A Nice Home Won't Cost You Much

Don't think that only the wealthy can afford their own homes. That only serves to stifle your desire to own a home yourself.

We want to correct that mistaken idea—to prove to you that you can own your own home for the price you are now paying for rent.

Just figure how much that item has cost you in the last ten years.

Let us suppose that you paid on an average $20 a month. That would mean $2,400. Think what a beautiful home you could have bought with that sum.

It's not too late. Come around and let us explain our plan.

And let us show you some of the properties we have on our list.

IT IS QUITE POSSIBLE

FOR AN INTELLIGENT MAN TO BE A CHRISTIAN.

Christianity Can Point to its Works for its Vindication—Sermon by Canon Starr in St. George's Cathedral.

Canon Starr took for his subject on Sunday evening, in St. George's cathedral, "Can An Intelligent Man Be a Christian?" He said his reason for so doing, was an article which had recently appeared in an American magazine, declaring that the old religion was against modern intelligence, and that the pride of American education was its freedom from the trammels of christianity.

The preacher pointed out the danger of the diffusion of such notions. The "man in the street" had neither the time nor facilities to make a complete study of the matter, and was often in consequence shaken in his belief, when he read in public print that the old religion could not stand before light and learning. However, one must bear in mind that intelligent men, both within and without the universities, are not, for the most part, sceptics. Strong men who have time and facilities and trained intelligence, to cope with modern research, bid us "be of good cheer;" that no truly Christian doctrine has been impaired, and no part of the gospel hurt by investigation, and that "Jesus and the Resurrection" can be as boldly preached as in the days of the apostles.

Of course there are bitter attacks made upon certain fundamental truths but we are to accept what a man in his study or laboratory declares as his conclusion against the practical results where the Christian faith has been taught and lived, and which makes, to-day, the difference between Christian and pagan lands? As the "man in the street" has his limitations, because he is not a scholar, so because he is not enough of the "man in the street," and perhaps, in the last analysis, the ordinary man is as capable of dealing with the soul's great questions as are the cloistered scholars, for sturdiness and common sense count for much in the practical problems of life, and religion is essentially practical.

The canon then traced the practical and intelligent results of Christianity, through history, in its help to mankind. He told how some Buddhist teachers had gained a following among the women of New York, who had been captivated by the "Mild-ered Orientals," but a churchman had offered to start a fund to send these good women to the country where Buddhism prevailed that they might enjoy the treatment of Buddhist women, for he knew, as a man of intelligence, how soon they would cry for the protection of the Cross of Christ. Christianity had done more for women than anything in the world's history.

The article in the magazine had boasted that thousands, in America, had given up the "outworn religion." The speaker said perhaps that might account for the statement made by a recent divorce court judge, that in the last decade there had been a "slump in American morals," that in every ten marriages there was one divorce—30,000 divorces last year; that in the next five years he thought it would be one divorce to every five marriages, and in this opinion, there was danger of "practical savagery in American home life." The preacher asked if there might not be some place for the old religion in such "conditions of intelligence."

He then applied it to life in Canada, and pointed out the danger of being caught in this "drift," and urged upon loyal Canadians to stand firm in the old paths, and to remember that, attendance at public worship was an act of respect to the nation's God and of faith that the religion of Christ was "the power of God unto salvation."

ON LIFE OF CHRIST.
Prof. Dyde's Address at Y.M.C.A. Meeting.

The meeting held by the Y.M.C.A. at the Orpheum theatre, last evening, was better attended than that of a week ago. There was good lively singing, led by a splendid orchestra, which always tends to make a meeting more effective. William Treener sang two solos in good voice, and was accompanied by his brother, Herbert Treener.

After the usual opening service, the chairman, F. G. Lockett, in a few remarks, introduced Prof. Dyde, of Queen's, who gave the men a very vivid and interesting talk on "Jesus And The Manly Man." Prof. Dyde drew out many lessons from the life of Christ, showing that He was courage and bravery itself. It took more courage to face the ridicule to which He was subjected, than to face the greatest dangers. Christ had the true marks of real greatness, as evidenced by His immense, passionate heart. We test the greatness of a man by the reach of his affection, and the range of his heart. In spite of the terrible ridicule and threats from time to time, Christ maintained that calm, even mind, and exemplified the life He lived at all times by His great forgiving heart. To have the true spirit of greatness to-day a man must have that wide range of affection as shown by Jesus.

AT BETHEL CHURCH.
Great Increase in the Membership on Sunday.

At yesterday morning's communion, thirty-six new members were received into the fellowship of Bethel Congregational church, the largest ever in the history of the church. The communicants filled the main body of the building, and many strangers were present also.

The pastor stated that a deep and quiet revival was spreading into almost every family associated with the congregation, and he expected that preaching and personal work would produce twenty-five more new members before Easter. Thirty-one of these, welcomed yesterday, were by confession of faith, three by letter, and two from other communions. Only one came from other Kingston churches, by letter.

Mr. Mershon stated a procession of the unchurched of Kingston could be expected, and were on the way to the church's doors. The Sunday school is pouring members into the communion from every class; each class is organized and the school is growing steadily. The Y.P.S.C.E. is remarkably efficient and faithful to the church's spiritual power, yet engages enthusiastically in all kinds of athletic sports for recreation. Cups and banners, won in contests, are accumulating, and Bethel's "Yankers" preacher has dubbed it the "White-House" Society, for its president, Robert Treener, has just been elected to the presidency of all Kingston societies.

Another feature of the church shows spiritual power; Mr. Mershon, since coming to the congregation, on December 1st, has preached titling and stewardship persistently, and the monthly offerings have spontaneously increased fifty per cent. The treasury, like a gushing spring, is overflowing, and besides meeting all bills, a fund is accumulating, for additional evangelization and church improvement, immediately necessary. As a vital, organized, gospel agency, Bethel church is throbbing with hope and thanksgiving.

To See Hon. Adam Beck.
This afternoon Ald. Toye left for Toronto, having been commissioned by the light, heat, and power committee to interview the Hon. Adam Beck, chairman, and the chief engineer of the Hydro-Electric commission, regarding cheap power for this district. Ald. Toye has an appointment with Mr. Beck to-morrow morning. On Wednesday he will meet Ald. Bailley and City Engineer Craig in Guelph with regard to the garbage question.

Preparing for Storm.
This morning, the street railway company president wrote City Engineer Craig, asking that the city be prepared to help the company to-morrow, to clear the snow off the streets, in view of the storm which is expected to-night. The city engineer had a consultation with Ald. Bigney, chairman of the board of works, and as a result, the necessary preparations have been made and will be carried out, if need be.

Service at Queen's.
Rev. W. H. Griffith Thomas, D.D., of Wycliffe College, Toronto, was the preacher at the service in Convocation hall, Sunday afternoon, and he delivered a forceful sermon on the gospel, and its power. He chose his text from Romans I, 16.

FRONTENAC'S LEAVE

AT NOON, TUESDAY, TO PLAY IN PETERBORO.

Peterboro Fans Betting 2 to 1 on the Home Team—Half-Hour Halves Too Long For Junior Players.

Frontenacs will leave, to-morrow, at twelve o'clock sharp, from the Kingston and Pembroke railway station, for Peterboro, to play the junior O.H.A. team in that city. This is quite an important game, and the boys will have to go some to win out. This they feel quite confident of doing. The following players will go: Marchand, Davidson, McCammon, Brouse, Hunt, Millan, Boyer, Williams. The team will return after the game on a special Pullman sleeper, arriving home at 8 a.m. Wednesday.

The return game with Peterboro will be played at the covered rink, on Friday next. The indications point to a record attendance. The Frontenacs' famous Rooters' Club and 14th band will be out in force. It should be a big hockey night.

Played Ball With Puck.
Toronto Star.

While Picton juniors were striving to stem the Kingston Frontenac avalanche at Picton, ten days ago, Hodgins, the Picton left wing, fell just as he got inside the Kingston defence. When he sat up the puck was close to his hand, so Hodgins, despairing probably of netting the puck any other way, picked it up and slammed it at Goalkeeper Williams. Williams dropped his stick and catching the puck, promptly relayed it to first base, represented by the further corner of the rink. The referee faced the puck off, and let the offenders down with a quiet tip that if they wanted to play baseball he wanted a mask for his end of it.

Will Referee at Peterborough.
Harvey Sproule, of Toronto, will referee the game in Peterboro Tuesday night between Frontenacs and Grilles.

Cobourg Bouspiel.
A curling bouspiel will open at Cobourg on the 14th inst. Four rinks of Kingston curlers will go up to take part in the games.

Will Play To-night.
There are two games scheduled to be played at the Stadium rink to-night. The first is between Stadiums and Bath Road and the second between Y.M.C.A. and Waldrons.

Peterboro Cocky.
It is reported that Peterboro is so sure of defeating Frontenacs to-morrow night that odds of two to one are being offered by Peterboro sports. Looks from here as though they had "wheels."

Girls Will Play Hockey.
The girls' hockey team at Queen's will go to Gananoque on Wednesday to play a game with the girls of the Indian town. Wonder if the Gananoque baseball and hockey girls still chew gum as they used to.

Saturday's Curling.
The games in the local series at the curling rink, on Saturday night, resulted as follows:

Skip McDonald defeated Skip Gill by a score of 21 to 8; Skip McKelvey won from Skip Hooper 13 to 4; Skip Sutherland defeated Skip Elliott 13 to 10; Skip Powers won from Skip Hague 18 to 5.

Gown vs. Town.
There will be "big doings" at the curling rink to-night, at eight o'clock, when five rinks from Queen's university will play five of the city rinks, or as it has been announced, it will be Gown vs. Town. The town rink will be skipped by A. Strachan, W. B. Dalton, Thomas Slater, E. Lyons and R. D. Sutherland. The skips for the college teams will likely be Prof. Watson, Prof. Dyde, Prof. Laird and E. O. Slieter, the latter representing the collegiate institute.

Game at Palace Rink.
A very interesting game of hockey
