THE CHERUBIL MAN.

Edgar A. Guest, in Detroit Free Press. I met a cheerful man to-day. And stopped to chat with him awhile. "Why is it you are always gay?" "Why is it that you always smile?" "I asked him, and he answered me with a shrug and a smile. "That you had hoped would be a girl?" "Sure thing," he said. "I've had my share of woos. I've had two fortunes wiped away. But I've no time to regret. My affairs went wrong yesterday. I've had my plans go wrong, and I have given up my hope to borrow a cup. But when I'm down I never cry. I spend my time in getting up."

THE CHICAGO WAY.

George Barr McCutcheon, lurching at the Chicago Athletic Club, praised the Windy City of his adoption. "Chicago's refinement, say what you will," cried Mr. McCutcheon, "is not one whit inferior to New York's." "Yet, from the corner, you'd think that in our smartest Chicago restaurants we all ate in shirt sleeves and slippers. I remember, one day at the Authors' Club in Seventh avenue, I said to a New York waiter: "Bring me a piece of apple pie."
