Individuality in Skates

Last winter two men were passing along a Toronto avenue to a rink, carrying their skates. Some small boys eyed the skates and exclaimed "Automobiles."

The boys recognized the skates by their distinctiveness and individuality.

You buy individuality in clothes, hats, shoes, furniture. Buy it in skates.

Only "Automobile" skates have aluminum tops and nickel steel blades—lightness and strength combined. With these you get a balanced, upstanding design, and fine finish.

MODEL C, $5.00 A PAIR, other Skates from $1.25 up

A YOUNG MAN FOILED TO ASK ALMA MATER

IN HIS ATTEMPT TO CROSS THE BORDER TO CURB THE STUDENTS ON "RUSH" NIGHT.

Looked Upon as an Undesirable and Brought Back to Canada—Agents on Border are Wide Awake to Their Business—It is Their Duty to Ask Questions.

Getting across the border is not the easiest thing in the world, nowadays—that is for some people. A young fellow, who had every appearance of being an undesirable, found this to be the case, on Saturday. He went over to Cape Vincent, on the steamer Ottawa, and almost succeeded in getting into Uncle Sam's territory. He played a little game in order to do so, but the immigration authorities, and the boat officials, who rendered assistance, won out.

When the boat reached the wharf the young fellow succeeded in getting out without any one seeing him, until he was some distance away. He endeavored to get a boat from one of the liveries, and there he was detected, by the captain on the vessel, just in time to prevent the fellow from getting the use of the boat. He told the proprietor of the boat house a story about the captain wanting the boat, and it was on this account that the man was so willing to let him have it. The captain, however, was just in the nick of time to prevent him getting the boat. The fellow was taken back on the vessel, but he again managed to slip away, and this time made his way to a saloon, and when located again he was enjoying a fine "John Collins." He had enjoyed a few before one in authority appeared on the scene. The official allowed him to finish his drink, and then told him, in a quiet way, that he would have to go back to the boat, and return to Canada. Then there was trouble.

"I'll not go back, and you can't make me," he said. The few drinks he taken gave him plenty of nerve. However, his bark was far worse than his bite, and in a very few moments the official had him on his way back to the boat, and when the steamer Ottawa came to Kingston, on her next trip, the young fellow was one of the passengers to get off. He was very angry, and declared that he would get across the border yet. But he won't—if the immigration agents see him coming.

When he left Kingston he carried with him a large bottle of whiskey. "People have 'em some" these days, if they can pass the immigration officers. They keep a close tab on every person, and in so doing are only carrying out their duty. Some people have an idea that an immigration officer has no business to ask so many questions—especially in personal matters—but the general public must understand that it is their business, and that if they do not carry out these regulations, other men will be appointed to do the work.

The other day the steamer Ottawa was on her way over to Cape Vincent. The immigration agent was on board and he was seeking information from some ladies.

A man stood by, and was heard to remark, "Well, the fellow has his nerve, all right. What right has he got to ask all these questions? I bet, if he came after me that way, he would get a cold shoulder."

It was only a few minutes before the official was standing near the same gentleman, and the latter was being giving information, answering questions of a similar nature. He did not like it, but it was a case of having to submit.

Immigration agents have a list of questions to ask. They have to do their duty, so just be as polite to them as you can. Remember, we all have our place in the world.

The Coal Dealers Busy.
This cold snap, which the weather man has been handing out for the past few days, is making plenty of work for the coal dealers, who are rushed nearly off their feet with the large number of orders coming in. People get anxious and are continually calling up the offices and wondering why the coal is not delivered, and they never seem to make allowance for the fact that this cold weather invariably brings an overwhelming rush of orders.

Was Close to Zero.
The weather to-day was decidedly cold for the forepart of December. At Prof. Knight's observatory, the thermometer registered 7.4 degrees above zero. It is not considered likely that this cold snap will last long. With-out sleighing, cold weather like this is anything but pleasant. In the back country, there is lots of snow.

Off on a Trip.
C. H. Powell left to-day for a visit to Watertown, Utica, Albany, New York, Philadelphia, Pa., and Richmond, Va.

It's impossible for some people to be both good and interesting.

Looking for a Thief.
The police are looking for a sneak thief, who stole a basket with a pair of chickens and three rolls of butter, from the market house. Information has been secured, and the guilty party would do well to surrender and make the loss good. The owner does not care to prosecute, but would like to get the goods.

Ice at Anglin's Bay.
It was reported, this morning, that the ice on Anglin's Bay, was nine inches thick. This makes good skating, and already a great many have been able to enjoy this popular sport.

Snow at Rochester, N.Y.
Marine men report that about a foot of snow fell, on Monday, in Rochester and vicinity. The snow storm caused the vessels on the lake a great deal of trouble.

ANNIVERSARY TEA

AT QUEEN STREET METHODIST CHURCH LAST EVENING.

A Large Crowd Was Present—Programme Afterwards Given in the Church—A Good Sum Was Realized.

Anniversaries roll around with startling suddenness and one more has been added to the list, which the congregation of Queen Street Methodist church has celebrated year after year. None have eclipsed the one held last evening. The ladies of the church had all that could be desired, a large crowd, an excellent supper and a splendid programme.

The supper being over the people repaired to the body of the church, where they listened to a choice programme by lending Kingston artists. The pastor, Rev. S. Sellery, occupied the chair. The audience was pleased to have Mrs. Evans back and heartily enjoyed her vocal numbers. William Eya, the well-known tenor, also charmed the audience with his selections. Miss McClellan, of Toronto, who is visiting in the city for a short time, kindly consented to take part and sang beautifully. A trio, by Mrs. Evans, John Shea and William Eya, revealed in perfect harmony, while the male quartette, Messrs. Shea, Williams, Marshall and Reynolds, sang in splendid style. Mrs. F. Sproule, M.E. L., delighted everyone with her portrayal of different characters in recitations. Rev. Thomas W. Neal, of Sydenham, the Methodist church, congratulated the ladies on the success which had crowned their efforts. The talk which he gave following that was at times most laughable and yet in his remarks he brought out ideas which took deep root in the hearts of his hearers. A large sum was realized from the tea.

PROGRESS OF THE Y.W.C.A.

Receipts During the Past Month Were Good.

On Monday afternoon the regular monthly meeting of the Y.W.C.A. was held in the home on Johnston street. On account of the illness of the president, Mrs. Edwin J. McLellan, the chair was occupied by Mrs. A. Strachan. There was a good attendance of members and much satisfaction was expressed at the amount of money received during the last month. This money was received from different sources, including male, $30; two donations, one of $25, the other of $5; annual fees from members, and receipts from the home.

The educational classes are growing in interest, but there is still room for others to join them, either on Monday or Thursday nights.

After the business Miss Drummond read an interesting report of the World's Young Women's convention, held in Berlin, last July. Miss Kawai, who recently charmed the Kingston people who had the privilege of hearing her, was one of the speakers at this convention.

All ladies interested in Y.W.C.A. work are invited to a prayer meeting to be held at the Home next Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 13th.

Christmas Shopping.
Oh, say,
This very day
Get the hay
For the shop
And don't stop
Shopping.
Till you feel like dropping
Dead in your tracks. And then
All the clerks, women and men,
Will rise up and call you blessed,
And you, with your shopping done,
Will sit down and wonder
Where it thunder
Do people find Christmas fun.
—W. J. Lampton.

Local Victorian Nursing.
The monthly meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses was held, on Monday afternoon, ten members being present. The nurse's report shows an increasing amount of work. There were 164 nursing visits made; 37 casual visits, 17 cases cared for, of which seven were Roman Catholic, four Anglican, three Presbyterian, three Methodist. The report from the collectors so far shows an increase in amount subscribed.

Sermons on Church Union.
Rev. J. H. Turnbull, formerly of Kingston, and a graduate of Queen's, who is doing good work as pastor of the Bank Street Presbyterian church, Ottawa, has begun a series of sermons on "Church Union."

The Christmas number of the Canadian Magazine contains a good representation of the work of foremost Canadian writers and artists, the list including the following writers: Arthur Stringer, Goldwin Smith, Newton MacTavish, Marjorie E. C. Pichthall, Robert Barr, Isabel Ecclestone Mackay, Virginia Sheard, S. A. White, John Boyd, Theodore Roberts, W. S. Wallace, Jean Hewitt, Katherine Hal-Jean Graham, and Peter McArthur.

ICE AT CURLING RINK.
Roarin' Game Will Soon be in Progress.

The ice man is busy at the curling rink and it is believed that a few games will be pulled off towards the end of the week. The ice is already in fairly good shape. Last night's cold snap did a great deal towards making the sheet solid. Next Monday night the skips are to be chosen when the organization will be completed.

A Portsmouth Action.

MISS B. TENNANT

MADE A SUCCESSFUL DEBUT IN HER DRAMATIC RECITALS.

She is the Personification of Grace and Airy Lightness—Her Juliet Was a Splendid Piece of Acting.

A charming little personality, as graceful as a willow branch and fairy-like in all her movements, is Miss Barbara Tennant, who made her Canadian debut at the Grand Opera House on Monday night. Her entry in the dramatic world was an auspicious one for not only is a young aspirant for fame greeted by an audience which is at once so fashionable and so intellectual as was last night's gathering. The military colony was well represented and Queen's, too, sent its quota of appreciative hearers. The orchestra played capably its selections from the Mendelssohn music and Reginald Murray, who sang several times, while not possessing a voice of much range or power, gave his numbers with dramatic effectiveness enhanced by the clearness of his enunciation.

Miss Tennant comes on the stage in a clinging gown of rose, a cloud grey scarf caught about her trailing out from her arms. At times her gestures were almost articulate and she showed a depth of dramatic possibilities which time and experience will more and more fully disclose if she continues in the work on which she has set out.

While every bit of her recital was good the portion scene from Romeo and Juliet was undoubtedly her best. Barbara Tennant was entirely lost in the daughter of the Capulets wild with terror at the thought of being put among the bones of her ancestors in the close-packed vault. Special praise must be given the actress for she deserves that name for staying on the floor in the heap in which she had fallen after drinking the potion, and not rising to respond to the burst of applause that sent the curtain up after it had rung down on the scene's close.

As Puck, in suit of living green she was delightful romping and laughing with all the impish gaudiness of that being, who plays pranks through the "Midsummer Night's Dream." The lesson with the fan was also a very fetching little bit of coquetry as finished as it was artless and "My Ships" became quite a touching little lyric under the caress of Miss Tennant's pretty voice, "Out come the Kipling's masterpiece 'Gunga Din' was too heavy and too suggestive of the gruesome side of war for one so delicately artistic and such a creature of air and light as Barbara Tennant.

The recital concluded with a little playlet, "Cinders with Miss Tennant in the title role, which she acted in a very attractive way. Harold Edwards as "Mr. Waranter" for whom her mother "did" assisting her. Mr. Edwards' voice was remarkably distinct and his acting very promising. The stage settings were capital.
