WAS WARNED

A Dream That Saved a Man's Life.

THE STEAMER LOST

HE WAS SO AFFECTED HE LEFT STEAMER

London, Jan. 7.—Drems which partly influenced Claude Sawyer, a passenger on the ill-fated Waratah, to leave the vessel at Durban, and so escape the fate of his fellow-passengers, were described by him, yesterday, at the board of trade inquiry into the loss of the vessel.

After leaving Adelaide, he said, the ship rolled in an unusual and alarming way. She would roll and remain a long time on her side before recovering, and in the middle of the roll, just when she got level, she would give a jerk. Several passengers were hurt by being thrown over by these jerks.

Alarmed by the rolling one morning, he asked an officer what angle she was rolling, and did not consider the answer satisfactory. As they neared Durban he began to have fears for her safety.

He found it was only the ship's second voyage, and made up his mind "he would be off that ship." At Adelaide the third and fourth officers expressed the opinion to him that the ship was top heavy.

Describing his dream, which came three or four days before the ship reached Durban, Mr. Sawyer said:

"I saw a man with a long sword in a peculiar dress, which I had never seen before. He was holding the sword in his right hand, and it was covered with blood. I saw it three times."

"The second time it came I thought, 'I will know it again,' and the third time I looked at it so intently that I could almost design it, sword and all, even now."

"Next day I mentioned it to a gentleman, and he said, 'It's a warning.' Then I began to think why I should be warned, and I was anxious to leave the ship."

He thought he would have got off at Durban, even if he had not had that dream. As it was, he landed there and telegraphed to his wife: "Thought Waratah top-heavy. Landed Durban."

After he landed, he dreamt he saw the ship in heavy seas, and one big roller came over her bow, and she rolled over on her starboard side and disappeared.

Other evidence was taken, and having congratulated Mr. Sawyer on his escape, the magistrate, Mr. Dickinson, adjourned the inquiry.

A Halifax despatch says a Canadian crew was saved from a wrecked ship on the Atlantic coast.

Sir George Gibbons said at Toronto that he expects all boundary disputes to end by 1911.

Talks with the Advertising Man

Push-Cart Policies

The Push-Cart man does not advertise. He does not look for repeat orders.

He depends for his profits on the immediate sale and disappears around the corner before his customers discover the defects in the goods they buy. They must take their chances, and they know it.

Advertising is the buyer's protection.

The merchant who pays good money to advertise day after day in the newspapers must give adequate value and satisfactory service, otherwise his very advertising would prove a boomerang, because all the people would know of his failure to give value and service more quickly.

Look over this paper. Think of the merchants who use space day after day, week after week, and you will admit that they are men you are not afraid to do business with.

You realize almost involuntarily that an advertised store is a safe place to buy in.

Push-Cart policies are sometimes adopted by merchants who prefer the immediate big profits a continuous patronage of satisfied customers.

But you do not find this class of merchants among the continuous users of newspaper space.

To repeat advertising is the Buyer's Best Protection.

DEATHS AT NAPANEE.

The Late John Coates, Aged Seventy-Seven Years.

Napanee, Jan. 7.—Another of the old and much respected residents of Napanee, passed away Thursday evening in the person of John Coates, at the advanced age of seventy-seven years and ten months. Deceased came to Napanee over fifty years ago and conducted a harness business for years disposing of it to his brother-in-law, the late John Carson. For a few months past he had been in failing health, but was only confined to his bed about a week. He leaves besides his wife, a family of six children, Thomas in New York; William, of Napanee; Mrs. Glyn, of Albany, N.Y.; Mrs. T. J. Naylon, of Deseronto; and Miss Jennie and Euphemia at home. The funeral will take place this afternoon to St. Mary Magdalene's church, thence to Riverside cemetery. Mr. Frederick Thompson passed away on Wednesday, January 5th, at the early age of twenty-five years. Deceased had been ailing for the past year or two of tubercular trouble. The funeral took place this morning from St. Patrick's church, to the Roman Catholic vault.

V. Koubler received the sad news of the death of his son-in-law, J. D. McMillen, of Virginia City, Minn. The telegram said the death was very sudden. No particulars have as yet been received. The remains were interred in Virginia City.

AFTER MANY YEARS

MRS. HUGGINS GETS RIGHT MAN AT LAST.

Romance Begun Years Ago in Jersey City Ended in Freeport, L.I., With Great Joy.

Freeport, L.I., Jan. 7.—Sadie and Bertie years ago were school children in Jersey City, and when they had reached the age of sixteen which was the age of understanding, they were by the minor on the City Hall of their fair city that they would be forever true and some day marry each other.

But even in Jersey City the course of true love doesn't always run smooth. They quarrelled. Then Bertie, which is C. Seaman, emigrated to Freeport, L. I., where he soon became one of the grand army of leading citizens. Meantime Sadie slipped up on her pledge of fealty and married a gentleman named Huggins, perhaps enticed by his name. But he lived up to it too well, for she learned things about him that won her a divorce.

Now turn on the tremble music while the romance is getting piled up. For it came to pass, about a year ago, that Mrs. Huggins, influenced by the star that had played over Jersey City in her school days, also went to Freeport.

You recall that Mr. Seaman was already in Freeport. Well, Mrs. Huggins didn't know that. However it was destined that she would find it out, and she did.

Chapter the last: Little more remains to be said, clear reader. They met, the old love gleamed in the eyes of each, and they indulged in some questions and answers that resulted in their going to Stamford, Conn. and saying "I do" to a minister.

NO BAN ON HAT PINS.

Vetoes Bill Calling for Protectors on Them.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 7.—Dangerous hat pins, thrust far beyond the legal confines of a woman's headgear, may still job our eyes in Kansas City, Mayor Brown having vetoed the bill recently passed by council ordering women to place guards on long hat pins. Brown vetoed the bill after making a personal investigation and consulting his wife.

"Besides," he adds, in his veto message, "the whole army of the United States could not enforce such a law."

Hon. Messrs. Fielding and Paterson have arrived at Washington to continue trade negotiations.

A NEW TREATY

Arbitration Lines Proposed by Taft

TO SUPERSIDE OLD

THE SENATE COMMITTEE IS BEING SOUDED.

Diplomatic Negotiations Will be at Once Begun With the British Government—Right Hon. James Bryce is Being Consulted.

Washington, Jan. 7.—President Taft is hopeful of negotiating a new arbitration treaty with Great Britain covering all international disputes, to supersede the existing convention under which questions of vital interest, national honor and those affecting the rights of third parties are excluded. Although no actual negotiations have begun through Right Hon. James Bryce, British ambassador here, it is understood that President Taft has taken steps to ascertain the attitude of the senate's foreign relations committee towards the proposed convention. If it is likely the senate will ratify the proposed treaty diplomatic negotiations will at once be begun with the British government.

MARINE MEN MUST MOVE.

To Take Up Residence in United States.

Port Colborne, Jan. 7.—Several marine officers along the Canadian boundary are getting ready to move to the United States in compliance with the demand from Washington that they must do so or else lose their licenses.

"This will mean that, perhaps, two-thirds of the men holding licenses on United States boats are affected," said a captain, yesterday, "because about that number live in Canada, to-day. This will mean considerable hardship to the Canadians, a great many of whom own their homes and have lived in Canada all their lives. They cannot see the necessity for the order from Washington."

JOINS GERMANY

REACHED AN AGREEMENT RE. GUARDING PERSIAN AFFAIRS.

And England is Alarmed—Germany is to Have the Preference in the Development of Asia Minor.

London, Jan. 7.—A new alliance, with Russia and Germany working hand in hand, is alarming England to-day, according to the Evening Times, which publishes what purports to be the text of the Russian-German agreement regarding Persia. Under the terms of the document, Germany is to have the preference in the development of Asia Minor.

German capital is to be given the opportunity of financing the network of railroads which are to be constructed there. It had been understood that Russia and England were to work together in the construction of these improvements, and that in the partition of Persia, which has been admitted for some time is sure to come, England was to get the lion's share of the territory.

In this connection the Times says: "Unless secret reservations exist, which is not doubted, the compilation of this Russian-German agreement marks the breaking up of the triple entente composed of Russia, France, and England. It has always been understood that Russia would never deal with Germany under any circumstances. Under the old understanding between Russia, France, and England, it was understood that England was to construct and maintain the suggested railroad line from Bagdad to the Persian Gulf and that French capital was to complete the road from Mesopotamia to the Mediterranean."

There can be no question now that Germany has cut into the pie that the European situation is greatly complicated. With Germany and Russia working together, the balance of power is upset.

SAVE SOULS THROUGH TEETH.

Salvation Army, Believing This Possible, Hires Dentist.

New York, Jan. 7.—Believing it almost impossible for a man troubled with bad teeth to lead a consistent Christian life, the Salvation Army has opened a department of dentistry at No. 205 West 13th street, under Dr. John Crighton. The new dental department now rivals in its peculiar field the army's famous "antiseptic bureau" in alleviating human suffering, its promoters said.

"Many a man has fallen from grace when attacked with a bad tooth, and unable to pay the high price of the average dentist," an officer of the army said, "in such a condition more than one man has given vent to his feelings in a flow of profanity or tried to 'drown' the pain with whiskey, and of course such acts would end his 'Christian experience.' For those however, who can afford to pay, the exact cost of the work done will be charged, without profit of any kind."

Chief Immigration Inspector Robinson, Windsor, has formulated a new plan for preventing undesirable from coming through.

The New York Tribune today says Pres. Taft has proposed for general arbitration with Great Britain.

The Ontario legislature will open its session on Jan. 24th.

THE FAITH CURE FAILED.

Doctor Not Called in Time and Child Died.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 7.—Attended by only a "faith cure" doctor, Hazen McWain, aged nine, daughter of William McWain, a signal engineer on the Pere Marquette railroad, here, literally choked to death, while her parents stood helplessly by.

The little girl contracted a severe type of diphtheria four days ago, and the mother at once summoned a Christian Science "healer," who gave the patient "prayer treatment." She failed to improve, however, and a regular practitioner was called in, but the child was already dying and he was powerless to do anything.

CARNIVAL IS OFF.

Citizens and Council Failed to Give Support.

Montreal, Que., Jan. 7.—The "Week of Winter Sports," it was proposed to hold here in February was called off at a meeting of the committee this morning. The reasons given are that while the railways finally consented to help the plan along, they took too long to make up their minds, while the city council refused to contribute and citizens were backward in coming forward with financial assistance.

HAVE LEGISLATION

FAIR WAGES FOR ALL IS MINISTER'S DREAM.

Australian Parliament to Grapple With the Question of Industrial Development.

Melbourne, Jan. 7.—The state governments having expressed a desire to know the extent to which the commonwealth proposes to exercise its enlarged powers in the event of the people ratifying the constitutional amendments to be submitted as a referendum in April next, Mr. Hughes, the acting federal prime minister, has informed the state prime ministers that legislation to give effect to the new protection amendments to industrial legislation for prevention and settlement in industrial disputes and for giving fair and reasonable wages to all classes of workers, will be passed at an early date.

Mr. Hughes adds that it is difficult to state definitely what action is likely to be taken in connection with trade and commerce, but all the necessary legislation will be passed to cope with trusts and combines, also for the nationalization of monopolies.

It is not intended to interfere with state or municipal enterprises, and the greater part of the state laws will in no wise be affected. The commonwealth does not seek to trespass on the domain of the states. Further commonwealth legislation will not supersede, but supplement, the state wages board and the state tribunals. The citizens will then be able to appeal either to the federal or state tribunals, and thus industrial peace will be insured, and power will be left to the states to make concurrent laws on trade, commerce and industry.

Mr. Hughes enumerates a long list of important subjects on which the states may exclusively legislate after the proposed constitutional amendments have been carried.

Burned the Mortgage.

Brockville, Jan. 7.—The Methodist congregation of Newboro held a joyous celebration in honor of burning the mortgage on the church property, which is now free of debt. When the recording steward applied the match, the gathering arose and lustily sang the doxology. Rev. Dr. Sparling, of Brockville, and chairman of the district, took a prominent part in the proceedings.

BLODGETT'S GIFT

COLUMBIA ACCEPTS GIFT FOR EXPERIMENT FARM.

Plans to Build New Station Next Spring as Memorial to Mother of Benefactor.

Fiskhill Landing, N.Y., Jan. 7.—The new agricultural school of Columbia University will locate its experimental station at Fiskhill, five miles north-east of here in Dutchess county.

It is announced that William Blodgett has turned over to the university the memory of his mother, the Blodgett farm of about 450 acres, and had added to it the Brinkhoff farm of 240 acres, acquired by purchase. Seth Low, formerly president of Columbia, inspected the land a few days ago and told Mr. Blodgett that he approved of the offer and would so recommend to the university. Development of the property will begin next spring.

Society Girl Married to Chauffeur.

Greenwich, Conn., Jan. 7.—Society here is agog with astonishment over the announcement that Miss Mary A. Smith, daughter of William J. Smith, a multi-millionaire, has been the bride of Arthur Woodcock, a chauffeur, for nearly a year. Miss Smith's family did not even know her husband, much less suspect the alliance. Woodcock has been chauffeur for J. N. R. Converse, whose estates lie across the road from that of Smith.

Will Assure Workmen.

Regina, Jan. 7.—Speaking at the opening of the new Liberal Club rooms Premier Scott referred to the intention of the attorney-general to introduce a compensation bill, which will have embodied in it the principle that the workman who suffers from accident shall be assured of a certain amount of compensation, without being obliged to find a remedy in the courts.

PLOT STOPPED

To Railroad a Financier to An Asylum.

SEEKS COMMISSION

STATEMENT MADE BY NEW YORK DETECTIVE.

Conspirators Were After David Russell, But He Escaped—An Attempt Was Made to Work the Old Badger Game—Waiting For Counsel.

Montreal, Jan. 7.—That David Russell, newspaper owner and promoter of many financial and political enterprises, has just narrowly escaped a plot to "railroad" him to an insane asylum and is now preparing to bring down the wrath of a royal commission on the conspirators' heads, was the declaration made in Montreal to-day by W. J. Burns, a United States detective, noted for his work in the Molly Maguire and San Francisco graft cases.

The first intimation that Mr. Russell was being pursued came, according to Mr. Burns, when the former was made the intended victim of an old trick, "the badger game." This aroused his suspicion, the conspirators fled, and the financier began making plans for their capture.

Mr. Burns is awaiting the arrival from London of Donald McMaster and Abraham Rose, of New York, before proceeding with the case.

MAN DROPPED DEAD.

Stopped Talking With His Son When He Expired.

Smith's Falls, Jan. 7.—Ethen Baker dropped dead, on Friday morning, as he was about to begin his work in the Frost & Wood foundry. He stood shanting to his son, and the latter left him to commence his work. He had not gone eight feet from his father when Mr. Baker was seen to fall. Life was extinct when he was picked up. He was in the best of health until the moment of the fatal seizure. Heart disease was the cause. He was fifty-five years of age.

The Deason Shirt company factory, a large and commodious three story brick and stone structure was completely gutted. The fire broke out at 4:30 o'clock and spread with such rapidity that the fire brigade were unable to stop the progress of the devouring element. Nothing now remains but the blackened walls.

THE GREATEST EVER.

The Farm Manufacturers Lead the World.

"Farming is the greatest and oldest industry in the world," was the startling statement of Joseph Haycock, ex-M.P.P., at a recent banquet. "Why do I say so? Well, the farmer after clearing the land, digs and plants a bushel of grain and through the Providence of God, in giving rain and sunshine, it soon grows and glimmers in the sun. Later the golden grain is gathered and winnowed and an hundred bushels is the outcome. This is the farmer's finished product. The miller takes it as his raw material and turns it into flour, his finished product. The baker takes his raw material and turns it into bread, his finished product. The farmer takes it as his raw material, and turns it into brown and brain so that he can go forth to make two bushels of wheat produce and develop in greater abundance than ever before. What greater industry is there than this?" How Joseph's audience applauded the contention.

"I heard a sort of a squalling noise as if somebody was being hurt. Then I heard a man's voice saying 'Shut up,' or something very like it," said Smith conclusively.
