

CHARGE MADE

Against Kingston Shipbuilding Company.

WORKMEN PETITION

THE CITY COUNCIL FOR AN INVESTIGATION.

They Say That Kingston Labor is Not Being Fairly Treated—Ald. W. J. Fair Denies the Truth of the Statements Made.

The civic finance committee is to investigate a charge made to the city council that the Kingston Shipbuilding company is not living up to its agreement with the city in regard to the engaging of local labor for its work in the shipyard. Whether there is any ground for the charge, remains to be seen. W. J. Fair, secretary-treasurer of the company, says it has nothing to fear from an investigation, and declares that the charge is brought by a few agitators. The company, he says, is living up to its agreement with the city.

J. Miller, J. Alley and W. B. Holland, formerly laborers with the shipbuilding company, wrote the council, asking that an investigation be made into whether the above company is living up to its agreement. They declared that the company was not, for it was engaging outsiders in preference to Kingston workmen. The latter were given only inferior positions, they claimed.

Ald. Elliott moved that the petition be sent to the finance committee for report.

Ald. Fair claimed that the petition should be filed. The council, he said, had no right to examine into the company's affairs until the proper time which was specified by the agreement. If the city auditor reported that the company was not living up to its agreement, then it would be time enough for an investigation.

Ald. Fair said that at great expense the company was forced to bring skilled men here to do certain work. It was impossible to get these men in Kingston. The company now had ninety-four men in their yards, of whom seventeen were from outside the city. Out of the total number, twenty-one were skilled men. Ald. Fair claimed the petitioners were agitators and should not be listened to. The company, he said, was not going before any committee to have its business investigated until the end of the year. Two of the petitioners were discharged because they were unsatisfactory. The other left of his own accord.

Ald. Elliott said the council had a duty to perform. It had received a petition from three ratepayers, and it was bound to hear it. Ald. Fair, he said, had become unnecessarily excited over the matter. The speaker claimed that his resolution did not call for a searching examination of the company's affairs. Such a thing would perhaps not be necessary. At any rate, he did not think that Ald. Fair, who had admitted to be a member of the company, should take the stand he did as an alderman.

Ald. Fair intended moving that the petition be filed, but withdrew the amendment and the motion of Ald. Elliott was adopted.

LOOKING FOR HUBBY

SHE BELIEVED THAT HE HAD ELOPED.

But Found That He Had Crossed Border in Search of Work—A Flurry of Excitement Late on Monday Afternoon—Woman's Search For Her Husband.

Quite a flutter of excitement was caused late on Monday afternoon, when it was thought that a Kingston man had eloped with a Kingston woman. After an investigation by the wife of the man, it was found that the man left the city—but alone, and there had been no elopement. The couple have only been living in the city a short time. It appears that the husband had been working steadily up till a couple of days ago, when he was laid off. It is alleged that on Monday, while his wife was down town, he packed his trunk, at their boarding-house, and made off, telling the story that he had secured another position in the city, but that he was going to get a boarding-house nearer his work, so that he would be able to get home for dinner. He did not come back.

When the wife came home and heard the story, she at once got the idea that it was an elopement sure, and as soon as she could, she got out on the search. By a little piece of detective work, she found that "hubby" had been one of the passengers leaving on the afternoon stage for Cape Vincent. She also found that the woman whom she suspected had not been a passenger, and then her mind was relieved.

The woman is now of the opinion that it was not her husband's intention to desert her, but that he simply went over the border to secure employment, and now she is anxiously awaiting a letter from him.

The woman was very angry for a time, and threatened to get the entire police force out on the track of her husband if he had figured in an elopement.

SENATE TALK

In the House of Commons on Monday

REFORM DISCUSSED

MOTION FOR ELECTION OF SENATORS WITHDRAWN.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Believes Senate Can be Reformed Without Interfering With Constitution—Sifton to Speak on Reciprocity To-day.

Special to the Whig.

Ottawa, Feb. 28.—Mr. Lennox, South Simcoe, yesterday, in the house, read an article from the London Morning Post, which stated that all the overseas dominions, with the exception of Canada, had sent to the colonial office some suggestions with respect to the imperial conference, to be held this summer. Was that true, he inquired?

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that it was true that the government had not, as yet, sent over any suggestions.

Some honorable member—They are too busy dealing with the United States.

Hon. Frank Oliver stated, in answer to Mr. Wilson, of Lennox, that $227,242,000 had been expended for immigration purposes in the United States and $245,547 in Great Britain.

The motion of Mr. McLean, of Haron, to have the government take necessary proceedings to have the senate made representative and directly responsible to the people was withdrawn by Mr. McLean after considerable discussion.

In speaking to his resolution, he believed that the people should rule and the senate should be elected by them, not appointed by the government. The senate should be responsible to each province, he declared.

He based his solution of senate reform as follows:

First: The dominion should be divided into senatorial sections; second, it should be made compulsory to have every man on the voters' list mark his ballot at the polls in an election of a senator; third, the personal canvasses should be prohibited during the election of senators, because such method would, if allowed, be demoralizing; fourth, the senate should be a revising body without the power of veto.

Mr. Beattie, London, declared that it would be absurd to think of doing away with the senate, or that that body should be made elective. He was of the opinion that senators should be appointed for ten or twelve years and retired at the age of eighty.

Mr. Lennox, South Simcoe, said that the main trouble with the senate was the appointments. The party in power was not reasonably honest in selecting the appointees.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier believed that the senate could be effectively reformed without interfering with the constitution.

All through his regime he had always acted fairly in making appointments, and in the best interests of the country. It is true that some appointments were made which were not perfect, but on the whole it has been a credit to the liberal government.

He said the matter was under consideration, and in view of this he would ask Mr. McLean to withdraw his resolution. This was complied with.

Mr. Lennox moved a resolution that before committing the country to any of the alternative propositions, now under consideration for construction of the Quebec bridge, the minister of railways should inform the house in detail of all steps taken in order that the people's representatives should have an opportunity of considering and advising upon what is best in the public interest.

Hon. Mr. Graham said that the Quebec bridge would cost about thirteen and a quarter million dollars before it was completed, and it would take five years from now to build it.

But two days will likely be devoted to reciprocity in the house this week—to-day and Thursday. There will be no sitting on Ash Wednesday, and Friday is usually devoted to supply.

This afternoon, Hon. Clifford Sifton is to speak and there is great speculation as to what he will say. The idea which most generally prevails is that he will come out against reciprocity.

TOO MANY MEDICOS.

Needs Fewer, But Requires Better Trained Men.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—"The medical profession is overcrowded by the survival of the unfit," said Dr. Alexander Hugh Ferguson, president of the Chicago Medical Society, in an address of welcome to members of the Association of Medical Colleges.

"With a population of about 90,000,000 we have at least 130,000 who are legally licensed to practice medicine. This is about one to every 500 inhabitants. In England the proportion is 1 to 1,250; in France, 1 to 2,175, and in other countries the proportion is still more favorable to the medical profession. We do not need more doctors, but we do need a better breed."

TO RECIPROCITY BILL OFFERED ON MONDAY.

Senator Wilson Proposes to Put Bituminous Coal and Slack on the Free List—He is a Coal Producer.

Washington, D.C., Feb. 27.—One more amendment to the reciprocity bill was offered in the senate yesterday afternoon this time by Senator Clarence Watson, of West Virginia.

Senator Watson, who succeeds the late Senator Stephen Elkins, is one of the largest individual coal producers of the United States, but his amendment proposes to strike out bituminous coal and slack from the dutiable list of the McCall bill, and put them on the free list.

A number of petitions against reciprocity were read in the senate during the morning.

It is said that, in the event of there being an extra session, no reciprocity legislation need be expected until late in the summer.

MINERAL PRODUCTION.

The Report of the Ontario Government.

Toronto, Feb. 28.—The mineral production, according to a government bulletin, issued this morning, by the department of mines, increased fifteen per cent. during 1910, and fifty-three per cent. during 1909 and 1910 combined. In 1908 the value of Ontario's mineral productions were $25,600,000; in 1909, $32,900,000, and in 1910, $39,200,000. Calculating on the basis used by the Dominion Geological survey, says the report, Ontario can fairly claim a production of one-half the total mineral production of Canada last year. "The chief contributors to this increase," says the report, "were the silver mines of Cobalt and nickel copper mines of Sudbury. The silver came almost entirely from Cobalt, Gowganda and South Lorraine. The gold production last year was $60,000, which was double the previous year and half of which came from Porcupine. The greater proportion of the high grade silver from Cobalt was treated in Ontario refineries at Copper Cliff, Deloro and Thorold. Most of it was marketable in bars in London."

UNIQUE WAGER

Won by Earl of Percy at Ottawa.

WALKED 111½ MILES

ALONG C.P.R. TRACKS, MONTREAL TO OTTAWA.

Tramped Three Days—He Looked Like a Hobo—Earl Percy Was for Years a Member of the British Parliament.

Special to the Whig.

Ottawa, Feb. 28.—The Earl of Percy, who attended the Decies' wedding at New York, where he was a usher, has just won a unique wager here. Benumbed with cold and after being turned out at one point on the route to a hobo, the earl, eldest son of the Duke of Northumberland, former under secretary of state for India, reached Ottawa last night after completing a trip from Montreal to Ottawa on foot. As a result, he wins a wager, the amount of which he has not revealed. The trip was made alone, and along the tracks of the Canadian Pacific railway.

It is possible that the present feat was prompted by a desire to emulate the fame gained by Hon. Robert Bessford by his prize fight with Drexel. The earl was walking, Saturday, Sunday and part of yesterday.

At Plantagenet fresh boots had been placed for the Earl, in case his own played out, but the man refused to believe that the single-looking individual who asked for them was the Earl, and absolutely refused to give up the boots. This did not worry the nobleman, and he hit the railway ties getting here last night in time to attend the Paardeberg day dinner (held at government house to celebrate the anniversary of the battle of Paardeberg).

This morning officials of Earl Grey's household got busy and telegraphed, regarding the missing boots. On his way up, the Earl stopped at Rigaud, the first night and at Plantagenet the second night. Although there was a very keen north wind, he suffered no injury. The distance is 111½ miles and he walked thirty-seven miles a day.

Earl Percy is a noted athlete. He was for years a member of the British parliament. It is understood the wager is for a fairly large amount.

ILLICIT WHISKEY STILL

Found in House of Motorman in Ottawa.

Gibbons pleaded guilty to unlawfully distilling spirits without a license. The offence is subject to a $500 fine and six months imprisonment. Gibbons' place was located almost under the shadow of the parliament buildings.

TAX CHURCH PROPERTY.

Surprises London Methodists by His Declaration.

London, Ont., Feb. 28.—Methodists are disconcerted, to say the least, at the open declaration, of Rev. George Dewey, pastor of the Empress avenue Methodist church, that he favored the church taxation. In his sermon, Mr. Dewey said: "I hold up both hands every time for the taxation of church property. Not a foot of property but should be taxed. The right church will stand. We hear a cry about the moral influence of the church as a right for its exemption from taxes. Let the church stand on its life and merit. What your relationship to the church stands for is the essential thing."

AS RESULT OF ARREST OF FOUR WOMEN

Charged With Shoplifting at Erie, Pa.—Big Quantity of Plunder—Photographs of Admirers Found in Trunks.

Erie, Pa., Feb. 28.—Four stylish women were arrested here charged with shoplifting and maintaining a "fence" for the disposal of plunder stolen in big departmental stores and jewellery stores of Cleveland, Buffalo, Pittsburg, Erie and other cities. Half a carload of plunder is stored at police headquarters as a result of the raid on the alleged "fence."

The value of the goods recovered is estimated at more than $5,000, and includes $1,000 worth of cut glass alone. Warrants are out for a score of others and more arrests are expected.

The police admit that in two trunks taken from the house were found photographs of prominent men of this city, who are said to have been attentive to the young women, one of whom is said to have confessed, implicating a score of dealers, among them milliners who purchased stolen furs to use in the manufacture of women's hats.

ALL NIGHT SESSION

FOR TRAINING OF WORKMEN.

Technical Education Bill Before Legislature.

Toronto, Feb. 28.—Hon. Dr. Pyne's promised bill, to provide industrial classes, for which a vote of $20,000 was included in the supplementary estimates, was introduced in the legislature by the minister, yesterday afternoon. As already stated, the bill leaves it to municipalities to open industrial classes. It authorizes any urban school board to establish general industrial schools, special industrial schools, technical high schools and schools of fine and applied art. The schools are to be operated under regulations of the department of education along the line of the system now applied to high schools. The apportioning of money granted by the legislature is to be in charge of the minister of education. This apportionment will be made upon the same basis as the high school grant, according to the number of pupils, equipment and qualification of teachers. The recommendations of Dr. Seath, superintendent of education, have been followed in arriving at the classification of industrial schools. According to the bill, general industrial schools are those in which are added to the regular course special classes to prepare pupils for industrial life. Special industrial classes are intended to provide instruction in theoretical and practical work for particular trades peculiar to the district in which the school is situated. Where the apprenticeship system is combined with the school course the schools are to be known as co-operative ones.

Every technical school is to be under the management of a committee of twelve, six from the board of education, six persons not members of that board who are engaged in the industries carried on in the district and three employers of labor. It will be known as the advisory industrial committee. Where there is more than one school in the district there may be two or more committees. The committee is to be appointed by the board of education, on nomination of the chairman. The committee, subject to the minister of education, will have power to provide buildings for industrial classes, to establish classes in other school buildings, and to prescribe the course of studies. All other necessary work in connection with the school will be within its jurisdiction.

When an agricultural or commercial department is established in any high school, the board of education in charge of the school is given power to appoint a committee of management of eight members. Four of these shall be members of the board and four who are engaged in commercial or agricultural pursuits. This committee is given practically the same powers as the committee to be appointed in connection with industrial schools.
