WAS INNOCENT

Served Three Years in the Penitentiary.

OWEN SOUND CASE

PROOF THAT MAN SUFFERED UNJUSTLY.

Frederick Tompkins Remained in Prison Full Length of Time for Alleged Robbery—His Innocence is Beyond All Doubt.

Owen Sound, May 11.—Publication of the arrest by United States authorities of Frank Richards, charged with breaking parole, brings to light a remarkable story, and indicates that an innocent man, Frederick Tompkins, of this town, served three years in Kingston penitentiary for an offence he did not commit.

The story is the more astounding because it appears that information clearly proving Tompkins' innocence came to light after he had served but a few months but for some reason was never made use of. Harry G. Tucker, barrister, of Owen Sound, states the facts are shortly these:

In November, 1905, Richards, Tompkins and one Long, were on a spree. Long apparently supplying the greater part of the necessary funds from a sum of $100 which he had received for wages. During the afternoon the three men got into an altercation and as a result Richards assaulted Long and beat him, but not very severely, after which the three separated. Tompkins going to his own mother's home, Richards going to his mother's home, and Long to his hotel. On the following morning Long found that he was short some $65, and that night he accused Tompkins and Richards of having robbed him on the street. Tompkins was arrested at his mother's home, but Richards had taken his gun and hound and gone to the woods to spend the day, and upon coming home was advised that the police were after him in connection with something that he had done to Long, and knowing that he had assaulted Long he feared arrest and kept out of the way of the police. In a day or two Richards became aware of the fact that Tompkins was being prosecuted for robbing Long, and he was told that he was charged jointly with the offence.

Under these circumstances Richards ran away to the States. Tompkins was convicted, and sentenced to three years in Kingston penitentiary, and served his term, although he always protested his innocence. Knowing that Richards had run away Tompkins concluded that Richards must have committed the robbery.

"When Tompkins came out of prison," said Mr. Tucker, "he called upon me and again insisted that he had been unjustly treated and wished to know if there was no possibility of obtaining redress. A day or two after I happened to mention the matter to a hotelkeeper and to my utter astonishment he said: 'Yes, that is right; neither Tompkins nor Richards ever robbed Long of that money, and Long knows it.' This hotelkeeper then told me that the day he (Long) was supposed to have been robbed Long came to him in an intoxicated condition and asked him to put $65 in the safe and keep it until he called for it."

"Some months after Tompkins was sentenced Long, having never called for his money, the hotelkeeper met him and asked him if he was never coming for that money, and Long, having entirely forgotten the circumstances that he had given the money to the hotelkeeper, replied: 'What money?' To which the hotelkeeper replied: 'Why the $65 that you gave me to keep for you some months ago.' Long then said: 'My God, I thought that Tompkins and Richards had robbed me of that money. I was drunk and I forgot that I had given it to you.'

"Now, instead of informing the authorities, Long never said a word. Last fall I issued a writ for Tompkins, claiming $10,000 damages for false arrest and imprisonment, from Long, and I then wrote to board of pardons in the state of Michigan with reference to Richards, who was then serving a term in Marquette prison on a charge of larceny from the person, and I desired Richards to be released so as to come here and give his evidence in the case and I succeeded in having him pardoned, although the governor of the state, through the executive clerk, wrote me that Richards would be released on the first of March to come to Owen Sound; he did not, in fact, pardon him, but merely paroled him under the terms of which he was bound to report at the penitentiary once a month for four months. After reporting himself once Richards foolishly concluded that he had a right to come to Owen Sound without asking the consent of the warden of the prison, and as a result he landed back here two weeks ago."

"The statement that Richards was arrested on the old charge made by Long is an error. Richards went directly to the police and was released on his own bail on the charge standing against him made by Long. He was arrested on a telegram from the United States authorities and, of course, was imprisoned here awaiting the arrival of the necessary extradition papers."

STINGLESS BEES.

Will Produce Three Times as Much Honey.

Boston, May 11.—To produce a bee that will not sting and that at the same time will be twice or three times as productive as the bee to-day, is one of the most important problems to be met by the new Bee Keeping Bureau of the Massachusetts agricultural college at Amherst.

Prof. Burton N. Gates, state inspector of apidaries, is in charge of the work.

"We find on the Island of Cyprus an exceptionally irritable and vicious bee," said Prof. Gates. "In the Russian Caucasus there is a bee that is very gentle. As to the possibility of finding the ideal in the Russian bee I cannot say, because its comparative productiveness has not been determined."

"Still I think some day we will breed bees that will be great honey or wax producers and at the same time be gentle and stingless."

FAVORS LICENSES.

Visions of Large Increase in Revenue of State.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 11.—Representative F. H. Knight, of Clinton county, is drafting a bill requiring every man and woman who desires to drink spirituous malt or brewed liquors in Pennsylvania to take out an annual license at a cost of $5. Representative Knight figures that there are at least a million people of the state's 9,000,000 who would want such a license, and that the revenue would be $5,000,000 a year.

His bill would prohibit the issuance of licenses to habitual drunkards and would make it a misdemeanor to serve intoxicating drinks to any one who did not have a tippler's license.

HE IS INCAPABLE

SOUGHT SEVENTEEN YEARS TO FREE HER FATHER.

The Daughter of "Chris" Evans, the Noted California Bandit, Finally Succeeds in Her Endeavor.

Sacramento, Cal., May 11.—Regarding a bandit who is crippled and blind, as no longer capable of harm, the Board of Pardons has paroled "Chris" Evans, a notorious train robber, from the penitentiary at Folsom, where he has served seventeen years.

A condition of the pardon is that Evans must leave the state, and his wife, now living in Oregon, was waiting to take him home with her when he was liberated.

For years his daughter, Eva, has worked with each successive governor of California to obtain a pardon for her father. It was she who warned him of the approach of the posse from Yerba Buena when Evans was captured after a desperate fight at the Stone Corral, June 11th, 1893. His daughter had a double interest in trying to help him escape, love for her father and love for "Bill" Sonntag, a member of his gang. During the fight in which Evans was captured the girl's sweet heart was killed.

Most of the train robberies perpetrated by Evans and his gang were in the vicinity of Visalia and Fresno and all were on the Southern Pacific road. Against this road there was a fierce feeling at the time among ranchers of the San Joaquin Valley and personal malice was as much a motive as hope of gain.

Once after the Evans gang had been trapped they escaped from jail and reached the mountains. Then for weeks there was a spectacular man hunt until the bandits were starved out and recaptured.

Some of the conflicts between the Evans gang and the posse have been woven into Frank Norris' novel "The Octopus."

AGED BACHELOR FINDS 200 WILLING TO WED.

Wealthy Octogenarian Says Women Suitors Only Want Money and Will Have None of Them.

Canton, O., May 11.—Samuel Rudy, a wealthy bachelor, aged eighty-six, who gave $1,000 each to twenty young women employed at the court house for little favors shown him, said yesterday, in discussing letters from women offering him their hearts and hands: "No wedding bells for me."

"I guess they want my money," chuckled the octogenarian at the court house, where he was called to the suit of a widow, Letitia Rudy, who has sued him for $9,000, claiming for services rendered him during the last nineteen years.

"Why, I never heard of any of the women who want to marry me, and I won't exchange pictures with them, either."

Rudy has received more than 200 letters from women, which came from nearly every state in the union.

DECLARES FOR REFORM IN PROCEEDINGS.

Commons Takes Up the Canadian Northern Railway Guarantee Bill—To Establish a Stenographers' Bureau.

Ottawa, May 11.—Senator Etherie, chairman of the divorce committee, announced this morning that the committee had declared for the immediate reform in the divorce proceedings of Canada. There must be something more than hearsay evidence and general scandal presented or the senate would decline to hear applications. Two applications have been thrown out during the last two days.

The committee this afternoon took up the discussion of the bill to guarantee the Canadian Northern railway bonds of thirty-five thousand a mile for a thousand miles. The preamble of the bill asserts that the growing traffic from east to west in Canada requires another transcontinental railway, such as the Canadian Northern is building from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

A vote of fourteen thousand dollars for the establishment of a stenographers' bureau for the use of members of commons means the formation of a corps of twenty at three dollars a day during the session, with a lady superintendent at five dollars a day.

Prisoner Makes Desperate Attempt to Escape at High River.

High River, Alta., May 11.—Suddenly drawing a thirty-two-caliber revolver and firing, first at Magistrate Sheppard and then at Chief of Police Fisk, a prisoner named Wybrow made a dash for liberty from the police court, here, yesterday. Wybrow was arraigned on a charge of wilfully smashing with a rock the plate glass window of a bowling alley. None of his shots, however, took effect, and after some excitement he was recaptured and re-arraigned to answer the original charge against him, and on this count he was sentenced to a month in jail. Before the new charge of shooting is brought against him, Wybrow will be examined as to his sanity, it being believed that his reason is affected.

Stated at Montreal-Ottawa Presbyterian Synod Meeting That French Canada Drifting From Catholicism.

Perth, May 11.—That the French Protestant vote in Quebec was no longer a negligible quantity was the declaration made yesterday at the Presbyterian synod of Montreal and Ottawa. It was also declared that French Canada, like old France, was slowly but surely drifting away from Catholicism.

The discussion arose in connection with the report on French evangelization, presented by the Rev. James Taylor, who said that the Roman Catholic Eucharistic congress had been designed by God to show the progress of true religion. It had displayed the difference between Catholicism and Protestantism to the advantage of the latter.

Rev. J. A. MacFarland, synodical superintendent of home missions, issued a warning against the rapid multiplication of Roman Catholic religious orders, male and female.
