POINTED TALK

Of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in London.

SAID HE WAS AMAZED

5T THE ANNEXATION TALK HE HEARD.

He Dealt With the Question Without Gloves—The Only Way to Annex Canada Would be by Seduction.

London, May 25.—The dinner of the Pilgrims' Society, presided over by Lord Roberts, in honor of the over seas premiers was historic because of the unexpected and noteworthy plain speaking by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the premier of Canada. Sir Wilfrid, addressing an audience composed of many of the leading men of Great Britain, handled the annexation question without gloves.

He began by expressing amazement that during his three days' stay in Britain he had heard so many people of standing voicing their doubts concerning the designs of the United States regarding Canada." He scoffed at the idea of the possibility of annexation being seriously considered on either side of the border. He expressed in warm terms his admiration for the people of the United States, but declared that much as he loved the American people he loved Great Britain more.

Canada, in sharing the continent with the United States, he said, had a double interest in the treaty of arbitration between the United States and the United Kingdom, and he exclaimed dramatically: "I thank God that the relations between the two peoples never were so good as they are to-day."

Sir Wilfrid aroused enthusiasm when he declared that Canada and the United States proposed to continue to show to the world two nations with the longest boundary, extending from ocean to ocean, living in peace and mutual respect without a fortress, a soldier, or a gun on either side of that boundary.

Of the speakers the Canadian premier was the most impressive, partly because the subject of his address had previously aroused vast interest, and he was a theatrical figure as, standing with outstretched arm, the ribbon of the British Order of St. Michael and St. George across his breast, he assured the British nobles, bejewelled and covered with orders, with eagerly upturned faces before him, and his seven colleagues, the heads of the greatest British dominions, that he, a British subject of French blood, yielded to none in loyalty to the crown.

Sir Wilfrid spoke at length on the immigration of Americans to Canada and the apprehensions he had heard expressed that they might threaten the integrity of the dominion. He said that the majority of them took the oath of allegiance to George V. It was natural for men coming from a country where they had been raised in the traditions of British institutions to return to allegiance to the British king. They had found in Canada the same opportunity and the same freedom, as under the laws which they had on the other side of the border. Moreover, they had found that democracy under British monarchy was not less than under a republic. He would not say that some Americans did not covet the fair acres of Canada; they would not be human if they did not.

If the United States attempted to annex Canada, continued the premier, it would not be by force of arms, but by seduction. In that event Canada would reply as Diogenes did to Alexander:

"Stand out of my sun."

There was sun enough for both.

The last words of the Canadian premier were almost drowned in applause. "We believe," he said, "that the day will come of an alliance of all lands springing from England's loins, insuring the peace of the world forever."

In Canada's Hands.

London, May 25.—The Morning Post commenting, this morning, on Sir Wilfrid Laurier's speech of loyalty to Britain at the Pilgrim Club dinner, says he represents the senior dominion of Britain and it is in Canada's hands that is held the fate of the empire. The only way to check United States influence in Canada, says the Post, will be a manifestation by Britain to hold its own by the strength of its own right, without fear or bombast.

The formal arraignment was fixed for June 1st. Whatever move the defence makes must be determined within the next few days. A MAN KILLED

Was Struck by Lightning in a Field

WHERE HE WAS BUSY

FLASHED OVER GROUND LIKE A SNAKE.

A Fierce Storm Swept Over Northern New York State on Tuesday—Woman on Her Way to Funeral Was Stunned.

Dexter, N.Y., May 25.—Flashing over the ground like a snake, a bolt of lightning singled out Perry Rockwood, a farmer, sixty-five years old, killing him instantly, on Tuesday afternoon, while he was planting potatoes in a field with his son, Lance Rockwood.

The tragedy was enacted on the Rockwood farm on the Pillar Point road, two miles from Dexter, at four o'clock during the worst of the thunder and lightning which pealed and flashed through the skies just before the storm broke.

Dazed by the same shock which brought death to his father and by the tragedy itself, Lance Rockwood was able to furnish Coroner Smith with only the most meagre details of the tragedy.

His father's clothes were torn to ribbons, while marks on the back of the neck, on his left arm, shoulder and leg described the course of the death-dealing current when it reached its victim.

Death in Its Track.

Syracuse, N.Y., May 25.—Death and disaster by fire swooped down upon the foothills of the Adirondacks late on Tuesday, in three electrical storms, unprecedented in fury and phenomena in the history of Northern New York.

Wind of hurricane velocity, thunder that rocked buildings to their very foundations and a veritable rain of forked and jagged bolts of lightning of blinding and terrifying brilliancy characterized the elemental disturbance.

The course of the storms was toward Lake Ontario. Trainmen on the New York Central, along whose route from the north to Watertown they traveled, declared that the three disturbances seemed to meet and that the lightning immediately rent the skies with tripled intensity.

Two counties, Lewis and Jefferson, bore the brunt of the storm's fury. Passengers who watched the elements while they were borne from Carthage and Lowville on trains running south asserted that the lightning left a path of burning buildings in its wake.

The greatest havoc was wrought in the Carthage and Lowville sections. In the latter village big trees were dismantled and the debris tied up traffic.

Lightning played upon the grounds in many places like streams of molten metal, a phenomenon farmers claim is caused by the earth being so dry as to deflect the electricity.

Woman Stunned by Lightning.

Martinsburg, N.Y., May 25.—Lightning, striking a post at the side of the road, nearly brought death to Mrs. Leon Hall, of this village, while she was on her way to West Lowville cemetery in an open carriage to attend the funeral of Clarence Bosshart, of Lowville, who was drowned last Sunday.

As the flash struck the post Mrs. Hall, who was only a few feet away, fell over on the carriage seat unconscious and for a time it was feared the shock might terminate fatally. She was carried to the roadside and it was some time before she regained consciousness.

Killed at The Soo.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., May 25.—G. Sayers, twenty-one years of age, was instantly killed, on Tuesday, by lightning. He was engaged on cement floor work in the west end, and while the storm was at its worst sought shelter with the rest of the work men beneath a tree. A bolt descended, killing Sayers instantly and prostrating three other men who were with him.

Kidnappers Are Sentenced.

Las Vegas, N.M., May 25.—Judge J. C. Roberts of the district court pronounced sentence on Will Rogers and Joe Wiggins, the confessed kidnappers of little Waldo Rogers on March 29th last. GAMBLERS IN FAMILY "WAR."

Bomb Explosions and Hold-up Robberies.

New York, May 25.—Details of a battle between rival cliques of New York gamblers became common property along Broadway to-day.

The warfare among the gamblers has been on for some time and several recent bomb explosion in the uptown theatre districts have figured in it. Two armed and masked members of one clique, it is now said, entered a rival Sixth avenue establishment early yesterday, and, at the point of revolvers, robbed the proprietors of about $16,000 in cash, mostly won from a single wealthy patron in the night's play. The pair also visited several other gambling houses, and got away with the "bank" in each place.

SHOWED DISAPPROVAL.

Queen Mary Frigid to Rich American.

London, May 25.—Queen Mary loses no opportunity to let certain American women here know that they do not enjoy the favor from her that King Edward and Queen Alexandra bestowed upon them. When Mrs. Ava Willing Astor was driving through Hyde park her motor car was halted while Queen Mary passed near Stanhope gate. Mrs. Astor, bowed as low as she could, being seated, of course. Those who saw it say the queen did no more than drop her eyelids in acknowledgment of Mrs. Astor's salutation. The contrast between costumes of the two women was most striking. Mrs. Astor was a picture of modern "smartness." The queen wore one of the sedate British gowns of which she seems so proud. Mrs. Astor's black satin gown clung so closely that one wondered how she contrived to sit down without something happening. The neck of her corsage was cut very low. Her black hat was enormously large. Her dress was opened at the feet to allow freer movement.

Northampton, Pa., May 25.—A new way of punishing a flirtatious wife was used by Michael Blose, of this bordough, who became very angry to find on returning home that his wife was entertaining Peter Lopaz as a caller. Blose kicked Lopaz out of the house and to teach his wife a lesson made a bonfire of all her silk dresses and finery.

He was discharged by the magistrate, and says he will keep her in a calico gown wardrobe so she won't appear so attractive to other men.

DEPORTED PEWEE BIRD.

English Farmers Object to Growing Importation.

London, May 25.—The bitter cry of the deported pewee bird was heard in the House of Commons. C. Bathurst, on behalf of the Wiltshire farmers, appealed to Winston Churchill to interfere with the growing exportation of the birds' eggs to America, where the farmers are aware of the value of the pewees in destroying soil pests.

Mr. Churchill pointed out that protection for the birds was obtainable on application and advised the sufferers to apply for it.

A New Industry.

Picton, May 25.—The impetus given to orcharding in Prince Edward county with the abnormal amount of spraying material used by apple growers, has prompted the starting of a new industry. J. B. Orser & Sons, who have two small canning plants at Bloomfield and Colborne, will convert these into plants for the manufacture of lime sulphur spray material. These two plants will give employment to quite a few men.

Imperial Conference Consolidates Empire.

LAURIER'S RESPONSE

TO THE SPEECH OF DUKE OF CONNAUGHT.

Hearty Welcome Awaits in Canada for the Royal Governor—Canada Will Remain Nation Within Empire.

London, May 25.—The Duke of Connaught presided last night at the Royal Colonial Institute dinner to the visiting premiers. In the course of a brief speech his royal highness said the imperial conference undoubtedly worked well in bringing about the consolidation of the empire, and the welding together of the parts into an indissoluble whole.

"The solution of self-government by the dominions," continued the duke, "is the most important of all British contributions to the science of government." He expressed the hope that the subject would find a place in the curriculum of the universities throughout the empire.

The Duke of Connaught next alluded to the marvellous growth of emigration to Canada, and congratulated Canada and Newfoundland on the fisheries award being accepted loyally.

Continuing, the duke referring to naval defence, said that he believed the closest connection with the British navy would be the aim of both governments.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, responding to the toast, said: "If any have still doubts as to the destiny of Canada, I desire to assure them that Canada intends to remain a nation within the empire. Her condition may be described as adolescent, having been on no account suddenly developed to full vigor."

"The United States," continued the Canadian premier, "was the country of the nineteenth century. Canada is the country of the twentieth century. Canada overshadows every century."

Referring to the American influx, Sir Wilfrid said: "On the soil of Canada, to-day, are 500,000 who five years ago were American citizens and who, to-day, are loyal subjects of King George.

"If anyone thinks there lies in this immigration from across the border any danger to the British connection, he must have a poor idea of the value, force, and strength of British institutions.

"So long as the latter spells freedom," declared Sir Wilfrid, "so long will Canada remain what she is."

The Canadian premier concluded by assuring the Duke of Connaught of a hearty welcome on his arrival in Canada, and not less from the Americans who had taken up their abode in the dominion.

New York, May 25.—A burglar, who had planned to ransack the home of Elias Surut, at 138 West Twenty-First street, was choked to death in the attempt. A heavy rain was falling at the time, and but for this the entire village would have fallen a prey to the flames.

HUNT FOR ACTOR'S $500,000.

"Great Lafayette's" Will Not Found —Vaults Yield Little.

London, May 25.—The search for the will of "the Great Lafayette," who was burned to death in the fire which destroyed the Empire Palace Theatre, at Edinburgh, and who was supposed to have left $500,000, has thus far been unavailing. The various safe deposit vaults which he rented in this city have yielded up only unimportant articles.

IGNOMINY OF ROPE.

Murderer Would Prefer End by Knife Blow or Rifle Bullet.

Montreal, May 25.—With the end close at hand Francesco Grevola tells his guards that he fears death not so much as he shrinks at the ignominy of death on the scaffold. He has repeatedly asked if it is not possible that the executioner should discard the rope and close his life by a knife blow or a rifle shot.

The condemned murderer has maintained his nerve to the present, and even yet has hope that some power will intervene to save him from the gallows. However, as the governor-general-in-council has declined to interfere there is no hope for the murderer, who must hang on Friday.
