SAY GOOD-BYE

To Archbishop Gauthier Ere He Departs

GIFTS WERE GIVEN

TO HIS GRACE BY CLERGY AND PEOPLE.

The Archbishop Was Greatly Moved—His Reply to the Addresses—Said Last Mass in St. Mary's Cathedral This Morning.

With sad lips and still sadder hearts did the Roman Catholics of this city, last evening, bid farewell to their chief pastor, in St. Mary's cathedral. Under ordinary circumstances, the vast edifice brilliantly illuminated and filled to overflowing with priests and people, would have presented a scene of singular joy and devotion, but, alas, on this occasion, all such feelings were overshadowed by the thought that the hour of separation had at last come, and strong men's brows bent before this choice.

Archbishop Gauthier, when raised to his present dignity, chose as his motto, "In fide et lenitate." (In faith and leniency), and, well he has lived up to his obligations as a shepherd from the thousands to whom his paternal solicitude and broad sympathies have brought comfort and inspiration. He was indeed the good shepherd, whose staff, jewelled with kindness and love, endeared him to his flock and to all. And so it is when the announcement of his removal from Kingston was made known, there was genuine as well as general regret.

Putting their sentiments into acts, both the clergy of the archdiocese and congregation of St. Mary's decided to present his grace with some token of their gratitude and affection. Last evening was the eve of the good archbishop's departure for Ottawa, over which archdiocese he will henceforth minister, and a great congregation gathered in the cathedral to witness the presentation of addresses and gifts to his grace.

The service commenced shortly before eight o'clock, when the clergy of the archdiocese, gathered before Archbishop Gauthier, and made the presentation of the golden pectoral cross and chain, the gift of the clergy. The address was read by Vice-General Masterson, of Prescott, and the presentation was made by Rev. Father Spratt, of Wolfe Island. The address read as follows:

Address of the Clergy.
To the Most Reverend Charles Hugh Gauthier, D.D., Archbishop of Ottawa—Most revered and beloved archbishop—

On this solemn occasion, the eve of your departure from this diocese, to assume the responsible duties of chief pastor of the archdiocese of Ottawa, we, who have been your loyal and devoted clergy, respectfully beg leave to approach your grace in order to give expression to the sentiments of profound regret and sincere sorrow awakened within us by contemplation of the thought that those sacred relations of chief pastor and priests existing between us through many happy years are about to be severed. Just twelve years ago, with feelings of abounding joy and lively satisfaction, the priests of this archdiocese gathered around you in this very sanctuary for the purpose of presenting to your grace the respectful homage of your united priesthood, and bidding you welcome to the chair of authority in this, the mother diocese of the Catholic church of Ontario.

Your grace's already long years of fruitful labor in the various parishes entrusted to you by your ecclesiastical superiors were a guarantee of your future success, under the blessing of God, in the exalted position to which you had just then been called.

In the different parishes in which you have labored, you have left behind you ample evidence of your indefatigable zeal, and unselfish devotion to duty, in the form of magnificent churches, substantial presbyteries, handsome convents and schools for the Christian education of the young, and well equipped hospitals for alleviation of human suffering. But more lasting, still than beautiful edifices, more enduring than stately structures, was the home you had built for your self in the grateful hearts of admiring brother priests, and a devoted people. To the former by your piety, your cordiality, your unselfishness, in a word, by unconscious display of all those virtues that go to constitute the priestly gift of a good example, to the latter by your urbanity, your kindness and your devotedness to their every interest, you had bound yourself by lasting ties of liveliest gratitude and deepest affection.

We are all aware, your grace, how our fondest hopes and brightest anticipations then awakened by the announcement of your grace's elevation to the dignity and responsibility of the episcopal office in this archdiocese, have been fully realized. In your grace's person are combined in happy union those gifts and virtues that go to form the character of the wise ruler in God's church, and the true pastor of souls. To the larger gifts of the theological knowledge, prudent judgment, equanimity and superior administrative ability—gifts pertaining to your office of ruler and teacher, which have made your administration of the archdiocese so conspicuously successful, an equal qualification to exercise a special influence in the wider sphere covered by the jurisdiction of the united hierarchy, are allied those gentler virtues that enable you to come into close personal touch with your spiritual children individually, and, with your characteristic solicitude, tenderness and sympathy, to bring joy, peace and consolation into their daily lives.

Under your zealous care and prudent guidance this archdiocese has experienced, from year to year, ever-increasing prosperity. New parishes have been established, new churches built, new schools and convents opened and charitable institutions enlarged and improved. During your administration the crowning work in the construction of this magnificent cathedral has been accomplished. Massive buttresses with their exquisitely beautiful pinnacles of cut stone now adorn its imposing exterior. A magnificent pipe-organ has been installed. And now, with this superb decoration of the interior of the cathedral, the installation of a new system of electric lighting, and the erection of the beautiful Carrara marble altar of pure Gothic design, harmonizing with the style of the sacred edifice so beautifully adorned, it may be truly said, "Finis Coronat Opus."

Sincere indeed is our regret and genuine our sorrow at the thought of your departure, but we bow in reverence and filial submission to the ruling of the Holy Father, Pious X. We rejoice, if joy be possible in the circumstances, that you have been so highly honored by the holy father in being chosen to fill so important a see as that of Ottawa, the capital of the dominion. The signal success of your administration in this archdiocese is a happy augury of the success that, under the blessing of God, will attend you in the discharge of the duties that will devolve upon you in your new position.

We cannot but recognize that wisdom from on High has guided the holy father in the selection of your grace to fill the important position to which you are now called. Of French and Scottish parentage, there flows in your veins the blood of two of the noblest races that go to form the composite Canadian character. What with that intellectual and spiritual training which the Catholic church alone can give, it may be truly said that by nature and grace you are eminently fitted to fill the exalted position of the first see in Canada.

It was indeed our hope that you would spend the evening of your life in this city, blest by years of fruitful labor, in this archdiocese where every parish contains evidence of your successful administration, surrounded by a clergy who loved to labor by your side, amidst a people bound to you by ties of deepest affection. But in the Providence of God it was not to be. The tender relations of a chief shepherd and his flock, that during those happy years have existed between us, are about to be broken; but we shall ever treasure in grateful remembrance the paternal solicitude, the unflinching courage, the kindly sympathy of your benign rule in the spirit of your motto, "In fide et lenitate," so happily chosen, so consistently observed, so truly expressive of your grace's character.

That God may give you years of continued usefulness to the holy church and of lasting influence for good in the archdiocese of Ottawa, will ever be the fervent prayer of those who composed your loyal and united priesthood of the venerable and illustrious archdiocese of Kingston.

In conclusion, your grace, we ask you to accept as a token of affection and as a memorial of the relations heretofore existing between us, this pectoral cross and chain of gold, symbolizing as they do the love of Him in whose footsteps you have so nobly trod, and that golden chain of St. Andrew, that binds us to Him and to one another. In the hope that it will be the only cross that you will be called upon to bear in the wider field of religious activity into which you are about to enter.

The address was signed by all the clergy of the diocese.

After the presentation by the clergy of the pectoral cross and chain, the address of the clergy, amounting to $1,500 was made. The address was read by James Swift, and the gift was handed to the archbishop by John Hickey. The address read as follows:

Address of the Laity.
Your Grace—It is our painful task to speak for every Catholic, may every resident of this ancient town, the word whose sound makes one linger—Farewell. Never could this word come home to us with fuller meaning than now, when we meet to express our feelings of deep affection, veneration and regret on the eve of parting with one whom all have learned to honor and love. It behooves, at this juncture, the members of St. Mary's church to give voice to their grateful sense of the benefits this ecclesiastical province and its cathedral have experienced since your grace was called to the see of Kingston. When His Holiness, Pope Leo, was inspired from above to appoint you our chief pastor, our church was burdened with a heavy debt; its revenues were unequal to its necessary expenditures; its organ-loft did not lend to the solemn rites of our religion the elevating auxiliary of sacred music; its bare walls and arches, its modest altar, bespoken each in their tongue, the need of an able administrator and zealous steward of the house of God. All the benefits for which we craved, becoming the object of your grace's warmest and unceasing endeavors, have been attained by

MAKES A PLEA

For the Recognition of French-Canadians

SCHOOL QUESTION

DISCUSSED BY EX-ALDERMAN OF OTTAWA.

The Conditions Existing in the Diocese of Kingston—Clergy Have Taken no Interest in Perpetuating the French Language.

Ottawa, Feb. 15.—By a curious coincidence, a letter on the bi-lingual school question, that is of intense interest, appears here on the very day Archbishop Gauthier is on his way from Kingston to Ottawa to assume charge of the diocese here, in which there are several hundred French-Canadians. The letter is by ex-Ald. C. B. O. Boudreau, and is a strongly worded plea for recognition of the rights of the French-Canadians, and a plea that that language should be taught in Ontario schools. He refers to Kingston several times. After quoting some statistics, he says a diocesan census of the Kingston diocese in 1891, showed a French-Canadian population of 11,431. In one connection he remarks: "As a matter of fact, French-Canadians have been systematically deprived of their rights. As an example, let me state the conditions now existing in Kingston, Brockville and surroundings. Through a canvass we have ascertained that there are 600 French-Canadians, most of whom have the use of their language. No French at all is being taught in Kingston. Then in Addington county there is 1,000 of a French population; Frontenac, 400; Brockville and vicinity, 300. The clergy in these counties have, seemingly, taken no interest in French education, with the result that almost every French-Canadian speaks English only."

Mr. Boudreau goes on to discuss this question. He says all eyes are now riveted on the Ontario legislature and refers to a movement there to introduce a resolution looking to the abolition of the bi-lingual schools. At one stage Mr. Boudreau remarks: "Throughout the diocese of Gengarry there is a vast French-Canadian population, and French teaching is scarcely up to the mark. The pulpit is generally found in the hands of an English-speaking priest, certainly not conversant as he should be with the French tongue. Is that right? Archbishop Bruchési, in teaching a salutary lesson by repeating a sermon in English to satisfy one sole hearer only. Should not the right of a large population of French-Canadians be recognized? In Windsor, Father Downey gives as his reason for the curtailment of the French exercises in his church, mostly paid by the contributions of the French: 'I am told that it is useless, in as much as the children speak wholly in English.'"

THE RIDEAU CANAL.
Engineer Talks of Proposed Closing From "Deep Cut."

Ottawa, Feb. 15.—"Should it be decided to close up the Rideau canal from the 'deep cut,' the government could bring down enough water from that point through a tunnel to develop four thousand horse power," was the statement of Mr. Cauchon, an Ottawa engineer, discussing the proposition.

The proposal of the Canadian Pacific railway has been to close up the canal at the "deep cut," and use it from that point to the central station for its tracks. From the "deep cut" to Dow's Lake, it was proposed that there be a series of artificial lakes. To have the water in these lakes remain fresh a certain amount of flow must be kept up and, therefore, some outlet would have to be made from the "deep cut." It was proposed to take it through pipes from there east to the Rideau river. However, this proposal would mean that instead the water would be taken from the "deep cut" through a pipe along the present canal to the foot of the lock, where an ornamental power house would be built. From this power house enough electricity could be developed to light the parliament buildings and grounds and also furnish a "white way" throughout the drive-way.

SEVERE WINTER IN ANATOLIA.
Turkish Sportsmen Attacked by Wolves, and One Man Eaten.

Constantinople, Feb. 15.—The winter has been unusually severe. In Constantinople and in the Anatolian provinces much snow has fallen. Communication is difficult, and in some places is suspended.

Three native sportsmen have been attacked by a pack of wolves, which surrounded the party near Ada Bazar. One of the men was devoured, and the others, though they were injured, escaped by climbing a tree. Another Turk was devoured by wolves near the village of Gümüşler, in the same district.

Australia Lends to States.
Melbourne, Feb. 15.—The federal treasury is choked with cash, consequent on the state note issues. Instead of this cash going to the market, the state of Victoria has borrowed a million sterling, and the other states are seeking loans, altogether amounting to three millions.

"TOM" LONGBOAT HERE.

He Ran From Cape Vincent to Wolfe Island.

"Tom" Longboat, the celebrated runner, is in the city. He came by foot from Cape Vincent to Wolfe Island, and was then driven over to the Iroquois hotel, by John Theriault and Con. Millan, and he had dinner at the hotel.

"Tom" does not have to wait for stages. No matter if the going is good or not, he is good for a run, and in spite of the fact that the road from the Cape was filled with drifts, he made the jaunt in good time, although "Tom" did not care to give the exact time. He spent the night at Point Alexander, where he was the guest of Capt. John Geoghegan, customs officer. He was also entertained by several people on the way.

"Tom" is looking fine, is in good health, and is just on his way back to Toronto, from a trip to New York state, where he made arrangements to give some exhibition runs. This is his first visit to Kingston since he had a run at the covered rink here. It was in Kingston that Longboat started his professional career.

Police Constable "Nick" Timmerman was one of the first to shake hands with the celebrated Indian runner. He was introduced by Con. Millan, the latter referring to Mr. Timmerman as "Kingston's veteran police constable."

The girl, who is but eighteen years of age, was for a time at the St. James' hotel. According to the letters which her mother received, she then was taken very ill and went to the Royal Victoria hospital. The last letter asked Mrs. Graves to meet her there. This morning, when the mother arrived, she went directly to the hospital, but found no trace of her daughter. No girl of that name had been registered there. A canvass of all the city hospitals was made, but nothing was found that would indicate that the girl had been a patient. Mrs. Graves then applied to the detective office, and Detective Lohaupt was put on the case.
