Dugald Campbell Had the Right to Sell Ice Cream on Sunday.

Judge Madden Finds That Mr. Campbell Keeps a Bona Fide Restaurant and That He Did Not Violate the Lord's Day Act.

The police court conviction of Dugald Campbell, restaurateur and Turkish bath proprietor, Princess street, for selling ice cream on Sunday was quashed on Thursday afternoon by Judge Madden.

Mr. Campbell had been found guilty of a violation of the Lord's Day Act in selling ice cream on Sunday, May 14th last. The police magistrate held that while the accused kept a restaurant, and supplied meals at all times, the front portion of his place of business was merely an ice cream parlor.

Of course Mr. Campbell appealed, through his counsel, D. A. Givens. He claimed that he had not violated the Sunday law, but was within his rights in selling ice cream with biscuits and sandwiches.

A PERSONAL REQUEST

RAILROAD MEN ASKED TO ASSIST IN CAMPAIGN.

Heads of Great Transportation Companies Tell Their Employees How to Prevent Waste of Supplies and Time.

Chicago, June 16.—"Save a nickel a day for the company" is the slogan of a new economical era that has set in to such an extent in the management of the great railroad companies of the United States that it has excited general interest among tens of thousands of employees and others.

Presidents and managers of three systems have already appealed to every individual of the many thousands employed by them to make a personal effort to yield a daily saving for the company.

The many employees of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific were the first to receive the personal request to prevent waste. The Pennsylvania lines taught the enthusiasm of the proposition, and the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad employees have each received a personal letter signed by the president, Darius Miller, calling their attention to the individual opportunity and duty they have to assist in the campaign for economy and efficiency.

The suggestion is made that prosperity hires more men and pays better wages than hard times. Officers are told that a great saving can be made in stationery, more careful use of typewriters, etc. The trackmen can add their mite by saving a few spikes and bolts. A few less shovelfuls of coal will not only turn the trick for the firemen and engineers, but also make a better showing. In the shops the men have been cautioned to be saving of time as well as material.

Station and telegraph employees are asked to be prompt on the wires and careful in the handling of freight, thus saving delays by trains and reducing claims for damages.

NO LONGER DEBATABLE, LONDON TIMES SAYS.

Purely Canada's Own Choice Whether She Shares in Maintaining the Security of the Empire or Not.

London, June 16.—The London Times, alluding to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's attitude on international difficulties, says "the fact of Canada having liberty to choose her own course in peace and war does not alter the fact that her liberty in that and in every other respect is guaranteed to her by the strength and security of the empire as a whole. Whether or not she shares in maintaining that security is purely her own choice."

Referring to the colonial navies, the Times says: "However much this country might have preferred to maintain the duty of the imperial navy under the sole control of the admiralty unimpaird, yet we must allow to certain dominions to develop fleets of their own. The best way to do this is to encourage and promote an interchange of able officers and men throughout all the fleets which owe a common allegiance to the crown."
