THE STOLEN HORSE.

An Old Proverb With a New Application.

The woods are full of "so-called" remedies for Baldness.

You may call anything in creation a remedy, but to use them is like locking the stable after the horse is stolen.

Baldness and Dandruff are caused by a germ—if you don't kill the germ the germ will kill the hair.

Scientists have labored with the problem of a preventative for Baldness for many years.

Newbro's Herculite is the product of a modern idea, and will cure Dandruff and prevent Baldness because germs cannot exist when you apply Herculite.

Herculite is a valuable hair dressing and scalp disinfectant as well as a cure for Dandruff.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to the Herculite Co., Detroit, Mich. One dollar bottles guaranteed. J. B. McLeod, special agent, Kingston, Ont.

FAVORED RECIPROcity.

Sir John A. Macdonald was in favor of reciprocity with the United States. His famous manifesto of 1891 contains this statement:

"We said to the Americans: 'We are perfectly willing to trade with you on equal terms. We are desirous of having a fair-reciprocity treaty, but we will not consent to open our markets to you while yours remain closed to us.'"

It is a fair reciprocity arrangement that the Laurier administration is trying to make for the people of Canada—an arrangement that Sir John A. Macdonald and his colleagues were willing to make twenty years ago had the United States been disposed to enter into negotiations for a fair agreement.

IS THIS FAIR?

A young girl in Toronto a few weeks ago was accused and convicted of stealing $1.50 and received a sentence of twenty days, which is at the rate of one day for each seven and one-half cents, says the Paris Review.

At this rate to secure a six-year sentence, such as a certain ex-bank manager received, she would have to have stolen $164.15. Travers was convicted of stealing $40,000, not from one but many persons, and received a six-year sentence, which figures out to $18,261 a day. Had he gotten the 74 cent rate, he would have to serve 533,333 days, or 1,461 years and sixty-eight days. The ratio of 74 against $18,261 means the sentence for stealing $1.50 is 245 1/2 times greater than that for stealing $40,000.

AN INVENTOR'S FATE.

John Needham Longdon, a well-known civil and mining engineer and fellow of the Society of Engineers, died in New York, recently, from starvation, while seeking for the secret of generating cheap electricity, says the Montreal Star. At present, only a trifling over ten per cent. of the actual power of coal, when converted into electricity, is delivered to the bus-bar, the wire carrying all the current produced by the source of electrical energy. In other words, nearly ninety per cent. of the power is lost in various forms of leakage, in the processes of converting coal into heat, heat into steam, steam into electricity, and in delivering the current. The Edison and the Kelvin are scarcely more remarkable for the importance and multitude of their inventions than they are for the fact that they made money out of them. The men who make money out of inventions, as a rule, are men who reap where they have not sown, and gather where they have not sowed.

ENGLAND'S WEALTH ABROAD.

According to available documentary evidence the amount of capital invested by Great Britain in India, the colonies and foreign countries at present aggregates £3,192,000,000—($15,960,000,000), of which £1,354,000,000 is invested in the colonies and India, and £1,838,000,000 in foreign countries. Of the £1,554,000,000, £1,100,000,000 is placed in Canada, Australia and South Africa.

Outside the British empire and the United States, the investments are largely confined to the greater nations of South America.

British investments in Japan, including the war loan of £30,000,000, amount to £54,000,000, with £7,000,000 to municipalities and nearly £9,000,000 for railways.

The amount supplied to China is about £27,000,000, while about £620,000,000 is invested in miscellaneous foreign countries.

Of the foreign investments (£1,638,000,000), forty-three per cent. is in the United States.

DESTRUCTION OF GARRAGE.

The gentlemen who went away to study garbage systems will be doing something presently. They are alleged to have learned a great deal in their pilgrimages, and a great deal that is really very practicable. The difficulty in Kingston is that the city, and its council, want something that will not cost much. The committee has not a surplus of money. The question with it is not the best garbage system extant, but the best that is adaptable at a small expenditure of money. Pointers have been got in this direction by visiting places of a size which is comparable with Kingston.

The Whig has been conducting an independent enquiry on its own account, and it finds in Progressive Age an article which is very suggestive. In this paper it is learned the garbage system of many small places is defective, because it has been simply removed from one place to another. A nuisance is still a nuisance when displaced and exposed. The household incinerator, which in many cases is the kitchen range, is not doing its work well. There is, however, a new appliance in which the fuel is gas, applied in a certain way.

This is in use in Boston, and may be operated for public or private purposes. It is a furnace which performs in the centre of a big city so successfully that neighbors do not know of its existence. A study of its construction reveals several important principles. The furnace has two chambers with a horizontal floor extending to near one end; the burners are at one end of the lower chamber, the hot gases pass to the other end, consuming any dry material in its course, pass to the upper chamber and over the animals, and thence through a checker brick chamber, which breaks up any odorous gases before they reach the chimney.

The principles are plain. Dry material requires a long combustion chamber to prevent smoke. Wet material must be drained, dried, and burned at a less high temperature and the gases of combustion broken up by high temperature afterward, for the checker-brick chamber reaches a high heat in a short time. This installation will assist in solving the small incinerator problem. It is a matter that can be followed up in Kingston as well as in other places.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A Chinese valentine would naturally have Quiescens on it, remarks the Toronto Star. And tales inside, we suppose.

If property is to be taxed for sidewalks, roads, garbage, water, etc., this will be a good place for tenants but a poor place for landlords.

With such a fine surplus for the municipal lighting plant, could not the city council arrange to cut a slice off its charges for the benefit of consumers?

The number of consumptive patients treated in the Kingston General Hospital for the last ten years was 162, an average of 16.2 per year. For the same period in the Hotel Dieu the number was 202, an average of 20.2 per year. Should not the council have a care in stopping this loss of life, when it can be overcome?

The head of a large lumber company in British Columbia writes to the press of Victoria to say that "British Columbia merchants will be under no greater disadvantages in the Canadian market, whereas they may gain very considerably by reason of the opening to them of the markets of the United States." A great many people have shouted in this matter before they were hurt.

The truth is clear that it is not the emigration of teachers to the west that is causing the scarcity in Ontario, says the London Advertiser, but the incompetent management of Hon. D. Pyne and his adviser. Neither of them had any experience with rural school conditions. If the Hydro-Electric Commission had selected a pair of train dispatchers to engineer the electrical construction works, it would have been better than Sir James Whitney's method of administering the provincial school system.

It is laughable to read about George E. Foster shouting loyalty. Has he forgotten how "loyal" he was to Canada in 1896 when he and the other members of "the nest of traitors" deserted Premier Bowell? By the way, here is a little problem for George E. to solve: If it has taken 100 years for Canada and the United States to arrange a little trade agreement, how long would it take to arrange an annexation treaty? There is as much chance of Canada being annexed to the United States as there is of Foster becoming premier of Canada.

The North and South View.

Nothing is clearer than that the creation of north and south lines of trade will help to develop the states of North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa, and Nebraska. The North-West of Canada, if such lines are established, will become tributary to those states, just as they were once tributary to the states east of the Mississippi river. The same process will be repeated when the limits of our economical system have been pushed northward.

A SPECIAL PRAYER

THIS IS A YEAR OF PAIN TO THE POPE.

"Open and Secret Enemies of Holy See" at Bottom of Rome's Coming Celebration, Says Archbishop Farley.

New York, Feb. 16.—Declaring that the proposed celebration in Rome in commemoration of the fortieth anniversary of the taking of that city from the control of the pope is an insult to the papist and every member of the Catholic church, Archbishop Farley, in a letter read in all the churches in this archdiocese asks that, as the pope is in more than ordinary need of material help this year, liberal contributions be made at the Peter's Pence collection to be taken up next Sunday.

He also requests the prayers of the clergy and laity for the pope "in all their devotions, public and private, that his enemies may not prevail."

The letter, which was addressed to the pastors of the archdiocese, is in part as follows:

"This year of grace 1911 promises to be one of the most painful to him personally in the pontificate of our holy father, Pius X. The open and secret enemies of the holy see have decided to hold a celebration in the Eternal City in commemoration of the sacrilegious taking of Rome forty years ago. The celebration is to be of such a character as to prolong the insult implied as far as possible into the year. The evident and declared intent of this is to inflict the deepest and most poignant pain on the vicar of Christ under his own eyes.

"Only a few weeks ago the heads of the secret societies so bitterly hostile to the church, who are to take a leading part in this demonstration, instructed their followers throughout the world to do everything in their power to make the coming festivity as antipapal as possible.

"The insult thus offered to the holy see, it need not be said, is directed less against every member of the Catholic church. The public speech of the present mayor of Rome, uttered a few months ago and stigmatized by his own co-religionists of London as brutal, gave ample promise of what may be expected at the coming demonstration in Rome.

"We cannot remain silent in the presence of this indignity which menaces the supreme father of the faithful."

A SOLDIER OF PEACE.

Duke of Connaught Speaks About South Africa.

In the course of his address in reply to the official welcome extended by the city of London to mark the return from his mission to South Africa, the Duke of Connaught said: "We were much touched, my lord mayor, by the receipt of your invitation to visit this ancient hall, filled, as it is, with associations of the past, and crowded with memories of peace and war, and although I am a soldier to the heart's core, I am genuinely thankful to feel that the mission, the happy conclusion of which you so generously honor to-day, was a mission not of arms, but the commemoration of a great movement in celebration of peace thoroughly founded on the sure and certain basis of full representative government.

"I do earnestly trust that, now peace and union have come, you will leave no stone unturned to make the trade of the Cape throughout the world, and of the whole of South Africa, British and your very own, and that you will thus help not only yourselves but also that great continent to develop her immense and at present practically untouched resources of minerals, agriculture and general commerce.

"At Capr Town, Bloemfontein, Potchefstroom, Pretoria, Johannesburg, Maritzburg and Durban it was ever the same—gorgeous decorations, dense crowds and the heartiest of welcomes from every class of the community.

"I say deliberately 'every class' because British and Dutch knew no distinctions with me, and I recognized none with them. In union they are of one with us, and through union they are ours in the great co-partnership of empire. I earnestly trust that any talk of Dutch and English will be no more, and that the unhappy word 'racialism' will be altogether eradicated from the vocabulary."

In a Different Role.

Le Temps, Ottawa, says editorially: "Again we hear of Bishop Fallon, but this time, if rumors be correct, he is no longer taking the role of autocrat and Caesar but of a person reprimanded and censured.

"These terms, perhaps, may demand modification but, we are assured on good authority, that at the recent meeting of bishops at the archbishop's palace in Toronto, the English speaking bishops of the province of Ontario blamed Mr. Fallon for his escapade in the matter of bilingual teaching. We will probably have more definite facts next week."

HE WILLED HIS BRAIN

TO BE EXAMINED IN INTERESTS OF SCIENCE.

Liquor Never Had Any Effect Upon a Philadelphia Man—He Drank All His Life—Was Seventy-six Years Old.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 17.—Science has been asked to solve a problem which Jules Rosendale carried with him unannounced to the grave. Friend of many prominent Philadelphians, sociological student, linguist and man of letters, Rosendale died, yesterday morning, at the Samaritan hospital, of uremia.

The riddle that he could not read and which he left as a legacy to science is this: "How was it that he, seventy-six years old, had never in all his life felt the least effect from drink, although he was a regular user of alcoholic liquors and could drink at one time more than enough to stagger an ordinary man? How was it that he drank how much he might, his brain was always clear, his pulse steady and his faculties alert?"

To make sure that these questions would be answered if science could do it after his death, Rosendale left a will. In it he names William Klopfer, a manufacturer, as executor, with instructions to turn over his modest estate to his daughter, Margaret Dale, an actress, and to follow the instructions of this clause:

"I hereby direct my executor to notify the Wistar Institute of Anatomy of the University of Pennsylvania to examine my brain and stomach before cremation for scientific investigation, especially to learn why alcoholic drink, no matter how strong, never had any effect on my brain."

NEWSPAPER PUBLICITY.

Business Reliance of To-day, Says Theatrical Manager.

"There is nothing to equal the advantage of the judicious use of newspaper space as an appeal for public attention to the wares you offer," says Frank Howe, Jr., manager of the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia.

"Prior to the opening of 'The Country Boy' at the Walnut Street Theatre, we used approximately 2,000 agents late in quantity and fine in quality were attracted to the first performance, the third night the house was filled. The heavy rain probably kept away a few intending patrons on Thursday, the fourth night, Friday night we were sold out, and Saturday night hundreds were turned away as we were unable to find places for them.

"I'm willing to wager large sums the receipts of the Walnut for last week exceeded those of any other theatre in Philadelphia.

"This quick return to an appeal for a good play could not be had except for the fact that liberal use of the advertising columns in a campaign of preparation excited public curiosity in the producer and playwright's effort, and when the players had done their part the public was prepared to favorably regard the whole, and flocked to the Walnut to show their preference.

"The posting of cuts and announcements on the dead walls and other available spaces has its necessity through custom only. The advent of the efficient, resourceful man of brilliant mentality, displaced the old-time 'show agent,' and the 'bill sticker,' though the latter remains with us, as do the menials and like ilk, but the newspaper advertising is the business reliance to-day."

TIDINGS FROM NAPANEE.

Death of an Italian Boy—The Late R. W. Miles.

Napanee, Feb. 17.—Mr. and Mrs. Mark Pizzarello, lost by death their eleven-year-old son, "Danny." About three weeks ago he was stricken with typhoid fever and slowly grew worse, when death ended his suffering on Monday morning. He was a general favorite with his playmates in the West Ward school. The funeral took place on Thursday morning, and as is the custom in Italy, the band was in attendance and played appropriate selections at church and cemetery. The Rev. Father O'Connor celebrated high mass. The remains were placed in the Roman Catholic vault.

R. W. Miles, a former well-known resident of Napanee, died at Richmond, Ont., on February 14th, aged about forty-five years. Deceased left here about eight years ago for a warmer climate as he was then in poor health. He leaves one son, Jay, also a wife, (formerly Ida Chatterton), and one brother, William Miles, of Ernestown. Maud Ashley left this week for Hartford, Conn. The marriage of Miss Ruby M. Barnhardt, of North Fredericksburg, to Harold G. Storms, son of J. W. Storms, of Emerson, Man., took place in Winnipeg on February 1st. Mrs. Madill was "At Home" to a number of her friends Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gibbard and Miss Luella E. Hall are spending a few days in Toronto. Mrs. W. A. Baker left this week to visit in Ottawa. Mrs. A. Macdonald is spending a couple of weeks visiting in London. The many friends of Mrs. W. A. Grange will be pleased to hear she is slowly recovering from her recent illness.

The storm of Tuesday night and Wednesday blocked the roads in every direction. The Bay of Quinte railway was two days making the run from Tweed to Napanee. Allan Miller, who has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Miller, Switzerland, leaves this week for his home in Elm Creek, Man.

ADVOCATE RESOLUTIONS

By Township Councils Favoring Reciprocity.

Wolfe Island, Feb. 15.—(To the Editor)—The proposed reciprocity between Canada and the United States is being discussed largely by the farmers, liberals and conservative alike. All voice the one opinion that if the bill becomes law it would certainly be in the farmers' interest. It lands to a man should be united on this point, as they could haul their produce as easily to Cape Vincent as to Kingston and if such does occur the city through its officials would then perhaps, be anxious to offer some inducement to the islander by the way of a free wharf for our ferry, also an electric light in the near vicinity, which they, through the Township council, sought after some time ago, but were refused.

Would it not be a step in the right direction for our township council and other townships favoring the farmers bill to pass the following resolution and forward to Ottawa. "That we approve of the agreement made with the United States government for free trade in natural products and express our thanks to Hon. Mr. Fielding for his services in negotiating the same."

In the writer's opinion now is the opportune time for the farmer to amalgamate, as in unity there is strength, and as the farmers are over seventy-five per cent. it is easy to see that a house divided against itself must fall.—ANON.

Vanita's Vanitatum.

Washington Star.

During the French revolution a thief and a matronis jotted in a tumbrel side by side through the wild streets of Paris, on the way to the guillotine, while a venerable priest tried to console their terrible last ride with moral reflections.

"A low la noblesse! Down with the aristocrats!" shouted the red-capped mob. Thereupon the thief rose in the cart and cried: "My friends, you deceive yourself. I am not an aristocrat. I am a thief." The priest plucked him by the sleeve, saying reproachfully: "Sit down, this is no time for vanity!"

A lighthouse has been established on Oatland Point, western end of the Bay of Quinte. The light will be put in position on the opening of navigation in 1911.
