid burning pain. I went to Edmonton and consulted one of the best doctors there, but he told me that he could do nothing for me, that all I could do was to diet. For some time I took only hot water and a small piece of brown bread for my meals, but even that did not help me and I got so weak and run down that I despair of ever being well again. I bought a so-called electric belt and wore it for six months, but it was simply money wasted. Then one day a friend asked me why I did not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did not know they were intended to cure indigestion, but being assured that they were, decided to try them. I soon found the Pills helping me, but my condition was so bad when I began using them that I continued taking the Pills for about five months before I felt that I was completely cured. Then I could eat any kind of food, and although more than two years have passed since my cure, I have not since had the least sign of the trouble. I can most heartily recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to anyone suffering from this terrible trouble."

SAVING THE RESERVES.

How the Forestry Officials Care for Canada's Timber.

The greatest problem of Canadian forestry to-day is the protection of the forests from fire, and it is one that the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior is trying hard to solve. This protection has naturally been more fully provided for on the forest reserves than on the immense areas of forest which are still unreserved. On these reserves there is a force of rangers, permanently employed, who keep up a constant and careful patrol of the forest assigned them. Like the other fire rangers, these post up notices (printed on a patented sort of cloth, practically indestructible) cautioning against the setting of fire, warn settlers in the neighborhood of reserves against the commission of offenses, and "keep tabs" on campers and sportsmen going into the reserves and impress on them the need of caution in the management of camp-fires, matches, etc. But in addition to this special measure have been put in practice on the reserves for the prevention of fires. In a word these measures comprise the burning and clearing of the reserves, the making of roads, the supervision of settlers in the making of their slashings and the disposal of the resulting brush and the supervision of the spark-arresters placed in locomotives which pass through the reserves. In the early spring, when the snow has gone from the open country, but while it is still lying in the forest, the rangers burn the grass along the boundaries of the reserves, so as to prevent fires from coming from outside and getting into the reserves. A total of ninety-one miles of such fire-guarding was done on various Dominion forest reserves during 1909. The rangers also supervise the burning by the railways of grass and brush along their right-of-way. Plowed fire-guards are also made where possible, not only along the boundaries of the reserves but also in the reserves themselves. In making these guards a strip eight furrows wide is plowed, and on the danger side another strip, four furrows wide and distant from the first strip four rods, is plowed. The strip between the plowed strips is disarranged in spring and fall. During last year the Cypress Hills reserve, in Alberta, was surrounded by guards of this description, several miles of guard being constructed. The railways have also plowed guards along their lines where these cross the reserves. As opportunity offers, the rangers construct roads through the reserves. These are found of the greatest usefulness in case a fire breaks out. Not only can men and supplies be conveyed to the various parts of the reserve reached by the road with dispatch, but the roads themselves often stop a large fire. Where the fire has reached large proportions, the road can be used to back-fire from. Along the route, the rangers can more efficiently patrol the areas under their charge. During 1909 almost two hundred miles of road were cut along the boundaries of the reserves, at an average cost for a road nine feet wide of $12.73. Eleven miles of sixteen-foot roadway was also made into the interior of the Moose Mountain reserve in Saskatchewan, and 75 miles of road cleared in the Porcupine reserve.

TONREALM TOATOP AREP. The Arab has a curious belief that the ostrich lays twenty-four eggs, but eventually only hatches two or three of them, the extra egg being kept by the old bird for the purpose of feeding her young ones on.

Value of Politeness.

Representative Hay, of Virginia, tells a story that politeness always pays in the country. The hero of the tale is Benjamin Davis, the man who defeated President Madison for election to the Virginia House of Delegates after Madison had left the White House.

Old Davis, who seldom wore a coat, was sitting on a rail fence one morning when a young man, dressed in dapper fashion and evidently from the city, passed by. "Good morning," said Davis, with the proverbial Virginia politeness.

A Legal Wonder. There was a prosecuting attorney in Texas whose methods were so dramatic and uniformly successful that he not only became the terror of evildoers, but an object of admiration, especially among the negroes. Upon retirement from office he was at once much sought after by those charged with crime. The first two cases which he defended resulted in conviction, much to his chagrin. An old negro who had watched his prosecution in adjoining wonder and looked on with equal interest when he conducted the defence, accented him just after his defeat, and said: "Mars Earle, you sho' is a wonder. No matter which side you take on, they go to the pep just the same."

Certainly. Jerome S. McWade, the Duluth millionaire, said at an open-air luncheon at his farm near Hiwabik: "The last time I had my house filled with sham urchins it rained cats and dogs for a week. It was a dreadful disappointment for my visitors."

Only One Charge. A Yorkshire man was standing next to a representative of the Red Rose on the second day of the Blackpool flying meeting, when he remarked: "I understand that justice is meted out very quickly in these parts."

Both Scored. Senator La Follette was talking about two corporations that had been attacking one another in the press. "They both scored," he said. "They made me think of two prisoners in Atlanta, one of whom had been convicted of stealing a watch, the other of stealing a cow. These two prisoners hated each other and as they passed one morning in the exercise yard the cow stealer said with a sneer: 'What time is it?' 'Milking time,' the watch stealer answered."

Alcoholism and Offspring. Sir James Crichton-Browne is a capital speaker, especially after dinner. As a post-prandial orator, he is one of the few who still cultivate "old-fashioned" eloquence, and are careful of the literary side of their addresses. In this respect his manner harmonizes with his appearance, for he treasures an enormous pair of whiskers of the Dunlopian pattern.

Old Fallacy That Drunkenness Cannot Be Cured Explored. Many men drink who desire to stop the habit. Whiskey, however, has undermined the constitution and caused a craving that is not to be denied, and the man must have whiskey or something that will remove the craving and build up the system and restore the nerves.

Samaria Prescription stops the craving, steadies the nerves, builds up the general health, and makes drink actually distasteful and nauseous. It is tasteless and odorless, and can be given with or without the patient's knowledge, in tea, coffee or food. It is used regularly by physicians and hospitals. It has cured thousands in Canada, and restored happiness to hundreds of homes.

Hudson's Bay Railway.

Party No. 1, Hudson's Bay Railroad—the Pas to Landing Lake—have taken off their tall boots for the season. Engineer Clifford and gang have been out in the swamps and muskegs now for twelve months. They report progress, and their verdict as to conditions for construction on the Arctic line is being awaited with a great deal of interest at Ottawa.

The Bad Translator Again. What would have happened if Sir Wilfrid Laurier's address on his recent visit to Montreal had been published as a Liberal paper of this city received it is a speculation which somehow didn't seem altogether pleasant to the editorial management of that paper. For the occasion, a French translator had been engaged, and as the Premier spoke upwards of an hour and a half, he was kept pretty busy. Concluding his assertions on the naval policy, Sir Wilfrid declared: "If Great Britain should ever go to war, which God forbid, etc." It was truly an eloquent appeal. But the translation was not. "If Great Britain should ever go to war," it read, "we'll go to bed."
