Daily Whig.

A TEST OF THE PEOPLE. When Hon. Mr. Fielding sailed for England, largely for rest and recreation...

Mr. Borden was reluctant to participate in the appeal. Not because he was without a desire for it, because he is always very willing and even eager, to indulge in moral heroics.

The blue noses wanted his help, and wanted it badly. He went down to Halifax for a couple of days, professed to see the chance of a great change in the interest of his party...

The Mail says it expected heaven save the mark occurred on Wednesday. The Murray government was sustained for another four years, by a large majority—27 to 11.

The party of four or six, with a couple of these independents, and therefore wanderers, is practically useless, and the Whig believes in an active, forceful and efficient opposition.

The election shows that there is a revolt against the alliance between the dominion and provincial dispensers of patronage. Fudge, simply fudge. The parties are now where they were after previous elections, but they are where they are as the result largely of the reciprocity deal and the insistence of the conservatives to pronounce upon it.

Education, good roads, and all other questions paled before this one. There was to be a test of the electors upon the burning issue of the day, and if the Borden party is satisfied the Murray government should be. It has served the province faithfully and well and is deserving of the very hearty endorsement it has received.

TITLES VS. HAPPINESS. The following from the Syracuse Post-Standard, makes pathetic reading: "Consuelo, Duchess of Marlborough, is coming home. Probably she will stay. Her sixteen years of life in England have been years of disappointment and distress. Her marriage was not happy. Her title did not save her from meeting disfavor at the court to which all in England must go for social recognition.

English ways are not American ways in cottage or in palace. Of the unhappiness in marriage of the rich Americans at home the divorce courts bear continuous testimony. But there is more likelihood of content in an American than in an international marriage. American women do not easily adapt themselves to the ways of European aristocracy, English or continental. European aristocrats welcoming American heiresses for the money they bring show scant respect for the bearers of it. The duchess returning, will find among the American Vanderbilt, her cousins, one or two to whom she has been merely a pleasure hunt, with marriage only an incident not a sobering responsibility, but most of them she will find happily married.

From the essence of this article most people who have knowledge of the circumstances will surely dissent. The Duchess of Marlborough did not find her greatest difficulty in adopting European ways, even in society, but in suiting the whims of one who does not appear to have been at any time worthy of her. He got her money, which he wanted most, and used it in repairing his shattered home and fortune. Long since it became apparent that she was having a lonely and neglected life, and her friends among the British aristocracy did what they could to bring the duke to his senses. In vain. He has been pursuing his own reckless and dissipated way, and even while ignoring or disowning his wife, giving great demonstrations of his wealth by the luxuriance of his entertainments. Only last week Blenheim Castle rang with the revelry which he conducted, with a relative performing the functions of the duchess. What is a title without a spark of happiness!

NOT VERY SANE TALK. Thanks to Arthur Brisbane, the president of the New York Journal, this paper has meditated briefly upon an editorial which is said to "express the feeling of the majority of sane men in the United States." The president is lauded for his adherence to election pledges, and for his ardent and perment. Some republicans may oppose it, and on the ground that the democrats, who control the lower house, may get the credit for passing it, but people are not fools and know who are behind the measure and should be thanked when it is passed.

The paragraphs which describe the relations between the Canadians and Americans are peculiarly worded. Their desire, says the Journal, is to trade with each other. They rejoice in each other's prosperity. Each wants something which the other has, and our contemporary looks forward to the day "when this whole North American continent will be one great nation, as it should be."

Annexation is not, however, suggested. Perish the thought. But commercial union is contemplated, a partnership in which Canada has its share and may be the dominating factor. Aye, "Canada would have her own say, as she has now, in her own affairs." She would "lose nothing, no fraction of autonomy," but would gain by "her partnership in a big concern while giving nothing up."

Then, realizing that this soft solder may not be acceptable, that the editor is not pursuing a line of thought which the Canadians can appreciate, our contemporary hastens to assume the Canadians that with due deference for their ideas and susceptibilities, all it seeks is closer business relations, and to that end it favours the abolition of all barriers to trade and friendship. And then follows the only impartial and pertinent declaration in the whole article:

"The treaty of reciprocity will bring all good men on this northern continent closer together. It will help all business and all consumers of the necessities, widening all markets—hurting no one unless it be some monopolist eager to restrict the supply in order to supply the demand at extortionate rates."

What a pity it is that a commercial issue cannot be considered in a commercial spirit and free from political bias? The men who studied the question and drafted the agreement can be trusted to discuss it without misstatement and misunderstanding. As a public question of course it is subject to editorial treatment, and the mistake the American and Canadian papers make is to indulge in dreary dissertations for which there is no justification. The Journal professes to speak for the sane majority of men, but it slips a cog in debating annexation and commercial unions which are not under consideration and cannot possibly command the favour of the Canadian people.

EDITORIAL NOTES. The farmers hereabouts are not now desiring rain. If there is anything for which they have a decided preference, it is a little sunshine.

The United States' commander of the forces favours the drilling of the school boys. The commander of the militia must believe in the same thing, judging by the appearance of our camp.

Mr. Monk and Mr. Bourassa are hunting together. But hunting what? The conservative party? So it would seem. Mr. Borden must have been delighted with what he heard about the party on his recent visit.

A woman's residence for Queen's, at a cost of $50,000, is a project of great importance. In memory, too, of Mrs. Gordon, whose life and influence will be so gratefully remembered by so many students. By all means let the good work go on.

The Toronto conference expressed itself as being against evangelism and music. The soloists, who send some sermons soaring like kites, came in for severe criticism. Well, cut out the music, the music that touches the heart, and see the congregations dwindle.

Opinions differ as to the force or effect of Bishop Mills' reference to reciprocity. The Hamilton Herald, independent, reflects the non-partisan view when it says there is no doubt about the good sense of the bishop's remarks.

The Hamilton Spectator quotes scripture, and for the benefit of Bishop Mills. One of the most dangerous gentlemen in the world—the bogey of the church is his sultanate majesty, and he is great on scripture. The average editor does not select his texts from the Bible.

What are the bounds or confines into which or within which an ecclesiastic should feel at home? One asks this in view of the Mail's grouse over Bishop Mills' address. The church deals with everything that pertains to the happiness and welfare of men. Is there any subject which it is forbidden to discuss?

THE CROP PROSPECTS

IN WESTERN CANADA WERE NEVER BETTER.

Reports Received by Winnipeg Free Press From All Over the Wheat Belt—Growing Conditions Fine.

Winnipeg, June 16.—On the morning of June 12th, the Free Press wired 206 crop correspondents as follows:—"Condition of wheat and progress since last report; condition of oats, barley and flax; and if acreages reduced by rain. Has there been too much rain? Any damage from any source?"

Up to 11.30 last evening 158 replies have been received, and these replies covered every section of the wheat belt of the west. It would be difficult to imagine more uniformly favorable conditions for growing crops. The progress since the report of June first has been without a setback. There has been sufficient rain everywhere, and with the exception of some very small areas, there has not been too much. All the flax is in, and for the time they have been seeded the coarse grains are as well advanced as the wheat.

It would take very phenomenal conditions from now on to very seriously damage the crop.

There has been a slight curtailment of flax and barley acreage since last report. That is some of the land which was ready for these grains has not been seeded, owing to the heavy rains. This has possibly cut down the increase in flax acreage ten per cent., making it sixty-five instead of seventy-five per cent., as it was placed in the last report.

Hay will be an enormous crop and in sections where it is grown the first alfalfa is ready to cut.

BODIES FROM THE MAINE

Will be Received by Cuban Authorities Temporarily.

Havana, June 16.—On the arrival of Col. William M. Black and Col. Mason M. Patrick, United States Army engineers, in charge of the work of raising the Maine, all will be in readiness to resume pumping operations.

The Cuban authorities have made preparations to receive all bodies as fast as they are recovered. They will be taken to Cabana fortress, where they will be placed in coffins and remain under military guard until the exploration of the wreck has been completed. The bodies will then be put aboard the collier Leonidas for transfer north.

ADMITS HE GOT $1,100,000.

Ex-Liquidator of Property Denies He Sifted Any.

Paris, June 16.—At the trial of Ferdinand Edmund Duez, ex-liquidator of the property of religious orders, in the court of assizes he admitted he secured $1,100,000, but denied that he had silted any.

Duez is accused of embezzling 6,000,000 francs. A large amount of the property liquidated was that of the Christian Brothers.

Will Robin Do Something?

Edmonton Bulletin. The Roblin government, for political purposes, some time ago raised a question as to the validity of titles for land which had formerly been included in Indian reserves, but which had been surrendered by the Indians and sold by the federal government. The federal government takes the ground that the titles are valid, and thus stands behind the titles for similar land which have been issued in all parts of the western country in the past twenty or more years.

It is now for those who raised the doubt as to the validity of the titles to make good the damage they have done to the land owners, or to press the case to the point of proving that the men who have bought the land and paid for it do not own it.

The Grain Growers' Busy.

Edmonton Bulletin. A delegation of the grain growers waited on Hon. Frank Oliver at Portage la Prairie and asked him to do his best to get the new bill passed at the present session, so that the terminal elevator commission will be able to take the elevator people in hand by the time this season's crop is to be handled. The delegation would do well to impress these views on Mr. Borden when he comes along, as they will no doubt do. The bill would have been in force now had it not been for the opposition. There is some reason to think the bill would be passed in order that Mr. Borden might angle for western votes against reciprocity with the promise of government-owned elevators.
