MANY CITIZENS ARE NEGLIGENT IN MATTER.

And Police Have to Keep on Their Track to Get the Work Done-Snow Shovelling is no Easy Job, But it Must be Carried Out.

Shovelling snow is by no means soft snap, and people do not like the job, but nevertheless it has to done. This week, the police have put forth every effort to get the citizens to clear off the walks, as the by-laws suitable for all work. Soft, pliable, of the city say that citizens must do so, but in having the by-law carried out, the constables have had a very hard task, in many cases.

All sorts of "cranks" are found on going the rounds, but there are people who do not have to be told more than once to get busy with "What are you troubling me for, why don't you get the other fellow to clear off his walk ?" This is a sample of what the constable gets from some of the people while he is on his rounds. Some times the police have to go to a person two or three times before he is able to get him to remove the snow. The final step is to have the guilty party summoned to the police court, and this is the only way to bring some people to time. Then there are some people who think the police have some spite against them, when they are ordered to clean off the walk. They do not seem to realize that the policeman is only carrying out his duty. If the police did not remind people about the snow, there are some who would not use a shovel on their walk The man who will not turn in and help clean off the snow is what the
