R. WALDRON

M'INTOSH WAS HERE

CALLED AT RANDOLPH HOTEL FOR SOME LETTERS.

The Young Man Wanted in Toronto for Theft of Thousands From Dominion Express Company Recognized by Cuts in Papers—He Has Likely Crossed Border.

Edward E. McIntosh, of Toronto, who is wanted by the provincial police on a charge of stealing a money package containing four thousand five-dollar notes of the issue of the Traders' Bank of Canada, in transit between Toronto and Ottawa, and $1,500 in cash besides, the proceeds of the Dominion Express company, was in Kingston this week. On Tuesday and Wednesday he called at the Randolph hotel for his mail, and on both occasions received letters directed to him there. He has not been seen since Wednesday, and it is supposed that he received a tip concerning the warrant issued for him, and got across the border at this port, or at Brockville or Prescott.

A cut of McIntosh in the Toronto Globe of yesterday was at once recognized by Henry O'Brien, clerk at the Randolph, who recalled the name of the young man to whom he gave the letters. McIntosh did not stay at the hotel, evidently boarding at some other place. The police are on the lookout for him.

The robbery alleged to have been committed by McIntosh was a most daring one. The money package, which was stolen from the safe in the Dominion Express company's car attached to the Toronto and Ottawa train in March, 1908, was shipped by the American Bank Note company to the head office of the bank in Toronto. The package was reported missing just after the train left Smith's Falls on the journey to Toronto, and investigation showed that the robbery took place at the station, where connection is made with the Toronto-Montreal C.P.R. train. The express messenger for a time was convinced that there had simply been a mistake, and that in removing the package from one car to another the bank notes had been mislaid.

Diligent search was made by the Pinkerton detectives, getting for the Fradere's bank, and the Canadian Detective Bureau men, engaged by the Dominion Express company. The disappearance of a bag containing $1,500 belonging to the Dominion Express company at the same time as the package of bills convinced the detectives that a bold robbery had been committed from the express car. Quiet investigation revealed nothing. The train crew was examined from time to time, and all were under surveillance for a considerable period.

One of the first to leave the employment of the company after the robbery was Edward Elmer McIntosh, the brakeman on the train, who said he wished to become a chauffeur or go into the business of renting autos with his brother, who is now in Toronto. His sudden notice of resignation gave some grounds for suspicion but nothing developed to warrant the authorities taking action against him. The authorities had just about given up hope of finding a solution of the robbery when a remarkable discovery was reported to the manager of the Traders' Bank by Alexander Theodoroff, 91 Gallery avenue, Toronto. He claimed that while in the top flat of the house playing with his four-year-old son, Carl, a pencil dropped out of his pocket and rolled down a hot air register.

The anxiety of the little boy to recover the pencil caused the find. The little fellow in searching for the pencil had pulled up the grating and had discovered a tin box containing the notes, which he found much fun in laying with. There were several thousand dollars worth.

The father, who is an employee of the Canada Foundry company, immediately reported the find to the clerk of the Traders' Bank, who in turn called in the private detectives and provincial police. The house was searched, with a result that all but a few of the stolen bank notes were discovered. Those still found to be missing had been circulated and were at the time in possession of the bank.

Theodoroff, who reported the find, said he had only been in the house a short time, having rented the place furnished from Edward Elmer McIntosh, who had lived there with his mother and brother. By communication with the C.P.R. officials it was learned that McIntosh was on the train the day the bank notes were stolen and the issuing of a warrant followed.

Toronto, Dec. 1.—Despite the vigilance of the Canadian immigration health officers, who held the steamer Royal George in cholera quarantine for some days, it looks as if a patient, infected with this terrible disease, landed at Quebec, entrained, passed through Canada a thousand miles or so and entered Michigan at Sault Ste. HALLS OF QUEEN'S

THE ALMA MATER ELECTIONS ON SATURDAY.

Contest for Presidency Between Bruce and Menzies—Deputy Minister of Railways to Speak at Science Dinner.

By Our Queen's Correspondent.
The Alma Mater election campaign again waxed warm at old Queen's. Candidates harangue the students at every opportunity. Mass meetings are being held in all faculties while campaign literature is being lavishly distributed throughout all departments.

The presidency, as is usually the case, is being well contested. Louis Bruce is, in reality, the representative of science, although this session he is registered in arts, and because of this fact, will undoubtedly find a substantial following in the classic faculty. He is extensively known and relatively popular throughout the college, and will poll a large vote on Saturday. Percy Menzies, M.A., is the arts-divinity candidate. This is his sixth session at Queen's, and he is known practically by every student as one of the best all-round men at college. Menzies would make a president of whom any society might well be proud.
