Red Pepper Burns

Red Pepper Burns, by Grace S. Richmond, derives its unique title from the red hair of "Dr. Burns," the country doctor hero of a bright, breezy romance, full of humor. This human dynamo of activity and lovableness is described as the "pepperiest proposition of an angel this earth has ever seen. He's a red-headed, sharp-tongued brute of a saint-he's a pot of mustard that's clear balm." His love affair was conducted with a piquancy that was only second to his devotion to his profession. It is a most entertaining story, illustrated with colored frontispiece, by C. M. Reylea and John Jackson. $1.20.
