KINGSTON IS LOVED

BY HER SONS IN THE CITY OF MONTREAL.

Old Boys' Association Formed—Subscribed $160 to Kingston General Hospital and Elected Francis King Governor.

On the evening of Wednesday last, under the able management of a committee consisting of Messrs. Courtland Strang, Lawrence Henderson and Hugh C. Walkem, the Kingston Old Boys in Montreal gathered together to renew their youth and to pledge anew and together their devoted allegiance to the Old Limestone City. Through the kindness of Mr. Strang and other officers of the Engineers' club that institution threw its doors open to the gathering, and through the untiring energy, zeal and the magnetic force of the acting secretary, Mr. Walkem, no vacant seats were to be found at table. Fully fifty sons of Kingston, hailed each other across the banqueted dais, and through the festive board, and for the time, mingled with the odor of flowers, one breath of the very breezes of Lake Ontario. Each menu card bore a characteristic view in colors of some well known part of Kingston, and many were the memories recalled and shared as familiar scenes brought floods of recollection. Music and good singing in which uninvited talent joined unhesitatingly made the golden hours fly all too swiftly, and whether the strains were of "Canada, Mon Pays" or of "Auld Lang Syne," the very spirit of patriotism swayed the song, for like the soldiers on the eve of battle who sang "Annie Laurie" round the camp fire, each with one love in mind, each guest on this occasion was singing of his first and native land.

EXAM. RESULTS.

Queen's College examination results will be published in full in the Whig of Tuesday, April 25th. Any list previously printed in this paper will be repeated on this date, so that there will be one issue on which students may rely for a complete resume of the results. Order early. The demand for this year is the largest the Whig ever enjoyed, and we do our best to satisfy our friends to be disappointed.

SCOTCH-IRISH RELATION.

History of Scotland Tells Plainly Just What It Is.

Herbert O'Hara Moineau, in New York Tribune. Everyone knows that the Irish and the Scotch are nearly related, but not one in a hundred has a clear idea as to what that relation is. Yet it is written so large on the pages of Scotland's history that he who runs may read. Scottish authentic history is far less ancient than that of Ireland, but its dawn reveals the west of Scotland peopled by Irish Celts, and the east by Picts, whose ancestry is unknown. The first prince of the Irish in Scotland was Fergus, son of Eric a friend of St. Patrick—who crossed over with an army from Ireland in 503. His great-grandson, Connell, was king of the Irish-Scots, when the apostle of Scotland, Columba, who was an O'Donnell, began the conversion of the Picts.

The Irish in Scotland continually extended their dominion, and by the ninth century they had the whole country under rule. In the middle of that century Kenneth, son of Alpine (an Irish, MacAlpine), lineal descendant of the Irish Fergus and Eric, succeeded his father as king of the Irish-Scots, his sovereignty being acknowledged throughout the land in 846. The purely Irish monarchy he founded remained such till 1058, when Malcolm Canmore married a fugitive Saxon princess, but the sense of racial unity prevailed without cleavage till after the downfall of the Stuarts.

Thus it comes about that the language of Scotland, its clan polity, its plaids and kilts, its music and customs are identical almost with those of Ireland. "The Irish," declares Collins, "colonized Scotland, gave it a name, a literature and a language, gave it a hundred kings, and gave it Christianity."

Were these facts not known some of them might be inferred. Thus Ireland was the original Scotland (Scotia), and the Irish the original Scots known to Roman and medieval Europe under those names. Scotland, for centuries, serving as an Irish colony, was known as Lesser Scotland (Scotia Minor); the adjective only being dropped about the thirteenth century, when Ireland had come into its present name. The Latin for Irishman has always been Scotia, and in Gaelic Irish and Scotch are known simply as Gaels of Erin and Gaels of Albain.

SPORADIC SMALLPOX.

Health Authorities Blame it on Neglect of Doctors.

Central Gazette. Carelessness on the part of physicians and people in certain parts of the province is given as the cause for the sporadic outbreaks of small pox met with by the provincial health authorities. Of late, there have been several cases discovered, and in each instance all precautions to prevent a further spread of the disease have been taken. Though the local authorities do not give publicity to any cases where the disease has been diagnosed, it is said that during the last two days no less than eight distinct cases have been reported. Of these, three are in Bonaventure county, three in Quebec county and one each in Champlain and Nicolet.

R. WALDRON

ample of the progress made by the Old Boys in the metropolis of the Dominion: Gilbert Johnston, head of the mechanical department of the R. & O. W. Kirkpatrick, son of the late Sir George, well up in the C.P.R.; W. Skinner, a late but no less important arrival; L. Henderson, managing a great transportation company; T. E. Merritt, high in the councils of the Merchant Bank; R. M. Hannaford, engineer of the Montreal Street Railway; Herbert Kirkpatrick, who is buying and selling half of Montreal in Carrick, limited; Victor Drury, who bears some of Mr. Aitken's burdens for him; and others still in line. One saw countless more examples as the eye swept from the genial face of James Devlin near one end of the table to the much-loved and friendly smile of Charles McFarland near the other, but one hesitated to pick out merely individuals.

In a brief outline Mr. King, in response to the toast of the evening, traced the history of Kingston from the time Count Frontenac's little flotilla first landed in Anglin's Bay on a summer day in 1673 and drew on the standing timber of that fawny woodyard for the building of their rough log fort—down through the changing scenes of La Salle's reign of terror and the troubles with the Iroquois, to the bombardment by the English under Bradstreet in 1758, and the ultimate cession a few years later with the whole of French Canada; completing the story with some details of the U. E. Loyalist settlement, the later growth and fortification of the town, the old bridge, the early legislature, and other items that mark the road to modern times.

He touched a responsive chord in every breast when he passed lightly over present failures and professed love for the old town perhaps most because she still preserved something of her original freshness—because her skies were still blue, and her waters still fresh and clear, and because a summer day there was no more glorious spot in the world, and then venturing on a vision of the time not so far distant when the smoke clouds may yet come, when the big fleets of the upper lakes seek the landing place of Frontenac and La Salle, he roused the old boys to renewed enthusiasm for the welfare and prosperity of the town as a real city in the dominion of the twentieth century.

Among other speakers were John Shaw Skinner, who wittily and well upheld the honor of his erstwhile constituents; followed by D. C. Macarow, L. L. Henderson, W. Skinner, and others, and later Rev. Herbert Horsey in responding to the third toast of "Absent Friends, recalled many old scenes and by many feeling references strengthened the tie that binds the old boys together. A permanent association was then formed, with Mr. Strang, who had well earned the honor, for president; Mr. Merritt for vice-president, and Mr. Walkem for secretary and treasurer.

The good wine was kept till the end, or rather the cup of cheer and good fellowship was ultimately brimmed over with the milk of human kindness. In pursuance of a plan originating with James Johnston and his brother, Albert, the old boys deliberately drew up a subscription list for the Kingston General Hospital, coupling with it Mr. King's name as the governor, they would have the right to nominate, and in less time than it takes to write it, $160 was raised around the table. The list is to be increased from among those not present at the time. Mr. King, in his acceptance of the nomination, anticipated his appointment to the board and gave thanks as a governor for the generous offering so freely made, pledging himself at the same time to consider his trust one of infinitely greater responsibility than if the subscription had been his own. The Kingston General Hospital is to be congratulated on its new-found friends in Montreal, and if a gift of usefulness is commensurate with the good will of the givers, the sum presented will be freighted with blessings.

A Fire at Latimer.

Latimer, April 21.—On Monday afternoon, the barn of Lyman Lyons was burned by a spark from an engine. Several pigs and four calves were burned also. Mr. Lyons was severely burned about the face and hands by burning hay falling on him. James Davidson is spending the week at Opiticon. A. P. and P. L. Edwards have had telephones installed in their homes. Miss May Taylor, of Perth Road, is spending her holidays at her parents' home. Master Denzil Dixon, Inverary, spent Thursday with Master Taylor Edwards. Mrs. J. Gordon, who has been ill with pleuropneumonia, is somewhat better. Mr. Hanley, Inverary, spent Thursday at P. Edwards'. Mrs. William Bruce, city, is staying a few days with her aunt, Mrs. Rector. J. Taylor, salesman for Latimer cheese factory, attended the cheese board in Kingston on Thursday. Miss Emma Edwards spent a few days of last week in the city.

The death of Mrs. Sadie Weir.

The death of Mrs. Sadie Weir, at the home of A. Rector, has cast a gloom over the place. Mrs. Weir had been in failing health for some time. Her kindly ways had made her many friends.

Wolves Increasing in Quebec.

Quebec, April 22.—Wolves are increasing in numbers in North-Eastern Quebec. For some months past, red deer, which had not been seen for many years in the Lake St. John country have appeared there in considerable numbers. Indians and others guessed at once that the deer had been driven south by wolves and now within the last few weeks, these latter mentioned animals have been reported from many different points in the north between Lake St. John and La Tuque.

Young, But Wise.

Toronto Canadian Courier. In a school in a Western Ontario town is a little girl who has not taken quickly to the mysteries of addition. "One's one?" asked the teacher, while putting the class through the easiest of the addition table. The little girl referred to was the only person in the class who couldn't give the answer. "Two's one?" asked the teacher. The little girl smiled confidently, put up her hand and when fitted by the teacher, said, "Shoe polish."
