SCIENCE SCORES AGAIN.

A Preparation That Will Destroy the Dandruff Germ Discovered.

Finally the scientific student has discovered a certain remedy for dandruff. When it first became known that dandruff is the result of a germ or parasite that digs into the scalp and saps the vitality of hair at the root, causing falling hair and baldness, biologists set to work to discover some preparation that will kill the germ. After a year's labor in one laboratory, the dandruff germ destroyer was discovered, and it is now embodied in Newbro's Herpicide. It prevents baldness, stops falling hair and speedily eradicates dandruff. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect."

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. $1 bottles guaranteed. James B. McLeod, druggist, special agent, Kingston, Ont.

WHAT LIGHT REVEALS.

The case against Hon. Mr. Oliver has weakened considerably since the general manager of the Imperial Bank has intimated that the photograph of a page of figures in the Telegram does not represent the ledger accounts of any man in the agency at Edmonton. Certain things would be necessary before this photograph could be procured—the consent of the manager, the co-operation of a dishonest clerk, the burglary of the bank, the copying of the ledger account or the removal of the ledger for the time being. And one fact renders all of them impossible. The published statement does not represent any man's account at Edmonton. With this declaration the whole case collapses. There may be charged some act of administration which does not suit Mr. McGillivuddy, and Mr. Oliver challenges an examination with regard to it. All these land grants to railway companies are made by order-in-council. This is one thing. The connection of them with a minister's bank account is another. It is the feat of personal and political corruption that some one has undertaken to do mortification. The opposition may thank their stars that they did not make much of this scandal.

ILLUSTRATING A POEM.

The opposition in the House of Commons is now showing signs of distress. Its members thought they had the government at a disadvantage, that the premier had to go to England to attend the imperial conference, and that they could dictate the terms on which he could keep this engagement. Mr. Borden was ready with a suggestion. It was to the effect that the debate on reciprocity be adjourned for a couple of months. His idea was not acted upon, but it was proposed that the house adjourn for a couple of months, during the time of the ministers' absence at the coronation. The opposition was delighted. At Ottawa the leaders of the party held a jubilation. Mr. Borden was lauded, as a wonderful man, as one who had forced a surrender of the government. He had compelled Sir Wilfrid Laurier to attend the imperial conference. The reign of absolutism was ended. Truth to tell, Mr. Borden's summer jaunt across the continent had been planned, and he was anxious to get away. His friends got busy. They completed their arrangements. They made their announcement. The trip would occupy three weeks. He would be accompanied by the stars of the party. And then—the liberals said they did not desire any summer vacation, that they could attend to business until it was finished.

Absolutism restored! The alleged surrender a false alarm. The play goes on and Mr. Borden is not even a part of it. This is cruel, and a fitting end to a lot of foolish talk. Longfellow's poem, Robert of Sicily, is recalled by this experience. The king became proud and autocratic. He had to be humbled. The discipline came and with the desired effect, so that when asked, Art thou the king? he answered "Thou knowest best." He desired to retire to some cloister, there to make repentance for his follies. Robert of Ottawa is just now having his experience.

SOCIETY AND THE NAVY.

C. E. Phillips describes, in the Canadian Courier, how the young Canadians who enter the navy may expect to thrive. The discipline of the ship is complete and efficacious. The average seaman may, at twenty-five, retire from the service with a splendid physical equipment and a capital of $1,000. It is easy to save one's wages, because the ways of spending money are limited. He may, if he loves the sea, serve a second and third terms, at increased wages, retire with a good capital and a pension which will be adequate for his wants during the balance of life. The one drawback is the fact that the Canadian, without rich parents, is debarred from the upper deck, and the appointments that are associated with it. Why? Commissions are expensive. He must attend the naval college at a cost of $300 a year. He then becomes a midshipman, and advances by successive stages until he becomes lieutenant, commander, captain and admiral.

"All these berths," says Mr. Phillips, "carry adequate remuneration, but with the advance in rank and special standing come the inevitable expenses of living, for the young officer must maintain a position the ethics of which form a rigorous social code." It is quite possible that after a stated number of years of service a warrant officer might easily be better off financially than a ward room officer, provided the latter was entirely dependent on his pay, which is not often the case. For the son of parents of means, who seeks a career, the navy offers a splendid opportunity, and in the Canadian navy the prospect of a command within a few years would not be out of the question. This is a goal worthy of the highest ambition.

Some years ago it was felt that the British army was suffering from the want of competent officers, that the aristocracy was not supplying the number of leaders which the times demanded, and the democracy could not afford the luxury. Then came the suggestion that the profession of arms be made self-supporting, that it would offer occupation and remuneration for all who were willing to qualify for commands. This was at the outbreak of the South African war. Thus even the army and navy have resumed their former positions, and there will be no demand for a change while peace prevails. Canada is, in connection with its baby navy, inheriting the disabilities of the mother country. The upper deck is being reserved for the youth who have the money to pay the social expenses, which are very high. In other words society rules in the Canadian navy.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The imperial scheme of sick and unemployment insurance will be operated through the friendly societies that are approved. That will keep down governmental expenses, and recognize and retain the friendly societies.

Ottawa buys its power cheaper than Toronto, but sells its light at a higher rate. Ottawa says it does not see how Toronto can do it unless it juggles the accounts. A year hence may see some revelations.

The liberals owe it to the north-west to vote for the trade agreement whether it is carried in the U. S. senate or not. The fact is as well known now as it ever will be. The further resistance to it is due to partisan hostility.

There will be a warm time at some of the places which Mr. Borden will visit next month, if the farmers can only stop their work long enough to take part in the reception. They will endeavor to enlighten the leader, and they will succeed.

Eggs, in the west, are again going up. Are the packers and cold storage men at work once more? They withdrew hundreds of thousands of dozens last year and wasted them rather than let the use of them contribute to the cheapening of foods.

Germany wants from the United States the same consideration, in matters of trade, as the latter country is willing to give to Canada. And Uncle Sam says "No." What will Germany do about it? It is not in a position to enforce its demands.

The French old age pension system is a profound failure. It involves contributions from the prospective beneficiaries. But it is compulsory, and comes into effect on July 3rd. Lloyd-George's better scheme has caused discontent among the masses of Germany and France.

Complaint is made now because Sir Wilfrid Laurier wants the parliamentary debates adjourned while he is away. Was not that Mr. Borden's suggestion? And did not Mr. Taylor, backed by the party, refuse to speak except in Sir Wilfrid's presence? There's no pleasing these people.

Rev. E. B. Lancelley, of Hamilton, formerly of Kingston, thinks the state should allow the liberty of mixed marriages. The state assuredly should protect the marriages it licenses, but it should discourage mixed marriages, mixed in religions at least, as sooner or later they cause trouble.

PEERS' DAUGHTERS

UNABLE TO GET SEATS FOR CORONATION.

Much Disappointment Felt in High Circles—Kaiser Will Attend Unveiling of Queen Victoria Memorial.

London, May 9.—Owing to the unprecedentedly large official delegations from the dominions, it has been decided that no peers' daughters can be admitted to the coronation services in Westminster Abbey. Indeed, very few ladies will receive commands to attend. Much disappointment has been expressed in high places. It has been found that after places have been provided for Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and other dominion ministers, ecclesiastics, provincial premiers and public men of high colonial rank, the number of ladies available for other dominion representatives will be very limited.

Lady Strathcona is so much better in health that she expects to accompany Lord Strathcona to the abbey. Sir Charles Tupper has accepted the invitation, as a privy councillor, but Lady Tupper is not in sufficiently robust health to stand the strain of the trying ordeal.

The location of seats for Canadians outside the abbey on one of the government coronation stands is not expected to be fixed for some time. The high commissioner has pressed in vain for definite information in this regard.

Lord Strathcona and Mr. Griffith, secretary of the Canadian government's office, with a limited number of distinguished Canadians now in London, will represent the dominion at the unveiling of the Queen Victoria memorial in front of Buckingham palace, by his majesty the king, on May 16th, for which occasion the German emperor is coming to England especially. The levee dress is to be worn as this occasion is one of great royal ceremonial.

ALL SAINTS', PENSE, SASK, NEW AND OLD CHURCHES AND VICARAGE.

Church Life in a recent issue says: A fine oak pulpit has been placed in All Saints' church, Pense, Sask., in memory of the late E. J. By Pense, by his widow.

When the C.P.R. was being built the town was called after Mr. Pense, who from that day forward took a kindly interest in its welfare. This interest was of a practical nature, for two years ago when funds were being raised for the building of a new and larger church there, Mr. Pense sent a very generous donation, and spent a part of his last well-earned holiday, with Mrs. Pense, visiting the town, when they were delighted to see the church nearly erected.

The pulpit will not only be a great assistance to the vicar, but also a great benefit to the congregation, so that a more fitting memorial could not have been chosen to one who always had the church's welfare at heart.
