WORK AS MISSIONARY

OF ST. PATRICK, WHO HAD A VISION.

He Responded to the Same Voice as Johnah Did—Sermon by Rev. E. Le Roy Rice.

Last evening in the First Congregational church, Rev. E. Le Roy Rice preached the second of a series of sermons on the prophet as missionary, the subject being "St. Patrick, the Missionary in Ireland." In introducing the subject the speaker said: "It may seem to some that the commission between the prophet and the missionary is more imaginary than real nevertheless it is quite clear that one of the Old Testament prophets at least became a missionary. Jonah, a narrow orthodox Jew, hears the missionary call and goes forth to preach to the inhabitants of Nineveh. The prophet or Nabi, is the inspired spokesman of Jehovah. Now he may be called upon to predict the future, and in that case he becomes a prophet in accord with the commonly accepted notion of prophecy. The prophet may be called upon to direct the affairs of state and there we have the prophet as statesman. He may be called upon to arouse the sluggish consciences of the nation of his own times and to institute great reforms and there we have the prophet appearing as a reformer, or the prophet may be called upon to leave home and friends and deliver his message to a foreign people and there we have the prophet and missionary. The spirit of prophecy thus finds expression in many ways according to the times in which the prophet lives. St. Patrick, the apostle of Ireland, was a live missionary prophet. Like the apostle Paul he saw the vision and heard the voice, and he could not but be obedient. For many St. Patrick is a character largely mythical. It is just as easy to believe in the real existence of certain characters in Shakespeare's play of 'A Midsummer Night's Dream,' as it is to believe that such a character as St. Patrick ever lived in Ireland. It is to be regretted that so many pious myths and legends have somewhat obscured what was without doubt a real historical character. The world has found it easier to remember what was miraculous and fanciful than it has to remember the simple facts of St. Patrick's life. Delightful as many of these old Irish legends and folk tales are, we could have wished that there had been some truer chronicler to give to us the simple data of St. Patrick's life.

The unrest of noble souls possessed St. Patrick. He was in a vision a man hearing a letter upon which were inscribed the words "The voice of the people of Ireland." He seemed to hear a voice saying "Come, holy youth, and henceforth walk amongst us." It was the voice that centuries before had spoken to the prophet Jonah, it was the voice that spoke to the apostle Paul, it was the voice that has spoken to Moffet and Livingstone and Dr. Grenfell.

The 17th March should become invested with a new meaning. It should be a great missionary anniversary for it commemorates the death of a great missionary prophet, St. Patrick, the apostle of Ireland.

Japan Celebrates. Tokio, March 13.—Marquis Kasura, premier and minister of finance, gave a dinner Saturday night for the ambassador and staff of the American embassy, in celebration of the conclusion of the new commercial treaty between Japan and the United States.

Left Fortune to Housekeeper. New York, March 13.—Mrs. Margaret A. Rowley, for six years housekeeper for the late Dr. Daniel A. Currie, ex-mayor of Englewood, N.J., receives the bulk of his estate, according to his will, which has been probated in Hackensack. The estate is worth about $100,000. Provision is made for the sister and nephew of Dr. Currie. St. Paul's Episcopal church at Englewood, receives $3,000.

By-law is For $30,000. Through a typographical error the amount in the proposed bridge by-law, advertised on Saturday, was put at $40,000 in the heading, whereas the figure should have been $30,000. The body of the act clearly shows that $30,000 is the amount to be expended by the city. A cursory reading of the by-law would plainly show that $30,000 was the right amount.

Rumor of a Suicide. There was a rumor circulated around the city, this morning, to the effect that a young lady had committed suicide in an hotel, last evening, by taking carbolic acid. The report was groundless, however, for the person who was taken to the hospital in an ambulance was a young man who was suffering from fever.

Daniel Callaghan Stricken. Daniel Callaghan, Wellington street, was stricken with a sudden illness on Sunday. He collapsed and fell to the floor. R. J. Reid's ambulance was called, and Mr. Callaghan was removed to the general hospital, where he revived after an hour, and to-day he was able to return home.

Thawing the Sewers. Men of the city corporation were out this morning, with a boiler, thawing the sewers by means of steam. The ice has frozen to a thickness of several inches, and at different ones it was found to be a difficult thing to get the ice thawed.

"THE PRIEST'S LIPS"

SHOULD KEEP KNOWLEDGE TEXT OF ORATION

By Rev. J. B. D. Llywd, D.D., Vice-Provost of Trinity College, Toronto—A Call for the Best for the Ministry.

Kingston Anglicans had, on Sunday, a very great privilege for amongst them at the cathedral and St. Paul's was the vice-provost of Trinity College, Toronto, Rev. J. B. D. Llywd, D.D. Dr. Llywd is a big man, physically, and a strong man intellectually, a brilliant orator, the deliberateness of his utterance and the convincing force of his argument contrasting dramatically with the flashing fire which strikes, quivering, through his sentences and reveals the Celtic race from which he springs.

The text of Dr. Llywd's sermon, at St. George's, at matins, was Malachi ii. 7: "The priest's lips should keep knowledge and they should seek the law at his mouth, for he is the messenger of the Lord of Hosts," and he said in part: "Every student of his part must be impressed with the importance of the part played by the ministry of the Church of England, in the history of the nation. Archbishop Theodore, of Canterbury, shapes an ecclesiastical system which eventually becomes the pattern of our political arrangements, and which powerfully aids in the work of bringing a scattered mass of Anglo-Saxon tribes into the form of a united nation. John Wycliffe, parish priest of Lutterworth, and among the first to manifest sympathy with the cause of the poor. Collet, Dean of St. Paul's, throws his life into the cause of the English Renaissance and opens the scriptures to the laity. Nearer our own time the saintly George Herbert is poet, priest and man of God. Still nearer come such names as Frederick William Robertson, the greatest preacher of the last century; Frederick Maurice and Charles Kingsley, whose contributions to the national life, dealt with the relation between Christianity and social problems, ed to-day there is Bishop Gore, of Birmingham, performing a similar task. Germany has her Luther, her Melancthon, her Bugenhagen, France can claim with pride to Bossuet, Bourdaloue, Massillon, Francois de Sales, Fenelon and Lacordaire, but the record of ministerial service in England is not that of a few illustrious names, it is a record of the intertwining of the spiritual and the secular work of thousands of holy and heroic lives toiling upon the great fabric like the coral insect upon its reef.

The cause is not alone racial conditions favorable to higher growth, nor only certain salt of conscience and principle peculiar to the national genius, it is also largely the result of fitness of ministerial training. Piety first, but also intelligence, scholarship and culture, qualifying men to be leaders, have been in demand, in response to which the great universities have poured forth from the beginning an army of teachers and preachers of spiritual life. The poor, if a sincere fisherman's devout enthusiasm may give its initial impetus to a great religion (not because he is a fisherman and unlearned), but because he is devout and believing), but for the application of truths to the complex problems and varied personalities of human life knowledge, trained intelligence and educated conscience are required—in other words a ministry of spiritual life. #### WORK OF WHITE CAPS.

Women Brutally Beaten by Mob in Kentucky.

Lexington, Ky., March 13.—Garbed as "White Caps," a score or more of women joined with about 100 men in administering a whipping to two women in Morgan county. The victims of the mob were sisters, Nannie and Mary Combs. The beating was most severe, as attested by the fact that two new buggy whips were worn out on the backs of the women. After that they were forced into a vehicle, sent to the nearest railroad station, and put on a train under orders never to return. The Combs sisters were accused of maintaining an objectionable establishment. They have been warned frequently to leave.

TURRET OF MAINE RAISED.

Twenty Feet in Diameter and Weighs Eighteen Tons.

Havana, Cuba, March 13.—The top of the forward turret of the battleship Maine was raised yesterday morning near the bow of the wreck. Although it is twenty feet in diameter, and weighing eighteen tons, it is unwarped, but the terrific force of the explosion is shown by the way the bolts are shorn off.

The turret top was deeply bedded in the harbor mud, and for the past two weeks has interrupted the pile driving operations to complete the cofferdam. Every effort to pull it up merely resulted in breaking the tackle until the task was accomplished to-day.

DEADLOCK AT REGINA.

Regina, Sask., March 13.—The deadlock in the legislature over the question of the issuance of the voters' list, which was broken only by the advent of the Sabbath and looks as if it may last till Premier Scott in desperation announces the dissolution of the legislature.
