THE CROWNING OF GEORGE IV.

Strange Happenings at the Last George's Coronation, Namely in 1820

When King George IV. was crowned in 1820 there were some curious occurrences indeed. To begin with, the King himself was put into an extraordinary fix right on the hour appointed for the ceremony, since his special suit made for the Coronation did not fit at all when he tried to get into it on the fatal morning.

Try as he could, his Majesty could not get the clothes on as they were, and, meantime, the crowds were waiting impatiently for the procession. At length the attendants of the King had to cut the garments in several places, and to fasten them together so that they could, since there was no time to do otherwise. And only by that means was George IV. enabled to go to his Coronation at all, and then it was, after a long and painful trial, that he was crowned.

It is well known that, owing to a quarrel between George and his Consort, Queen Caroline, her Majesty was not allowed to be present at the ceremony, but she should not make a scene. The guards of the Abbey had strict orders on no account to allow her to enter the building, so that, when the Queen appeared in person, and demanded admittance, there was quite a terrible commotion. The men on duty resisted as gently and carefully as possible under the circumstances.

Caroline herself finally burst into a torrent of tears, and her evident distress and passion made the scene all the more shocking and pathetic. So great had been the rush of peereesses and others for seats and places that many of the fair aristocracy came the night before and camped out all night like first-nighters at a new play. Several duchesses and their friends slept on the ground in Dean's Yard on pillows, rugs and beds provided beforehand; and one private letter from a nobleman, who had a house in the yard, mentions "the tremendous noise and disturbance caused by Lady G., owing to her deep and persistent snoring throughout the greater part of the night whilst sleeping outside the Abbey."

The Coronation of King George IV. was the last one at which the official "King's Champion" appeared at the State banquet in full armor, riding into Westminster Hall on horseback, and throwing down his glove to challenge anybody on behalf of the monarch's right to the throne. Strangely enough, on this occasion the champion dismounted, and stumbled as he came to kiss the Sovereign's hand, whilst so heavy and cumbersome was his armor that he could not rise without assistance!

The wits around the King naturally showed great mirth at the incident, and remarked aloud that he was surely an extraordinary champion who could not even stand on his feet, let alone rise when once fallen, in order to continue the fight on behalf of his lord!

George IV.'s "progress" from Westminster Hall to the Abbey was the last of such processions at Coronations, and from it, for the first time during seven centuries, the Duke of Normandy and Aquitaine, or their representatives, were omitted as a sign that from henceforth English Kings gave up all claim to those French provinces.

ACHING MUSCLES AND AFTER-EFFECTS OF GRIPPE.

Zam-Buk Gives Ease.

As soon as you feel any deep-seated pain in the joints, back, wrists or elsewhere, place a liberal supply of Zam-Buk on the fingers or on the palm of the hand and rub it well in. The penetrating power of this "em-brocation-balm" is exceedingly great, and, once having reached the seat of the pain, it removes it speedily. It also ends the stiffness, which is so unpleasant.

Mrs. Frances Wyatt, of 25 Guy Avenue, Montreal, says: "I have found Zam-Buk most soothing and valuable in a very bad case of rheumatism, and also for stiffness of joints and muscles. I suffered long and acutely with rheumatism, and tried one liniment after another in vain. I also took medicines internally, but it remained for Zam-Buk to effect a cure. I began applying this balm whenever I felt the aches and pains of rheumatism coming on, or left the stiffness. The result was truly wonderful. Zam-Buk seemed to penetrate to the very seat of the pains, driving them out completely, and I am now quite cured."

This case, and scores of similar ones reported to us, is proof that Zam-Buk's penetrating and healing power is very great. In addition to its use as an embrocation it is a sure cure for skin diseases, such as eczema, ringworm, ulcers, blood-poisoning, scalp sores, etc., and is the most known "first aid." For piles, it is a specific. Gives certain ease. All druggists and stores, at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, Ont.

Mother should also try Zam-Buk soap for baby's bath and for the rashes, eruptions, pimples, etc., so common amongst children at this season. Shampooing with Zam-Buk Soap beautifies and strengthens the hair.

CORONATION SUMMER

Many Brilliant Ceremonies Will be Held—A Great Series.

From May on to the end of July London will be the scene of a series of festivities unequalled in splendor, the Coronation being the culminating point. The ceremonies already arranged include:

- May 15.—Opening by the King in State of the Festival of Empire at the Crystal Palace.
- May 18.—Unveiling of the King of the Queen Victoria Memorial in the Mall, the Kaiser and Kaiserin attending.
- May 22.—Opening of the Imperial Conference.
- June 26.—Banquet to foreign representatives at Buckingham Palace.
- June 27.—The King receives Colonial Premiers.
- June 28.—Coronation Day.
- June 29.—Procession through South London.
- June 30.—The King hosts "Naval Review at Spithead."
- July 1.—Gala performance at the Theatre.
- July 2.—Special performance at the theatre.
- July 3.—Special service at St. Paul's and a torchbear at the Guildhall. Third Royal procession through London.

If time permits, the King will also attend a military review at Aldershot and a gala performance at the Opera. King George himself is taking a very active part in the preparations, and, being a comparatively young man blessed with excellent health and plenty of vigor, there is little doubt that His Majesty will be able to support the fatigues of the numerous ceremonies with ease.

The routes of two of the Coronation processions—that of Coronation Day, June 22, and that of the Royal Progress on June 29—have already been announced. These will be the last word in modern pageantry, but the third procession to St. Paul's and the Guildhall on June 29 will be confined to Their Majesties, the Court, and a select escort. The route for this procession has not been definitely settled yet, but it is the intention of the organizing committee to choose other streets and approaches than those used for the two pageants. The route of the return will be totally different from that of the approach.

The Territorials will play an important part in the celebrations, both at the military review and in the lining of the streets of London during the octave.

The Australian Government has approved the arrangement to send eighty New South Wales senior cadets to England, under Major Wynne, to take part in the Coronation celebrations. The expenses of the cadets will be defrayed by private subscription.

Mr. Fisher, Premier of Australia, accepted the invitation of the Labor party to a banquet on May 25 at the Holborn Restaurant, to which every trade union in Britain has been asked to send a representative.

Detective Burns, Indianapolis, who arranged to arrest McNamara, has been arrested, charged with kidnaping. It develops that Roland Rodgers, kidnapped his children at Toronto, because his wife was sending them to a separate school.

The provincial police are issuing warnings that there are considerable bad bills in various parts of Ontario. Many disbursements in interest and dividends in the United States are estimated at $162,000,000.

SOME GORGEOUS ROBES

Will be Worn by Peers and Peereesses—Instructions Issued.

Not a few of the robes which will be worn by peers and peereesses at the Coronation ceremony are of historic interest. In some cases they have been in the family for two hundred years or more, and, although somewhat faded when compared with the new mantles, are worn with the greatest pride by those to whom they belong.

The Duke of Norfolk, as Earl Marshal, has already issued instructions regarding the robes to be worn by peers and peereesses. They are to be of crimson velvet, and the capes are to be powdered with bars similar to the "powdering" on the capes of peers. By the depth of the edging of fur on the mantle the degree of the wearer is indicated. A baronet, for instance, wears edging 2in. of fur, a viscountess also has 2in., a countess 3in., a marchioness 4in., and a duchess 5in.

The length of a peereess's train upon the ground—yet another sign of degree—is prescribed by the Earl Marshal as follows: The baroness, 1 1/2 yds.; viscountess, 1 3/4 yds.; countess, 1 3/4 yds.; marchioness, 1 3/4 yds.; and a duchess, 2 yds.

The order concerning peers is as follows: That the robe or mantle be of crimson velvet, edged with miniver, the cape furred with miniver pure, ermine (i.e., narrow pieces of black fur), according to their degree, viz.: barons, two rows; viscounts, two rows and a half; counts, three rows; marquesses, three rows and a half; dukes, four rows.

In addition, it is possible that Knights of the Garter, the Thistle, St. Patrick, the Bath, Star of India, St. Michael and St. George, and the Indian Empire will be allowed to wear the mantles which indicate their respective orders. If this idea is followed out additional splendor will be added to the scene in the Abbey, for the mantles are of a very gorgeous description. The mantle of the Garter, for instance, is of dark-blue velvet lined with taffetas. With this there is a surcoat of crimson velvet lined like the mantle and adorned like it, on the left breast, with an eight-pointed silver-embroidered star, within which is the red cross of St. George, the whole encircled by a miniature blue quarter.

The mantle of the Thistle is of green velvet, and that of St. Patrick is of sky-blue tabinet, lined with white silk. The mantle of the Bath is red, and on very high State occasions the knights are entitled to wear crimson surcoats, vests and breeches of white satin, white stockings and shoes, golden spurs, and a high-crowned hat with a plume of white feathers. The mantle of the Star of India is of light-blue satin, lined with white, and adorned with blue and silver tassels with a representation of the Star. The mantle and chaparran of St. Michael and St. George are of blue satin, lined with velvet silk, the hat surmounted with black feathers.

Quite a contrast is afforded by the mantle of the Indian Empire, which is of purple satin, lined with white silk, and fastened with pure silk and gold tassels, and on its left a representation of the Star.

PRINCE HENRY Born March 21, 1900.

A Coronation Culture. Coronation year is to be made the occasion for a great effort on the part of the Incorporated Tailors' Guild of Great Britain to create a purely British fashion in clothing. With this object an exhibition is shortly to be held in London which will have the support of hairdressers and every branch of the trade in all parts of England and Scotland. There will be an exhibition of designs, and the one selected by a committee of experts will be recommended to the whole trade for adoption as the recognized fashionable pattern. The Court hair-dressers are said to have taken up the idea with enthusiasm, and if the project proves to be as successful as its promoters anticipate, Parisian and Viennese domination will go by the board. The new culture is to be distinctly British.

Imitation Cough Cures

Is an Imitation Cough Medicine Good Enough for Your Children?

When you are sick and send for the doctor you don't want him to send a young medical student he has in his office. You would rather have the young fellow experiment on somebody else.

No more do you want imitations of the medicine you know to be of proven value in the cure of disease. The remarkable success of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in the cure of croup, bronchitis and colds has proven too great a temptation to imitators. They expect you to take chances with their medicines because the price is a few cents less.

Imitations are never sold on merit, but depend on the merit of the article they imitate. You don't want to be experimented on, and for this reason will insist on seeing the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt Book author, on the bottle you buy.

As it is made of simple ingredients of proven value, it is well suited for as a treatment for children. That it is effective in the cure of croup, bronchitis, whooping cough and the most severe coughs and colds is attested by its many years of continued success and enormous sales. 45c. all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.
