

A GRAND MEDICINE FOR OLD PEOPLE

"Fruit-a-lives" Restores The Health and Strength of Youth.

GRANDE LIGNE, QUE., Jan. 2nd, 1910. "I heartily recommend 'Fruit-a-lives' to all who suffer from constipation and the painful consequences, Piles. I am now over 80 years of age and suffered for more than 10 years with Constipation and Piles. I tried all kinds of remedies, but nothing cured me. About four years ago, I received a sample of 'Fruit-a-lives'. After taking a few doses, I felt that 'Fruit-a-lives' were doing me good. As 'Fruit-a-lives' were not sold here then, I wrote to Ottawa for several boxes.

After taking four boxes, I felt well—my Bowels were regular—and the Piles had disappeared. N. JOUBERT. By taking one 'Fruit-a-lives' tablet half an hour before meals—or one or two at night—old people can correct all Stomach, Liver and Kidney Troubles. 'Fruit-a-lives' the famous fruit medicine is mild and gentle in action—pleasant to the taste—yet no other remedy has been found to be so effective in keeping old folks in good health. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-lives Limited, Ottawa.

THE ROYAL PAGEANT AT THE CORONATION

The Precedent of 1802 Will, it is Announced, be Followed as Closely as Possible. The arrangements for the Royal pageant associated with the Coronation of King George V. are so far complete that one can now form some idea of the comprehensiveness of the scheme. The precedent of 1802 is to be followed as far as possible. The line of procession will be the same, so that the progress of Royalties will be witnessed by the millions of East and South London, as well as by the more select inhabitants of and visitors to the West End. There will be a grand naval review at Spithead, and probably a military review. As the Oversea Dominions of the Empire will be well represented, and the great and small Powers of the world, the people will once more have a unique and powerful illustration of what the British Empire signifies. When it is considered that the varied units that make up the British Empire have been welded together by a generous application of the principles of justice, self-government, and religious and political liberty, citizens of the British Empire may well indulge in the festivity of the prospect of this great fact being represented once more in the metropolis of the world in a way that will strengthen the strong bonds that already hold them.

EXILED KING'S INCOME

Portuguese Government Allowing Him $3,330 a Month

At a meeting of foreign Press representatives the Portuguese Minister for Foreign Affairs said the departure of the Monarchists had been voluntary. As a proof of its toleration and generosity the Government was making monthly payments of $2,220 to Queen Maria Pia, and $3,330 to King Manuel. The Government having need of $125,000, $750,000 was immediately offered, a proof of the confidence felt in business circles.

Reuter's Agency circulates, with reference to this announcement, the statement following, which is based, says the Agency, on the "highest Portuguese authority." "With reference to the declaration of the Portuguese Minister of Foreign Affairs concerning the toleration and generosity displayed by the Republic towards the Royal family, Queen Maria Pia's dowry was settled in an Act approved by the Portuguese and Italian Chambers before Her Majesty's marriage with the late King Dom Luiz, and is an international agreement binding on whatever Government may be in power in Lisbon.

"As to King Manuel, His Majesty has so far received no sums except those derived from the estates of the house of Braganza, which constitute his personal property, and there can, therefore, be no question of any display of toleration and generosity by the Republican Government.

A SCOTTISH EXPLORER

The Remains of Major Laing Have Been Found

A correspondent writing from Timbuctoo announces the discovery of the remains of the Scottish explorer Major Alexander Gordon Laing, who was murdered by natives in 1826 between Timbuctoo and Arawan while exploring the sources of the Niger on behalf of the British Government. Major Laing, who was the son of a classical teacher in Edinburgh, was an African traveller of considerable repute. At the outset of his career he entered the Army, and while serving in the West Indies was appointed a lieutenant and adjutant. In 1819 he was sent to Sierra Leone, where he was seized with fever, and narrowly escaped death. He subsequently distinguished himself in the Ashantee war, and in 1825 he was promoted to the rank of captain and major. Later he was attached to an expedition appointed to explore the course of the Niger, and while engaged in this work he was treacherously assassinated by his guides.

NOVEL EYEGLASSES

Enlarge the image on the Retina of Short-Sighted Persons

A German inventor has devised what he calls telescope eyeglasses. They are intended for the use of short-sighted persons by the very simple means of enlarging the image on the retina. They are especially designed for that class of near-sighted people who cannot wear the ordinary simply corrected glasses. The monocular combination consists of two parts united in a single metal frame, a front objective lens or collector and a second nearer the eye to disperse the rays at the proper angle to make the correction for the degree of myopia in question. When properly prescribed and made the two lenses have such relation to each other that there is no distortion, astigmatism, or colored border to the image obtained. Another German has invented what he calls police eyeglasses. On the side next the face they have thin concave mirrors which may be extended sideways or by folding back so as not to show. They give the wearer, if he has normal sight, an image of what he is going on almost directly behind him. They are proposed for the German secret police. Whether adopted or not is not to be ascertained from head-quarters.

FORTY WINKS

1. Lord Palmerston was nicknamed "The Great Sleeper."
2. Mr. Gladstone could sleep anywhere, and was often quite oblivious of the charges and political opponents were hurling at him.
3. William Pitt could sleep whenever he wanted to.
4. Lord Harrington often enjoyed "forty winks" on the benches.
5. Mr. Lloyd-George after half an hour in an easy chair returns fresh to his work.

A new type of milk can has been invented which is airtight, and is easily cleaned. Filled at the dairy, and sealed with the owner's label, the can is so constructed that it delivers automatically and accurately any quantity that is desired, and runs out clean to the last drop.

BITS OF NEWS FROM OLD LAND

School Children Insured Against Accidents—Death of a Famous Jockey—Not Too Old at 71

A curate of St. Mary's Church, Hitchin, officiated on Wednesday at the marriage of his father, the incumbent of a living, near Baldock, Hertfordshire.

Lotteries at bazaars were condemned by the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Dublin, Dr. Walsh, in a speech at the Irish capital, as an inducement to gambling.

The Northampton Education Committee has decided to insure all children attending the elementary schools against accidents while they are under the control of the authority.

It was stated at Dublin on Tuesday that a inspector employed by the Belfast Corporation had saved $1,000 out of a salary of $10 a week. Although eighty-six years old, he worked almost to the day of his death.

Mr. C. Bathurst, M.P., speaking at the Farmers' Club, said small swill was a most useful article for feeding pigs with. "They eat it greedily; it improves their constitution, and I have reason to believe that it possesses food value."

Mr. E. V. Horton, of Wolverhampton, who is eighty-three years old, has spent seventy of those years with one firm, Messrs. Henry Rogers, Sons, and Co., Ltd., of Union Street. For the last fifty years he has held the post of cashier.

A champion bulldog, purchased six years ago for $4,000, and insured at Lloyd's for $5,500, has just died. The valuable animal was Royal Stone, belonging to Mr. Stephenson, of Leeds, and it had won four championships and more than 500 prizes.

The Marquis of Exeter has remitted half a year's rent to those agriculturists who were until recently his tenants in the Bourne district of Lincolnshire, and have suffered by the recent floods. The total amount of the remission is said to be upwards of $3,500.

The parishioners of St. Stephen's Church have decided to request the Rev. J. W. Prain to reconsider his decision to resign his living, as, notwithstanding his advanced age of seventy-one years, they consider he has many years of fruitful work before him still.

An old woman of seventy-six, living at Clavering, Essex, who has been in receipt of out-relief from the Saffron Walden Guardians, has, owing to the state of her health, been compelled to go into the workhouse. After her removal $175 in gold and $109 in silver were found in her clothing.

The death occurred at Newmarket of Harry Parry, who in the sixties and seventies was one of the foremost jockeys on the English Turf. He rode for the Duke of Beaufort, Baron Rothschild, Lord Wilton, Prince Soltykoff, and M. Lefevre, and his successes included the Cesarewitch, the One Thousand Guineas, and the Royal Hunt Cup.

Sir G. L. Gomme, Clerk to the London County Council, believes that the Roman boat recently discovered on the site of the new County Hall at Westminster Bridge, is probably a relic of the first fleet formed to protect the shores of Britain. A coin of Allectus, which was found in the boat, points to its date being about 293-298 A.D.

The Bishop of Southwell, speaking at Mansfield, stated that one of the greatest problems in his diocese was the poor remuneration paid to the clergy. "If I could only get a good miner's wage for a large number of my incumbents," he said, "they would be in a much better position than at present."

By way of experiment the cane has been relegated to obscurity at St. James's School, Barrow, the teachers having decided to encourage industry, punctuality, and good conduct by a policy of rewards taking the form of badges for individuals and banners for classes. Thus if a refractory pupil puts his class low on the list, his schoolmates are left to let him know what they think of him.

The Strange Conduct of an Artist at Budapest

A strange scene occurred in the Salon at Budapest the other week. A young man wearing an Inverness cape, the long hair and the slouch hat of the typical artist, was seen to take out a knife and began to slash one of the pictures upon the walls, and before he could be stopped he had not only completely ruined the picture, but cut the canvas to shreds. He was taken before the authorities, loudly protesting, and there the strange story transpired that the destroyer of the picture was actually its creator. The artist had tried for years to get a picture hung, and had at last succeeded. Whether the joy of success unhinged his reason, or whether he acted in this strange fashion to show his contempt for the official art world, is not clear, but probably the latter reason is the true one, as the man's demeanor was sane in other respects.

What He Got.

Some children were telling their father what they got at school. The eldest got reading, spelling and definitions. "And what do you get, my little man?" said the father to a rosy-cheeked little fellow. "Oh, I det's redin', spellin', and speakin'."
