USEFUL DISCOVERIES

Are Not Always Startling. Neither Do They Create the Most Talk.

It is not always the greatest, most startling discoveries of science that are most useful to the human race.

Comparatively few people were directly interested in Herschel's finding of the new planet Uranus, but many thousands have benefited by Prof. Upton's experiments, which proved beyond a question that Dandruff and Baldness are the results of the invasion of a parasitic germ which invades the roots of the hair.

The discovery of the true cause of baldness made Newbro's Herpicide possible. Herpicide effectually kills the germ. Destroy the cause you remove the effect.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. $1 bottles guaranteed. James B. McLeod, druggist, special agent, Kingston, Ont.

OPINION OF AN EXPERT.

An expert of the Southern California Edison company, visiting in Hamilton, declares that the average municipal plant does not succeed because a fund is not provided "with which to replace machinery." The World answers him by saying that the Hydro-Electric Commission provides for every contingency—depreciation, repairs, replacement, sinking fund, and all other charges. That is so far as the transmission lines are concerned. The commission is not running, and does not propose to run, the municipal power and lighting plants, and these require the protection of proper funds. In Kingston there has been talk of some such fund for a long time, but it has not been established, and there is really no special provision, as there ought to be, for accidents, mishaps, or the wear of machinery. The depreciation and replacement fund should have been fixed from the first and met by a reasonable charge upon the year's receipts. It must be done, and the sooner the better.

THE MACHINE MUST GO.

The demerits are on trial in New York state, and they are showing what they can do. Among other feats is a change in the election law. The party in power is always tinkering with the statute that regulates the manner in which the people select their representatives. Hence the proceeding at present in progress in the assembly of New York. It is the abolition of the voting machine.

In all the larger cities, except New York, the registration of the ballots is done by mechanical process and with an expedition that cannot be reached in any other way. Many thousands of dollars have been invested in the plant that does its work on election day, and which is so simple in its mechanism that all the elector has to do is press the button. The machine does the rest. It is not infallible. Nothing that man invents is. It would be remarkable if his handiwork were more perfect than he himself. But the fact is that it does its work well, and almost faultlessly. Any errors it commits are the errors of the operator, for somehow, no matter how automatically the thing is worked, some one will be found to stupidly put it out of order.

At the same time it is unfailing in its results if given a fair chance. Why is it being replaced, the rapid action of the machine by the slow hand of the individual, and his difficulties through illiteracy? No one seems to know why, but Tammany Hall is behind the backward movement, and some crookedness is in contemplation. The democrats are not beginning well. They had better be careful. The demand is that the machine must go, but not the voting machine.

AMERICA'S POLO SUCCESS.

The English team, composed of military men, who came to America to lift the polo challenge cup, did not succeed, though they made a game which for speed and dexterity has not been surpassed on this side of the water. The contest occurred at Meadow Brook, Westbury, and so great was the crowd that the transportation facilities were inadequate to meet its requirements. This was the second match of the series and it was won by the Americans by a score of 44 to 34.

Polo is an ancient game. "It was played," says one who made some study of its origin, "by Persian kings, and where now lie ruins of cities long buried the click of mallet against ball resounded in the days when Rome was throwing her legion across Western Egypt." The present publisher of the New York Herald was instrumental in introducing it to New York, forty years ago, when he spent more of his time in his native city and was wont to engage in some really exciting and aristocratic occupation.

The success of polo is another instance of the skill and intensity of the Americans in whatever they espouse. The English are the better yachtsmen and come to America, sometimes, to sail for the challenge cup, once a British trophy, and having lost it they cannot receive possession, because America has the boats, the men and the money, too. In polo the same experience has been had. The English send a rare good team to this side of the Atlantic and it finds a superior to defend and retain the cup, and afterwards cheer wildly over their performance. Whatever America sets her heart upon she does real well, and the young blood of the day is as good as the blood of the people across the sea, for it is not a mixture of the best of many lands?

CHANGE IN THE SETTING.

The deliverance of his lordship the Bishop of Ontario, at the opening of the synod, is a remarkable one, and particularly because of the freedom with which he discusses reciprocal politics, and the bishop is warranted in commenting upon it in view of the fact that it was formerly a non-party issue, that freer trade relations were sought with the United States by successive Canadian governments, and that the question now should be approached and debated without temper. It does one good to see the manner in which the independent critic, in a scholarly statement, disposes of that most unfortunate of all deductions which some people were prepared to draw from the proceedings, namely, that the men who favour reciprocity in trade are not loyal at heart, and that what they do tends towards annexation. The sound, common sense of the impartial observer repudiates the idea that he cannot express himself without a wrench to his loyalty. There would have been something to protest against had the trade agreement involved a consideration such as Mr. Blaine invited in 1892. He suggested a combined tariff against all other countries. The reciprocity now proposed affects two neighboring countries, but does not debar either from any arrangement which will promote its welfare. The criticism of Bishop Mills will have the more force and effect in that it is offered with the desire to lift an international and non-political issue out of the setting in which it has been put by unreasonable men and for grossly partizan purposes.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

This is not ideal weather for a military camp. The new uniforms which have been handed out to some of the men will look the worse of the wear a few days hence.

The minister of education will be a trustee of the greater Queen's college, and the council will be represented by two of its members, as at present. The new board will be very representative in its character.

The Toronto Telegram laments that no college or university in England has seen fit to confer an honorary degree on Hon. Mr. Beck. What is the matter with Toronto university, with which the government has a pull?

Mr. Travers will keep the bank books at the pen. He will not be allowed to display his penmanship in a special way, in cooking returns for the government. He follows some very distinguished men as accountant of this department.

Queen's college, under the legislation which is being provided, will be the child of the church. It will be managed by a committee appointed by the general assembly. Under the new arrangement it will be closer to the church than under the old arrangement.

The chief support of Mr. Borden on his western tour will be Mr. Broder, who, in the house, gave a half-hearted support to the reciprocity bill, has opposed Mr. Clark, of Kinardine, goes along as the humorist of the party.

To Outstrip All Museums.

Chicago's Field Museum of Natural History, as it now is planned for Jackson Park, will be the greatest institution of its kind. It is the youngest of the great museums of the world and now ranks fifth in importance. The building will cost $5,000,000. The treasures it will house at the outset will be worth $10,000,000. The total cost of the museum—$15,000,000—will equal the total amount subscribed for the World's Columbian Exposition.

Mark Twain's Works.

If you are interested in obtaining a complete set of all his books at one-half the former price on the easy payment plan it will cost nothing to get full particulars and a new thirty-two page book, "Little Stories About Mark Twain." Address Box 409, "British Whig office."
