CHILD SLIPPED OFF

THE CHILD WAS TIED ON THE HORSE'S BACK.

Girl, Five Years Old, Wanted to Ride Alone on Animal's Back—Falls and Frightens Horse—Child Killed.

Stroudsburg, Pa., Nov. 20.—Clapping her hands in glee at the prospect of riding a great, big horse all by her lone self, Lulu M. Nash, five years old, was lashed to the back of the animal, on Tuesday, by her mother, Mrs. Nellie Nash, of Wilkesbarre.

Fifteen minutes later the little one was dead, her head bruised and mangled from striking stones in the road. Mrs. Nash and her daughter came down from Wilkesbarre for a short visit. Later they started out to call on a friend, Howard Raich, about a quarter of a mile distant. To please the child, Mrs. Nash tied her on the back of one of the farm horses and mounted another herself to make the trip.

Hardly had they started, however, when the child began to slide off the horse's back. The ropes slackened with the motion of the animal and the little one was soon hanging head down under the horse.

The frightened animal could not be stopped, and ran on down the road to the Raich home, the frantic mother following on the other horse as fast as she could ride, screaming for help.

When the horse was caught, and the child released she was dead. Her head had been frightfully cut and bruised by striking stones in the road as she dangled under the horse and by kicks from the animal's hoofs.

GIVEN A CHANCE.

Devine Let Off, But He Must Leave City.

"I will let you off on suspended sentence on condition that you clear out of town before a week is up and never appear here again. If I find you here after that I will send you to the Central prison for as long a term as the law will permit."

That was the substance of the sentence handed out to Michael Devine, at the court house, on Wednesday morning, by Judge Price.

Devine was committed for trial, by Magistrate Farrell, on November 4th, for an alleged attempt to do bodily harm to Capt. Oliver, of the schooner Major Ferry. According to the evidence, given by William Pogue, who was with the party during the whole afternoon, and who was the only soter one in the party, the offence was not provoked as the statement given by Oliver at the time indicated. Pogue said the trouble had started at the Whitney house, when Oliver and Devine had an altercation and Oliver struck Devine and then kicked him when he was down. Oliver and the cook of the vessel, who were in there at the time, were put out by Whitney, who said he would not tolerate that sort of thing around his place. While they were there Oliver had given Devine $5, which he refused to accept, and at another time had given him $1, which he had given back to him.

About six o'clock in the evening, while the party were standing on the corner at the O.K. house, preparatory to having supper at Redsteak Jack's, Oliver assaulted the cook, who was passing at the time. He struck her and then knocked her hat off. She went to the police station and laid a complaint against Oliver. About a quarter past six o'clock, after they had eaten supper and were standing in front of the O.K. house, the cook passed by and Oliver says Devine made some insulting remarks to her. He rebuked Devine and told him he should not make such statements unless he could prove them. According to Pogue's evidence, Oliver said if prisoner would come down to the wharf he would lick the insides out of him, while Oliver says prisoner told him that if he would come down to the dock he would trim him. Oliver did not take the dare, but stayed at the corner until he thought prisoner had gone, and then started for the boat. When in front of Folger's ticket office he encountered the prisoner and they grappled at once, both falling to the ground together. Some one kicked Oliver in the head and he got up and started to walk away when some one called that Devine was going after him with a knife. He turned just in time to receive a gash in the face and, later on, one on the hand. He went to the police station at once and had Devine arrested.

Oliver said when they first grappled he took a pair of steel knuckles from Devine and threw them into the street, but, when pressed by W. F. Niekke, he said that it might have been a sailor's palm which is used for sewing, the same as a lady's thimble. Constables Arniel and Mollinger stated the particulars of the arrest, and identified the jack knife, produced in court, as the one which had been taken from Devine and which still bore the marks of blood upon it. When shown the knife Devine denied ownership of it and said he did not ever remember having used it. He stated the circumstances of the brawl, but claimed that he was so drunk that he did not remember having used the knife and also stated that he did not remember the circumstances of the arrest, although Downey, as well as the other policemen, said he wanted to know upon what charge he was held.

When the evidence was all in, Mr. Niekke, counsel for the prisoner, said the whole thing appeared to have been a sort of a premeditated thing, in which Capt. Oliver had tried to get Devine in trouble by taking him to several hotels and treating him and then when he got him full to torment him until he had lost all control of himself, and then, in a rage, he had drawn the knife if he had used one. Counsel said he did not justify Devine in using the knife at all, but he thought it was a case of provoked assault.

In dismissing the case the judge said that Devine had a very bad record and, starting at 1905, when Devine became first known to the police, he gave the list of crimes for which he had been up before the magistrate, from time to time. He said that he did not want to ruin his lawyer, but wanted to give him a chance to re-

Shakespearean Recital at Grand. Reginald Murray, the English baritone, who is assisting Miss Barbara Tennant at her recital next Monday at the Grand Opera House, has made a great reputation for himself in the old country, particularly in operatic and oratorio work. Mr. Murray will open recital with the prologue from the opera Pagliacci. This magnificent work gives the singer a splendid opportunity, which Mr. Murray, with his rich voice, takes full advantage of. Other songs will be "Alls Be With Us," "Shepherd's," "See Thy Steeds Flowing Manes," and pieces from the operas. Mr. Murray's voice is at once powerful and rich, and he shows a temperament in keeping with his work and though this will be his first appearance in Kingston, music lovers will hope to hear him again.

Mishap to a Light.

During last night the electric light at the corner of Bagot and Princess streets went out on strike. In the first place the light went out, then the glass was broken and the glass fell to the ground with a smash. It was certainly an unlucky night for the lamp.

The second annual banquet of the adult Bible class of the First Congregational church was held in the church parlors last evening. There were about forty guests present including a number of representatives from other churches.

COLONIZATION PLAN

COMPANY ASKS FOR BIG GRANT OF LAND.

50-Acre Farms Projected—Company to Erect Buildings, Clear Land and Plant First Crop—Allans Interested.

St. John, N.B., Nov. 30.—A colonization scheme, which, if carried out, is expected to prove of great value to the province, has been outlined in a letter to Premier Hazen by Wm. Thomson & Co. The government is asked to grant to a company that would be formed for the purpose some thousands of acres of crown land in the vicinity of Oromocto. The company would divide it into farms of fifty acres, erect farm buildings on each, clear the land and put in the first crop. To secure settlers they would send a lecturer to Great Britain, with moving pictures showing the agriculture of the province. Easy terms of payment would be arranged, the farm work would all be carried on, under the supervision of the company's superintendent, and the settlers would be given opportunity to hire machinery, etc., at lowest rates. It is understood that H. & A. Allan are also interested in the project. Premier Hazen said that the provision would be laid before the government at its next meeting.
